DWORAK FOUND INNOCENT

Jury Frees Ex-Mayor In $25,000 Bribe Case

. . . AFTER EIGHT-DAY TRIAL

From Press Reports

Omaha—A 12-woman jury late Wednesday found former Omaha Mayor James J. Dworak innocent of soliciting or agreeing to accept a $25,000 bribe from millionaire Chicago investor John B. Coleman while the mayor was in office.

The verdict was met with loud applause from the courtroom as friends and former political allies shoved forward to heap congratulations on the smiling ex-mayor.

The jury had itself given some indication earlier when a round of applause was heard coming from their chamber.

Jury members had deliberated 3½ hours before arriving at a verdict.

Dworak was charged with soliciting or agreeing to accept the bribe for favorable action on a million dollar rezoning project in west Omaha. He had been charged by Coleman, son-in-law of nationally syndicated columnist Ann Landers, and indicted by a Douglas County Grand Jury.

Wants To Sleep

Following the verdict, the 40-year-old ex-mayor warmly embraced chief defense counsel Warren Schrempp, a veteran Omaha attorney. The latter said simply: "I want to go home to my wife and family and get some sleep."

The former mayor, who now lives with his wife and family in California, said the verdict came as no surprise to him.

"My only thought now is going back to California and my family," he said. He added he does not at this time contemplate possible future legal action in regard to the case.

He dodged questions concerning the possibility of his returning to Omaha and again engaging in politics.

'Wonderful City'

"Omaha is a wonderful city and will always hold a soft spot in my heart," he said in answer to the questions.

However, he added that he had handled "rough situations" before and could again.

The mayor phoned his wife immediately following the verdict, but she was not at home. Instead, he said, he talked with his son. He said his son also was not surprised "because he had faith in his father."

Deputy County Attorneys Arthur O'Leary and James Murphy said they were "always satisfied" with a jury verdict.

The trial of Dworak, who went down to political defeat at the polls after the charges were brought against him, lasted for eight days.

The main evidence against Dworak consisted of four reels of tape made in two hotel rooms Coleman "bugged" in cloak and dagger fashion.

During the trial defense witnesses testified Dworak and then Public Safety Director Chris Gugas also tried to reverse the situation and "bug" Coleman, but that the attempt failed.

Final arguments were heard Wednesday morning prior to the case going to the jury shortly after noon.

'Crime of Conversation'

In rebuttal testimony in the closing arguments, Deputy Prosecutor O'Leary described Dworak's alleged misdeed as a "crime of conversatiton."

"Very rarely do you have an opportunity to sit and listen to an entire crime," he told the jury. "That's what you've heard.

O'Leary had praise for Coleman, saying he was one who had "stood up to be counted."

"If you don't stand up to be counted, you don't get the cancer out of government," he said.

In an impassioned final plea, Schrempp described his client as "broken, punished, abused, and his family disgraced."

Schrempp said the jury was the only thing that stood between the former mayor losing his "last pound of flesh."

"You can't have pork and beans without pork and you can't have a bribe without a briber," Schrempp said. "If there is a briber, why isn't he sitting over there, too?" he said, motioning toward the defendant.

He told the jury Dworak was not on trial for the "bungling" job he did in trying to "bug" the Chicagoan to gain evidence for prosecution. He also said the ex-mayor shouldn't be judged on whether he was good or bad in his office.

The 30-year-old Coleman testified he came to Omaha to build a million-dollar residential project and encountered a shakedown when he went to the city government for a zoning change. His story was published Sept. 25, 1964, in the Omaha World-Herald which aided Coleman in evidence-gathering.

One of Five

Dworak was one of five men subsequently indicted by a grand jury.

Three of those indicted — former City Councilmen Stephen Novak and Ernest A. Adams and real estate man Ronald Abboud—were tried together. Novak and Adams were convicted of soliciting bribes and Abboud of helping them.

An indictment against a fourth man, C. R. (Barney) Buttner, a former member of the City Planning Board, was thrown out.

Dworak now lives in Alameda, Calif., where he has opened a retail carpet and rug firm.

U.N. Votes To Debate Viet Nam

JORDAN GIVES U.S. VICTORY

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)—The United States won its fight Wednesday for a full-scale debate in the U.N. Security Council on Viet Nam. But harsh words from the Soviet Union appeared to rule out chances for agreement on any peace plan carrying a U.N. label.

The vote of Jordan, coming after last-minute instructions from Amman, gave U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg victory in his drive for the required nine affirmative votes for putting the question formally before the council.

The vote in the 15-member council was 9 to 2 with 4 abstentions. Immediately afterward the council adjourned for consultations on when to launch what is expected to be a lengthy, acrid debate.

Russia, Bulgaria

The no votes were cast by the Soviet Union and Bulgaria, while France Mali, Uganda and Nigeria abstained. The big power veto did not apply because the question was only a procedural one.

Supporting the United States were Argentina, Britain, Nationalist China, Japan, Jordan, the Netherlands, New Zealand and Uruguay.

At a news conference after the council adjourned, Goldberg said the outcome was not a vindication of the United States but "of the United Nations itself and the role that the Security Council must play toward a constructive settlement of the Viet Nam question."

Confidence

Despite opposition from both the Soviet Union and France, and a declaration from Hanoi that it would regard as invalid any council resolutions on Viet Nam, Goldberg said:

"The pessimistic accounts which I read somewhere have not proved to be justified today, nor will they be justified in the long run . . . We are confident that the Security Council will play a constructive role in this matter," he said.

The U.S. victory was assured when Waleed M. Sadi, the Jordanian delegate, announced his country wanted a full examination of the issue by the council.

Sadi had kept the council on edge while he awaited instructions from Amman on how to vote. At his request the council decided late Tuesday to postpone a vote until Wednesday afternoon.

He expressed hope that a debate would be a preliminary step to a final course of action that could end the war in Viet Nam.

Fedorenko Talks

Immediately after the Jordanian speech Soviet delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko delivered a strong attack on U.S. actions in Viet Nam.

N.Y. BREAKTHROUGH . . .

'Putt Putt Patrol' Is Big Success

New York (AP) — "I don't want more men," says Police Commissioner Vincent L. Broderick. "I want more motor scooters."

That radical departure from the department's annual plea for more manpower to patrol this city's 6,000 miles of streets resulted from the success of the "putt putt patrol," an experiment started last year.

"The new motor scooter program is the first major breakthrough in the patrolling of a modern urban area we have had," Broderick said.

His enthusiasm has kindled curiousity in police departments across the country.

The police department has 79 of the scooters which cost about $360 each, and Broderick has asked for 685 more.

Broderick insisted scooters are not substitutes for patrol cars, but an entirely new concept in foot patrol—"a drastic departure from accepted police procedure."

The men who man the scooters carry portable two-way radios.

"The area a foot patrolman must cover in today's growing cities is just too large to be done on shoe leather," a department spokesman said.

"The narrow city streets and short blocks are being replaced by huge housing and commercial development with expansive center malls, often hundreds of yards wide, and long promenades in which a man on foot is lost."

Broderick said, "The scooter gives the patrolman a visible presence in the neighborhood a man in a car simply does not have.

Dubbed the "putt putt patrol" during its experimental period, the program took quite a bit of ribbing from the four-wheel advocates.

"It was the two-wheelers against the four-wheelers until we tried scooters in Morningside Park, one of the 10 worst parks in the country," a scooter convert said.

"Well, in one month of scooter coverage not a single crime was reported in that park. We were impressed. We then decided to try them on the streets surrounding the park, and the results were equally astounding."

The scooter patrol's potential was demonstrated when six scooters easily covered an area usually assigned to 56 foot patrolmen.

Witthoff Eyes 1st District Seat

. . . DOUGLAS RULES HIMSELF OUT OF RACE

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Republican State Chairman Walter Witthoff of Fremont may seek the GOP nomination for the First District congressional seat now held by Democratic Rep. Clair Callan, The Star learned Wednesday.

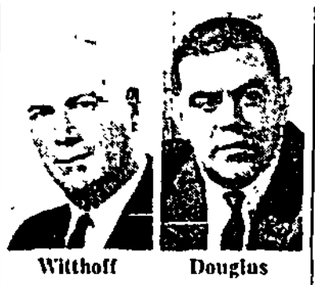

Witthoff confirmed that he has been approached to fill the void of Republican "name" candidates willing to challenge Callan.

"Unless we get one, it is entirely within the realm of possibility that I would be a candidate," Witthoff declared.

"This election will not go by default."

Callan "can be taken out by a good Republican candidate," Witthoff said.

"It has not been my intention to be a candidate. There are many capable people I would prefer to see run. But I've been approached, and my mind is open."

Witthoff Douglas

Witthoff's comments followed on the heels of an announcement in Lincoln by Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas ruling himself out as a possible Republican challenger.

Douglas said he will seek another four-year term as county attorney.

Meanwhile, Fairbury attorney Robert Denney, a former GOP state chairman, confirmed that he has been urged to enter the contest but will not do so.

Other possible "name" candidates who have ruled themselves out are Secretary of State Frank Marsh, Mayor Dean Petersen, State Sen. Marvin E. Stromer and City Councilman John Mason, all of Lincoln.

The only announced candidate is political newcomer Robert Krall, a former Lincoln newsman.

Still on the list of possibilities are State Railway Commissioner Fred Peterson of Columbus, former Rep. Ralph Beermann of Dakota City and David City farmer Loran Schmit.

State Sen. C. W. Holmquist of Oakland has also been mentioned as a possible prospect.

Witthoff served with Callan on the Nebraska Power Review Board in 1963-64. An accountant, Witthoff has been state chairman since 1964.

Douglas said he gave "careful consideration and evaluation" to seeking the congressional nomination.

"I know that at the present time there are several well-qualified Republicans who are considering entering the race who would be well representative of the people in the First District and would do a capable job when elected," he said.

Douglas has been county attorney since 1960.

Federal Aid Stirs Ed Unit Controversy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on the education service units bill passed by the last Legislature.)

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Federal funds going into the 19 educational service units created by LB301 in the 1965 Legislature to provide supplementary services to local school districts will make the units "almost irrevocable," Dick Goodding of the Nebraska Farm Bureau predicts.

"Once federal money starts going into the units, they would be almost irrevocable as federal projects usually are," he declared. This is contrary to Gov. Frank Morrison's recent plea that counties remain in the educational service units at least one school year to "see how the unit plan is going to work."

The legislation allows the board of each unit to levy a tax of not more than one mill to provide the supplementary services, but it is widely assumed that the districts will request federal funds under both the Economic Opportunity Act and Elementary and Secondary Education Act to finance many programs.

"The Farm Bureau has had a long-time skepticism about channeling federal funds directly into service unit districts and future use of the money," Goodding reported.

"We prefer to see state or local funds take care of these problems, rather than federal funds," the Farm Bureau research and legislative director explained. He noted that the organization has always supported appropriation of state money for special education.

Greatest Strength

However, Richard Brown of Holdrege, executive secretary of the Nebraska School Boards Association, contended that "LB301's greatest strength is that it probably offers the only chance for smaller schools to share in funds available under recent federal school aid legislation."

"In many smaller schools," he said, "only small sums are available—too little money to draw up meaningful or acceptable programs. They necessarily lose the federal funds by default."

The financing problem brings up another argument from North Platte Sen. Cecil Craft who is opposed to the representation on the service unit board.

"The bill has some good features," he said, "but I am reluctant for Lincoln County to pick up the tab for services and not have any more say in the unit that it will."

He claimed that "it is possible for one county in the unit to have the majority of taxable property and the majority of students to be helped and have only one-fourth of the vote."

Unconstitutional

"Since the Supreme Court is so insistent on 'one man, one vote,' this bill would be declared unconstitutional," Craft insists.

"On the other hand," he added, "some opposed to the bill are afraid the most populous county will control the unit."

The boards, initially to be appointed by the governor before Feb. 16, must have a member from each county and four members at-large. The first board announced—for Unit No. 17 in the northwest corner of the state—includes one at-large member from the four most populated counties.

The future of special education reimbursement funds which have been allocated for several years by the state also has been questioned.

The state statute reads "reimbursement to local school districts" of excess cost for special education—interpreted by 301 supporters, including some Department of Education officials, to mean that the money also will be available to the service units since they are public school districts.

Gray Area

However, Commissioner of Education Floyd Miller admitted that "this is one of those gray areas in the bill. Until the Legislature changes the statute or an opinion interprets it differently, I think the money will continue to be given only to local school districts," he said.

S. H. Brauer Jr., executive secretary of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, strongly objected to what he called "double taxation" for the special education funds and the one mill levy for service units "for the same services."

"People also are becoming concerned about the administrative overlay of the super authority," he claims. "They are beginning to realize that as much as one-half million dollars will be spent for duplicating staff already in the local school districts, county superintendents offices and the State Department of Education."

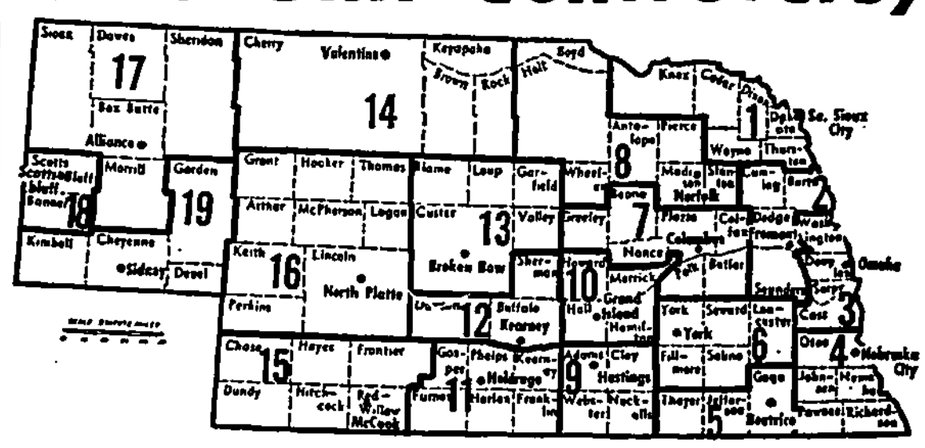

But behind most of the criticism and opposition to the educational units is the "unfair taxation" charge of rural Nebraskans.

The one mill tax authorized on the assessed valuation of all tangible property "piles the whole cost burden right back on the property owners," declared Richard Hanna, legislative chairman of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association.

Supporters of the petition effort are not opposed to the unit system, Hanna maintained. "If the revenue to support these programs were derived from a broadened tax base, from some source other than property taxes, the attitude would be completely different."

Indeed, commented John Lynch, executive secretary for the Nebraska State Education Association, "if the 301 units go under, the tax system can be primarily held to blame."

Father Of 4 Loses Life In Mercy Trip

Madonna, Md. (AP) — New life came Wednesday to the home of the Clarence Trestons after a father of four sacrificed his own life trying to reach the snowbound Treston home in a helicopter.

The new life—a baby girl—was delivered by a young state trooper who walked a mile in the early morning darkness through snowdrifts up to six feet deep.

The life taken was that of Army Maj. H. Beecher Dierdorff, 34, who died in the crash of his helicopter on his fifth mercy mission in two days.

'God And Army'

"He died doing what he loved most—trying to help someone in trouble. He died as he lived—believing in God and the Army," said his widow, Jane.

The baby was the second child of Dorothy Treston, 18.

State Trooper Robert Macomber, 23, father of two, delivered the baby after trudging a mile in the dark of night to reach the home near Madonna, a small town 25 miles north of Baltimore.

The mother and the baby were pronounced in fine shape by Dr. Caesar Vasquez, who reached the home later.

"I'm glad it's over. But I'm awfully sorry about the crash," Mrs. Treston was was quoted by her brother, Charles Jackson, as saying. She has one other child, Clarence Jr., 14 months.

Baby From Blackhorse

On one of his five missions since Monday, Dierdorff picked up a pregnant woman at Blackhorse, two miles from Madonna, and flew her to a parking lot in Baltimore, where she was taken to a hospital and gave birth to a baby.

Clarence Treston, 21, a sawmill worker, was waiting in his yard for the helicopter.

"We saw his light but he must not have seen the ones we had on," Treston said. "He got within about four miles of the house and then it looked like he turned around and headed the other way. When he did, we heard the helicopter hit something. There was a big blaze in the woods and the motor shut off."

Witthoff served with Callan on the Nebraska Power Review Board in 1963-64. An accountant, Witthoff has been state chairman since 1964.

Douglas said he gave "careful consideration and evaluation" to seeking the congressional nomination.

"I know that at the present time there are several well-qualified Republicans who are considering entering the race who would be well representative of the people in the First District and would do a capable job when elected," he said.

Douglas has been county attorney since 1960.

Father Of 4 Loses Life In Mercy Trip

Madonna, Md. (AP) — New life came Wednesday to the home of the Clarence Trestons after a father of four sacrificed his own life trying to reach the snowbound Treston home in a helicopter.

The new life—a baby girl—was delivered by a young state trooper who walked a mile in the early morning darkness through snowdrifts up to six feet deep.

The life taken was that of Army Maj. H. Beecher Dierdorff, 34, who died in the crash of his helicopter on his fifth mercy mission in two days.

'God And Army'

"He died doing what he loved most—trying to help someone in trouble. He died as he lived—believing in God and the Army," said his widow, Jane.

The baby was the second child of Dorothy Treston, 18.

State Trooper Robert Macomber, 23, father of two, delivered the baby after trudging a mile in the dark of night to reach the home near Madonna, a small town 25 miles north of Baltimore.

The mother and the baby were pronounced in fine shape by Dr. Caesar Vasquez, who reached the home later.

"I'm glad it's over. But I'm awfully sorry about the crash," Mrs. Treston was was quoted by her brother, Charles Jackson, as saying. She has one other child, Clarence Jr., 14 months.

Baby From Blackhorse

On one of his five missions since Monday, Dierdorff picked up a pregnant woman at Blackhorse, two miles from Madonna, and flew her to a parking lot in Baltimore, where she was taken to a hospital and gave birth to a baby.

Clarence Treston, 21, a sawmill worker, was waiting in his yard for the helicopter.

"We saw his light but he must not have seen the ones we had on," Treston said. "He got within about four miles of the house and then it looked like he turned around and headed the other way. When he did, we heard the helicopter hit something. There was a big blaze in the woods and the motor shut off."

Federal Aid Stirs Ed Unit Controversy

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on the education service units bill passed by the last Legislature.)

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Federal funds going into the 19 educational service units created by LB301 in the 1965 Legislature to provide supplementary services to local school districts will make the units "almost irrevocable," Dick Goodding of the Nebraska Farm Bureau predicts.

"Once federal money starts going into the units, they would be almost irrevocable as federal projects usually are," he declared. This is contrary to Gov. Frank Morrison's recent plea that counties remain in the educational service units at least one school year to "see how the unit plan is going to work."

The legislation allows the board of each unit to levy a tax of not more than one mill to provide the supplementary services, but it is widely assumed that the districts will request federal funds under both the Economic Opportunity Act and Elementary and Secondary Education Act to finance many programs.

"The Farm Bureau has had a long-time skepticism about channeling federal funds directly into service unit districts and future use of the money," Goodding reported.

"We prefer to see state or local funds take care of these problems, rather than federal funds," the Farm Bureau research and legislative director explained. He noted that the organization has always supported appropriation of state money for special education.

Greatest Strength

However, Richard Brown of Holdrege, executive secretary of the Nebraska School Boards Association, contended that "LB301's greatest strength is that it probably offers the only chance for smaller schools to share in funds available under recent federal school aid legislation."

"In many smaller schools," he said, "only small sums are available—too little money to draw up meaningful or acceptable programs. They necessarily lose the federal funds by default."

The financing problem brings up another argument from North Platte Sen. Cecil Craft who is opposed to the representation on the service unit board.

"The bill has some good features," he said, "but I am reluctant for Lincoln County to pick up the tab for services and not have any more say in the unit that it will."

He claimed that "it is possible for one county in the unit to have the majority of taxable property and the majority of students to be helped and have only one-fourth of the vote."

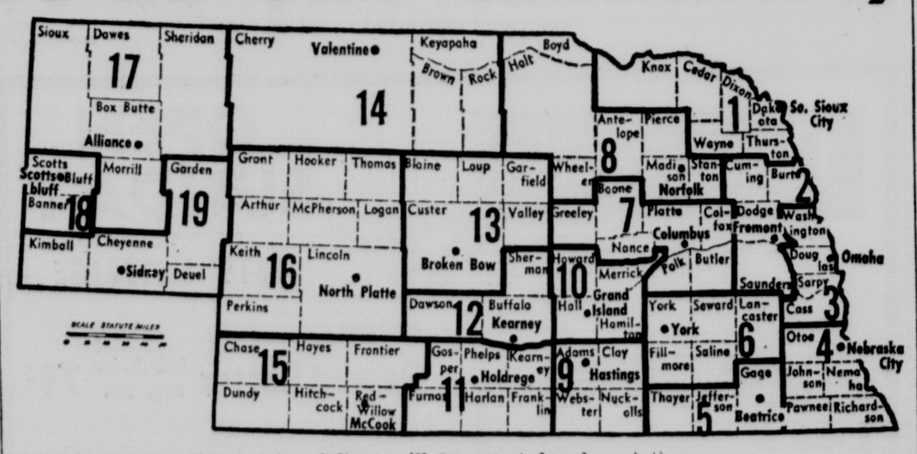

Unconstitutional

"Since the Supreme Court is so insistent on 'one man, one vote,' this bill would be declared unconstitutional," Craft insists.

"On the other hand," he added, "some opposed to the bill are afraid the most populous county will control the unit."

The boards, initially to be appointed by the governor before Feb. 16, must have a member from each county and four members at-large. The first board announced—for Unit No. 17 in the northwest corner of the state—includes one at-large member from the four most populated counties.

The future of special education reimbursement funds which have been allocated for several years by the state also has been questioned.

The state statute reads "reimbursement to local school districts" of excess cost for special education—interpreted by 301 supporters, including some Department of Education officials, to mean that the money also will be available to the service units since they are public school districts.

Gray Area

However, Commissioner of Education Floyd Miller admitted that "this is one of those gray areas in the bill. Until the Legislature changes the statute or an opinion interprets it differently, I think the money will continue to be given only to local school districts," he said.

S. H. Brauer Jr., executive secretary of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, strongly objected to what he called "double taxation" for the special education funds and the one mill levy for service units "for the same services."

"People also are becoming concerned about the administrative overlay of the super authority," he claims. "They are beginning to realize that as much as one-half million dollars will be spent for duplicating staff already in the local school districts, county superintendents offices and the State Department of Education."

But behind most of the criticism and opposition to the educational units is the "unfair taxation" charge of rural Nebraskans.

The one mill tax authorized on the assessed valuation of all tangible property "piles the whole cost burden right back on the property owners," declared Richard Hanna, legislative chairman of the Nebraska Stock Growers Association.

Supporters of the petition effort are not opposed to the unit system, Hanna maintained. "If the revenue to support these programs were derived from a broadened tax base, from some source other than property taxes, the attitude would be completely different."

Indeed, commented John Lynch, executive secretary for the Nebraska State Education Association, "if the 301 units go under, the tax system can be primarily held to blame."

B52s Helping 'Masher'

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. B52 jets joined allied ground forces Wednesday in harassing communist companies fleeing to the hills from Operation Masher, a coastal drive that has yielded 695 known Viet Cong dead.

The eight-engine giants from Guam churned up Red entrenchments on a mountain range overlooking the Bong Son, battle zone, 300 miles northeast of Saigon, while lighter planes carried on the revived air war against Communist North Viet Nam.

Radar equipment guided U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bombers through foul weather for a strike with 750-pound bombs at a storage depot five miles south of Vinh, 160 miles south of Hanoi. A spokesman announced port facilities of Ben Thuy, Vinh's outlet to the sea, were raided for the second day in a row.

Targets Of Day

Bridges, railroad tracks and truck convoys were among other targets of the day. Jets from U.S. 7th Fleet carriers flew 20 combat missions. Clouds again delayed assessment of the damage.

Thousands of Marines are involved in Operation Double Eagle, rooting out snipers in an area on the northern flank of the U.S. air cavalrymen, South Korean marines and Vietnamese troops allied in Operation Masher.

Fighting in the latter tapered off into an occasional firefight. In addition to the 695 counted enemy dead, a spokesman said 102 were captured and intelligence agents believed 75% of 437 suspects also rounded up were Viet Cong.

Casualties

Bloodshed in the opening phase of Operation Masher was reflected in casualties last week.

A U.S. military spokesman announced 57 Americans were killed, 281 wounded and 11 missing or captured during the week, against 21 killed, 193 wounded and 1 missing in the week of Jan. 16-22.

The combined allies—Americans, South Vietnamese, South Koreans, Australians and New Zealanders — were reported to have suffered 191 dead and 63 missing against a Viet Cong loss of 519 killed and 224 captured.

Giap Optimistic

Radio Hanoi broadcast a declaration by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, North Viet Nam's defense minister, that U.S. strategy in Viet Nam is very ambitious but the operations are doomed to failure.

"No matter how modern its equipment," Giap wrote in the communist theoretical journal Hoc Tap, "the American expeditionary corps cannot bring into full play its combativeness and cannot escape the inevitable defeat which is likely to befall any aggressive army facing a whole nation resolute to resist them."

Geneva Suggestion Welcomed By U.S.

Washington (UPI) — The White House and the State Department said Wednesday the United States would welcome a convening of a Geneva conference to seek peace in Viet Nam

Presidential Press Secretary Bill D. Moyers and a State Department spokesman expressed the U.S. position after Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and the French government suggested such a move.

A nine-nation Geneva conference in 1954 ended the French-Indochina War and a 14-nation conclave in 1962 set up an accord against aggression in neighboring Laos.

In a Senate speech, Mansfield called for an immediate reconvening of a Geneva conference which might bring the Hanoi regime to the peace table. A French government statement also stressed the 1954 Geneva Accord as a basis for peace in Southeast Asia.

Mansfield's proposal came amid these other Capitol Hill developments on the Viet Nam policy issue:

—Gen. Curtis LeMay (ret.), former Air Force chief of staff, advocated a stepped-up U.S. bombing attack on "more expensive targets" such as power plants, oil facilities and industry to wipe out North Viet Nam's war-making machinery.

—Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., was rebuffed by the Senate when he sought permission to hold a special one-day session of his Foreign Relations Committee to discuss the Viet Nam issue. The Senate voted 52 to 31 to table Fulbright's request.

U.S. Targets In N. Viet Nam Only Military

Washington (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Wednesday U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam is being limited to "military targets and military targets only."

The Pentagon chief spoke to newsmen after testifying before the Senate in support of the administration's request for $12.3 billion for the Viet Nam war.

McNamara said the bombing pattern is the same as before the suspension. The targets, he said, are military supply centers and communications lines used to move men and equipment from North Viet Nam in an effort "to subvert the government of South Viet Nam."

Pope Pondering Dramatic Steps

Vatican City (AP)—Pope Paul VI is "determined to go to the limit to help resolve the Vietnamese situation" and is considering dramatic new steps, a well-placed Vatican source said Wednesday.

He may make a new trip outside Italy, possibly to Geneva or anywhere else he felt his intervention might help to end the war, this source and others agreed. They made no mention of a possible trip to Viet Nam.

SNOW BLOWER ATTACKS WHITE WALL

A snow blower bites into a wall of snow south of Grantsville, Md., where snow drifted up to 12 feet deep. Five inches of snow fell on top of what the weekend blizzard deposited. Snow blanketed a big part of the nation Wednesday, but the crippling storm that paralyzed the Ohio Valley and the East tapered off. Nevertheless, the groundhog saw his shadow. And that—tradition says—means six more weeks of wintry weather. Warm temperatures returned to Florida, and a truckload of watermelons from that state was one of the first food shipments to reach Oswego, N.Y., when plows cleared highways of 102 inches of snow.

Woman, 51, Has Twins

. . . THEY'RE HER FIRST CHILDREN

North Kansas City, Mo. —Mary L. Terbush, 51, who went childless for her first 23 years of marriage and then gave birth to twin daughters, was in good condition Wednesday, and doctors said the babies also were doing well.

Mrs. Terbush, who learned only two weeks ago that she was pregnant, gave normal birth to the girls Tuesday. One weighed 3 pounds 8 ounces, the other 3 pounds 12 ounces.

Martin L. Terbush, the husband and father, said, "I'm 10 feet tall."

Terbush, a field representative for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said his wife felt well, "but she's beginning to realize she's had them (the twins)."

Premature

Mrs. Terbush was allowed no visitors. The babies, born about 10 weeks prematurely, were in incubators at North Kansas City Memorial Hospital.

The pregnancy "came as quite a surprise," Terbush said.

"She was out feeding the horses and dogs and doing yardwork" until she found out she was pregnant, Terbush said. "I guess it's a good thing we didn't know about it."

Mrs. Terbush's physician said she had not been taking any hormones to induce pregnancy or for treatment of menopause.

"We hadn't thought much about it," Terbush said. "We just figured if the Lord wanted to bless us it would be fine." He described their home, Trail's End Farm near Liberty, Mo., as "a wonderful place to raise children."

Experienced

Despite her long-childless condition, Mrs. Terbush has had considerable experience with children. Her husband said she was active in church work and has been a Girl Scout leader 20 years.

He said biblical names would be chosen for the girls — possibly Mary and Martha—but that Mrs. Terbush would make the decision.

The American Medical Association in Chicago said it had no records of anyone beyond the age of 50 giving birth to twins. But according to the Scientific American, multiple pregnancies become more common as a woman's age increases.

River Forecast Office To Be Grouped In K.C.

Kansas City (AP) — River forecasting for central and north sections of the United States involving some 780,000 square miles of drainage area will be consolidated in Kansas City.

Roy L. Fox, director of the Central Region of the Environmental Science Services Administration which includes the Weather Bureau, said the consolidation will mean the transfer of hydrologists from the river center at St. Louis to Kansas City.

It will also signal the end of manual performance of complex calculations and the beginning of a computer operation to forecast floods and warnings, water supply from high elevation snow melt, navigational and municipal water uses.

However, river district service centers will continue to collect rainfall reports from some 1,200 cooperative observers throughout the central region for analysis and projected forecasting by the Kansas City office.

The drainage area includes all of the Missouri-Mississippi River system above the mouth of the Ohio, as well as the Red River.

President Wants More To Fight Global Misery

Washington (AP) — President Johnson, putting a wide range of old and new programs into a single package, asked Congress Wednesday to set aside $524 million next year to fight ignorance, hunger and disease around the globe.

This price tag represents a 60% increase over current annual spending of $331 million for similar international health and education programs.

Although much of the added money would finance expansion of existing programs, Johnson outlined some brand new ideas in a special message to Congress.

Reverse Peace Corps

These include a proposed Peace Corps-in-reverse that would bring 5,000 foreigners to the United States to teach their language and culture in the schools, and to work beside American volunteers in the antipoverty program.

Calling for "a worldwide effort to rid mankind of the slavery of ignorance and the scourge of disease," Johnson said:

"Ours is the great opportunity to challenge all nations, friend and foe alike, to join this battle."

Urging swift congressional passage of new international education and health laws, Johnson said the national interest warrants it and "the work of peace demands it."

Other Ideas

Some other new ideas in the Johnson program include:

—Use of government-owned foreign currencies now standing idle to finance binational educational foundations that would invest in basic educational projects in the developing countries.

—A variety of efforts to send more American health and education experts abroad, and to help train more foreigners in these specialities.

Johnson promised an expanded war on disease aimed at worldwide eradication of smallpox by 1975 and the elimination of malaria throughout the Western Hemisphere and in eight African and Asian nations within 10 years.

More Food For Peace

The President also proposed that the 70 million foreign children now getting Food-for-Peace aid be increased to 150 million within five years.

And he promised a new birth control aid for countries asking such help in order to meet a population problem that "threatens the dignity of the individual and the sanctity of the family."

In education, Johnson recommended that 1,000 American schools form partnerships with institutions abroad.

Johnson ordered the establishment of a Center for Educational Cooperation within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The aim would be to set up a coordinating body and clearing house for education programs, including those under private sponsorship.

And in the field of health, he proposed an International Career Service Corps within the Public Health Service and grants and fellowships to train more experts in that field.

Bankruptcies Soaring On Easy Credit

By HAL COOPER

New York (AP) — Americans living beyond their means on easy credit are going bankrupt in ever-increasing numbers, a national survey showed Wednesday.

Nationally, the total of personal bankruptcies rose from 10,000 in 1946, when consumer credit stood at $6 billion, to more than 163,000 in 1965, when it hit $81 billion. It was the 13th consecutive annual increase.

In some states such bankruptcies have soared more than tenfold in a decade.

A Denver bankruptcy referee observed that at the present rate every wage-earner in Colorado eventually would be either a bankrupt or an ex-bankrupt.

37% of Divorces

A St. Louis marriage counselor reported that money troubles were at the root of 37% of all divorces in the area.

In Oregon, some young married couples were said to be obtaining divorce decrees while still owing installments on the wedding ring.

Across the country, thousands of bankrupts admitted debts for consumer goods totaling three and four times their annual salaries.

Another 28,000 persons who had seriously overspent filed what are called wage earner's plans last year to avoid the stigma of bankruptcy.

These wage earners turn their income over to trustees operating under the federal bankruptcy act. The trustees administer the income until the debtors are out of the red.

Course Needed

"What we need is a basic course in economics for everybody," said Sylvester Kellerman, U.S. referee in bankruptcy in Louisville, Ky.

"There is only one way to describe bankrupts — they're dumb," said Referee Sherwood Dixon of Rockford, Ill. "For the most part they're not dishonest. They're just incompetent."

"Consumers buy without counting the ultimate cost," said Estes Snedecor, referee in Portland, Ore. "They never learn the lesson that the longer you pay the more you pay."

A typical Colorado bankrupt—and his like is found all over America — is 30 to 35 years old, married, has three children, earns $450 to $650 a month and can't say no to a salesman.

Medical Bills

Hard luck, such as unexpected medical bills, may be a factor. But usually it is simply a case of his eyes being bigger than his pocketbook.

By the time he reaches the end of his financial tether, he owes up to $15,000 on house and automobile mortgages and up to $3,000 on consumer goods. His monthly installments have outrun his earning power.

Denver's chief bankruptcy referee, Judge Benjamin Hilliard, said Colorado bankruptcy cases had been rising in number annually for the past 10 years at a steady 10%.

"At this rate," he said, "we'll eventually reach everybody."

Judge David Goldstein, referee in Utica, N.Y., said there were two main reasons for the bankruptcy increase:

"One. I would say that credit is too easy. Second, credit is too expensive for the poor suckers. A fellow buys a trailer for $4,000 and by the time he's through paying for it he has forked out $2,000 in credit charges. How crazy can you get?"

Black Spots

One personal bankruptcy black spot is Ohio, which had more than 15,000 cases in 1965. Only California, which recorded about 23,000, was worse.

In Kansas City, Mo., a bankruptcy court investigator said:

"This is the era of the credit card, the two-car family, the hi-fi, the color TV, the deep freeze, the 'let's buy it now' philosophy.

"And there are always people who tell themselves 'if we can't make the payments, to hell with it—we can always take bankruptcy.'"

Fiber Gone

Referee Charles J. Marro of Rutland, Vt., summed it up this way:

"The moral fiber is gone in the American people today when it comes to paying debts."

In Newark, N.J., a diamond setter earning $3,750 a year, went $38,500 in debt before throwing in the sponge in the bankruptcy court. A postal worker ran up debts totaling $26,000 with 13 loan companies and other credit givers.

Buffalo, N.Y., Referee James R. Privitera said, "The federal government operates on a deficit. Many businesses do. So do many people. Deficit spending seems to be part of our way of life today."

Washington (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Wednesday U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam is being limited to "military targets and military targets only."

The Pentagon chief spoke to newsmen after testifying before the Senate in support of the administration's request for $12.3 billion for the Viet Nam war.

McNamara said the bombing pattern is the same as before the suspension. The targets, he said, are military supply centers and communications lines used to move men and equipment from North Viet Nam in an effort "to subvert the government of South Viet Nam."

Pope Pondering Dramatic Steps

Vatican City (AP)—Pope Paul VI is "determined to go to the limit to help resolve the Vietnamese situation" and is considering dramatic new steps, a well-placed Vatican source said Wednesday.

He may make a new trip outside Italy, possibly to Geneva or anywhere else he felt his intervention might help to end the war, this source and others agreed. They made no mention of a possible trip to Viet Nam.

SNOW BLOWER ATTACKS WHITE WALL

A snow blower bites into a wall of snow south of Grantsville, Md., where snow drifted up to 12 feet deep. Five inches of snow fell on top of what the weekend blizzard deposited. Snow blanketed a big part of the nation Wednesday, but the crippling storm that paralyzed the Ohio Valley and the East tapered off. Nevertheless, the groundhog saw his shadow. And that—tradition says—means six more weeks of wintry weather. Warm temperatures returned to Florida, and a truckload of watermelons from that state was one of the first food shipments to reach Oswego, N.Y., when plows cleared highways of 102 inches of snow.

Woman, 51, Has Twins

. . . THEY'RE HER FIRST CHILDREN

North Kansas City, Mo. —Mary L. Terbush, 51, who went childless for her first 23 years of marriage and then gave birth to twin daughters, was in good condition Wednesday, and doctors said the babies also were doing well.

Mrs. Terbush, who learned only two weeks ago that she was pregnant, gave normal birth to the girls Tuesday. One weighed 3 pounds 8 ounces, the other 3 pounds 12 ounces.

Martin L. Terbush, the husband and father, said, "I'm 10 feet tall."

Terbush, a field representative for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said his wife felt well, "but she's beginning to realize she's had them (the twins)."

Premature

Mrs. Terbush was allowed no visitors. The babies, born about 10 weeks prematurely, were in incubators at North Kansas City Memorial Hospital.

The pregnancy "came as quite a surprise," Terbush said.

"She was out feeding the horses and dogs and doing yardwork" until she found out she was pregnant, Terbush said. "I guess it's a good thing we didn't know about it."

Mrs. Terbush's physician said she had not been taking any hormones to induce pregnancy or for treatment of menopause.

"We hadn't thought much about it," Terbush said. "We just figured if the Lord wanted to bless us it would be fine." He described their home, Trail's End Farm near Liberty, Mo., as "a wonderful place to raise children."

Experienced

Despite her long-childless condition, Mrs. Terbush has had considerable experience with children. Her husband said she was active in church work and has been a Girl Scout leader 20 years.

He said biblical names would be chosen for the girls — possibly Mary and Martha—but that Mrs. Terbush would make the decision.

The American Medical Association in Chicago said it had no records of anyone beyond the age of 50 giving birth to twins. But according to the Scientific American, multiple pregnancies become more common as a woman's age increases.

River Forecast Office To Be Grouped In K.C.

Kansas City (AP) — River forecasting for central and north sections of the United States involving some 780,000 square miles of drainage area will be consolidated in Kansas City.

Roy L. Fox, director of the Central Region of the Environmental Science Services Administration which includes the Weather Bureau, said the consolidation will mean the transfer of hydrologists from the river center at St. Louis to Kansas City.

It will also signal the end of manual performance of complex calculations and the beginning of a computer operation to forecast floods and warnings, water supply from high elevation snow melt, navigational and municipal water uses.

However, river district service centers will continue to collect rainfall reports from some 1,200 cooperative observers throughout the central region for analysis and projected forecasting by the Kansas City office.

The drainage area includes all of the Missouri-Mississippi River system above the mouth of the Ohio, as well as the Red River.

President Wants More To Fight Global Misery

Washington (AP) — President Johnson, putting a wide range of old and new programs into a single package, asked Congress Wednesday to set aside $524 million next year to fight ignorance, hunger and disease around the globe.

This price tag represents a 60% increase over current annual spending of $331 million for similar international health and education programs.

Although much of the added money would finance expansion of existing programs, Johnson outlined some brand new ideas in a special message to Congress.

Reverse Peace Corps

These include a proposed Peace Corps-in-reverse that would bring 5,000 foreigners to the United States to teach their language and culture in the schools, and to work beside American volunteers in the antipoverty program.

Calling for "a worldwide effort to rid mankind of the slavery of ignorance and the scourge of disease," Johnson said:

"Ours is the great opportunity to challenge all nations, friend and foe alike, to join this battle."

Urging swift congressional passage of new international education and health laws, Johnson said the national interest warrants it and "the work of peace demands it."

Other Ideas

Some other new ideas in the Johnson program include:

—Use of government-owned foreign currencies now standing idle to finance binational educational foundations that would invest in basic educational projects in the developing countries.

—A variety of efforts to send more American health and education experts abroad, and to help train more foreigners in these specialities.

Johnson promised an expanded war on disease aimed at worldwide eradication of smallpox by 1975 and the elimination of malaria throughout the Western Hemisphere and in eight African and Asian nations within 10 years.

More Food For Peace

The President also proposed that the 70 million foreign children now getting Food-for-Peace aid be increased to 150 million within five years.

And he promised a new birth control aid for countries asking such help in order to meet a population problem that "threatens the dignity of the individual and the sanctity of the family."

In education, Johnson recommended that 1,000 American schools form partnerships with institutions abroad.

Johnson ordered the establishment of a Center for Educational Cooperation within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The aim would be to set up a coordinating body and clearing house for education programs, including those under private sponsorship.

And in the field of health, he proposed an International Career Service Corps within the Public Health Service and grants and fellowships to train more experts in that field.

Bankruptcies Soaring On Easy Credit

By HAL COOPER

New York (AP) — Americans living beyond their means on easy credit are going bankrupt in ever-increasing numbers, a national survey showed Wednesday.

Nationally, the total of personal bankruptcies rose from 10,000 in 1946, when consumer credit stood at $6 billion, to more than 163,000 in 1965, when it hit $81 billion. It was the 13th consecutive annual increase.

In some states such bankruptcies have soared more than tenfold in a decade.

A Denver bankruptcy referee observed that at the present rate every wage-earner in Colorado eventually would be either a bankrupt or an ex-bankrupt.

37% of Divorces

A St. Louis marriage counselor reported that money troubles were at the root of 37% of all divorces in the area.

In Oregon, some young married couples were said to be obtaining divorce decrees while still owing installments on the wedding ring.

Across the country, thousands of bankrupts admitted debts for consumer goods totaling three and four times their annual salaries.

Another 28,000 persons who had seriously overspent filed what are called wage earner's plans last year to avoid the stigma of bankruptcy.

These wage earners turn their income over to trustees operating under the federal bankruptcy act. The trustees administer the income until the debtors are out of the red.

Course Needed

"What we need is a basic course in economics for everybody," said Sylvester Kellerman, U.S. referee in bankruptcy in Louisville, Ky.

"There is only one way to describe bankrupts — they're dumb," said Referee Sherwood Dixon of Rockford, Ill. "For the most part they're not dishonest. They're just incompetent."

"Consumers buy without counting the ultimate cost," said Estes Snedecor, referee in Portland, Ore. "They never learn the lesson that the longer you pay the more you pay."

A typical Colorado bankrupt—and his like is found all over America — is 30 to 35 years old, married, has three children, earns $450 to $650 a month and can't say no to a salesman.

Medical Bills

Hard luck, such as unexpected medical bills, may be a factor. But usually it is simply a case of his eyes being bigger than his pocketbook.

By the time he reaches the end of his financial tether, he owes up to $15,000 on house and automobile mortgages and up to $3,000 on consumer goods. His monthly installments have outrun his earning power.

Denver's chief bankruptcy referee, Judge Benjamin Hilliard, said Colorado bankruptcy cases had been rising in number annually for the past 10 years at a steady 10%.

"At this rate," he said, "we'll eventually reach everybody."

Judge David Goldstein, referee in Utica, N.Y., said there were two main reasons for the bankruptcy increase:

"One, I would say that credit is too easy. Second, credit is too expensive for the poor suckers. A fellow buys a trailer for $4,000 and by the time he's through paying for it he has forked out $2,000 in credit charges. How crazy can you get?"

Black Spots

One personal bankruptcy black spot is Ohio, which had more than 15,000 cases in 1965. Only California, which recorded about 23,000, was worse.

In Kansas City, Mo., a bankruptcy court investigator said:

"This is the era of the credit card, the two-car family, the hi-fi, the color TV, the deep freeze, the 'let's buy it now' philosophy.

"And there are always people who tell themselves 'if we can't make the payments, to hell with it—we can always take bankruptcy.' "

Fiber Gone

Referee Charles J. Marro of Rutland, Vt., summed it up this way:

"The moral fiber is gone in the American people today when it comes to paying debts."

In Newark, N.J., a diamond setter earning $3,750 a year, went $38,500 in debt before throwing in the sponge in the bankruptcy court. A postal worker ran up debts totaling $26,000 with 13 loan companies and other credit givers.

Buffalo, N.Y., Referee James R. Privitera said, "The federal government operates on a deficit. Many businesses do. So do many people. Deficit spending seems to be part of our way of life today."

Attempt To Set World Free-Fall Record Fails

. . . FROZEN PIECE OF EQUIPMENT BLAMED

Estherville, Iowa (AP) — Parachutist Nick Piantanida rode a balloon higher than any other man has ever done Wednesday, technicians said, but his attempt at a world free-fall record was foiled by a frozen piece of equipment.

Piantanida, 33, who had planned to jump from more than 120,000 feet, free-fall to about 7,000 feet and then parachute down as unofficial. The balloon's gondola to the ground instead.

He stepped from the gondola and stripped off his bright orange space suit three miles southeast of Elmore, Minn., about 40 miles east of this northwest Iowa town that was the target area for his planned parachute jump.

Piantanida looked haggard and disappointed when he met newsmen at the airport here, where he was flown in a small plane after his landing. He said, however, that he felt "generally good but tired."

Project personnel who monitored the flight said his balloon ascent reached 123,500 feet—the highest ever recorded.

Unofficial Record

Adding to the general attitude of resigned gloom among project workers was the knowledge that even the balloon altitude mark will go down as unofficial. The balloonist must ride back to the ground with the balloon intact to make an official record.

All apparently went well with the flight from Sioux Falls, S.D., until Piantanida was preparing to make his jump. Then he found that he couldn't loosen the hose fastening his space suit oxygen tank to the larger tank in the gondola. It was frozen.

He worked with it for about 10 minutes until technicians on the ground noted an increase in his heart beat and ordered him to ride down with the gondola. Piantanida said it still was frozen when he reached the ground and he finally cut the hose with his knife.

'Couldn't Care Less'

Asked if he was happy to have gone higher in a balloon than anybody else, Piantanida replied: "I couldn't care less. We didn't accomplish our mission."

To a question of whether he would try again, Piantanida declared: "I'll get up there one way or the other, sooner or later."

Piantanida said the shock was heavy when the gondola's parachute opened, causing the gondola to oscillate wildly. He confessed to a brief period of feeling "a little woozy" on the way down.

After talking briefly with reporters, Piantanida went for a medical checkup.

His wife, Janice, was at the Estherville Airport when the balloon went over the town. She watched intently through binoculars.

Asked if he could see the ground, Piantanida said: "It looked real good. It seemed like I went over Estherville at a pretty good pace."

Mrs. Piantanida broke down and cried during the 10 minutes or so of confusion when her husband was too busy working with his oxygen hose to answer technicians on the ground who were talking to him.

She looked relieved when Jacques Istel, president of SPACE Inc., finally called out "It's okay — he's all right."

Istel indicated the company probably will try the experiment, known as "project strato-jump," again. This was the second attempt to end in failure. The first attempt, starting at New Brighton, Minn., last Oct. 22, flopped when the balloon burst at 22,700 feet.

SPACE, Inc., is a private firm working on development of space survival and bail-out equipment and techniques. The name stands for survival programs above common environment.

Probe Planned In Nebraska City Store Fire

Nebraska City — Investigation will get under way this week in the blaze destroying a Hinky Dinky supermarket here Tuesday night, state Fire Marshal Joseph Divis said Wednesday.

Fire Chief Otto Berthold said the building, estimated to be worth $70,000 was a total loss as were the fixtures and stock.

Cause of the blaze was not determined, but the chief said an explosion was heard near the refrigeration and water cooling system. He said an inspection showed faulty wiring near a compressor may have triggered the explosion.

Parts of the east and west walls caved in.

Passersby reported the fire after they saw smoke coming from the north end of the store.

About 40 firemen fought the flames, including some from Percival, Iowa, and rural units.

The alarm was turned in about 10:30 p.m. by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Killion of Nebraska City. Store manager Marvin Vinsonhaer said six employes were working in the store an hour earlier.

The store was surrounded by a large paved parking area, so there was no danger to buildings on the same side of the street. The Pauley Lumber Co. across the street, however, was threatened for a time.

Walls of the brick building began crumbling about midnight, witnesses said. Sounds of cans exploding inside could be heard during the height of the blaze.

Two Injured In Crash On Highway 77

A two-car collision at U.S. 77 and the Raymond turn-off about 14 miles northeast of Lincoln injured two persons Wednesday night.

Listed in good condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital were Fred Schickell, 29, of Wilber, and Elmer Drewell Jr., 19, of Raymond.

The Safety Patrol said the accident occurred when a vehicle driven by Drewell, which was eastbound on a county road, entered the U.S. 77 intersection and collided with the Schickell car, which was northbound on U.S. 77.

Authorities said the Drewell auto left more than 200 feet of skid marks before colliding with the Schickell vehicle.

The charge resulted from an accident last Aug. 27 at the intersection of U.S. Highway 34 and 281 southwest of Grand Island involved were a car driven by Peters and a truck driven by Harry Hussey, 51-year-old Waterloo, Neb., man who died in the mishap.

Theological School Board OKs Merger

Chicago (AP) — The Board of Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago has approved a report looking toward merger of the school with the Central Lutheran Theological Seminary in Fremont, Neb

The announcement Wednesday said the 28-member board approved unanimously a report by a special committee which made suggestions for working details of a merger.

If both the Chicago school and the Fremont seminary endorse the report, the five synods supporting the Fremont seminary will act. A Fremont board meeting has been scheduled for Feb. 17.

Final approval would be up to the biennial convention of the Lutheran Church in America in June in Kansas City.

The special committee proposed that the seminary become the Fremont campus of the Chicago school Sept. 1 of this year, and that the consolidation be completed by Sept. 1, 1967, at the new site of the Chicago school on the University of Chicago campus.

Madrid Embassy Bombing Threats Prompt Security

Madrid, Spain (AP) — Special security measures were placed in effect at the U.S. embassy here following telephoned threats that the building would be "blown up," officials disclosed Wednesday.

They said the first threats were received on Monday. Additional police guards were posted and embassy security personnel took special precautions.

The caller or callers did not indicate whether their threats were motivated by the resumption of U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam or the loss of a nuclear bomb off Spain's southeast coast as the result of the crash of a U.S. bomber.

Divers Bring Up Nazi Bomb Found In Thames River

London (AP)—Divers Wednesday brought up a 500-pound bomb which had lain at the bottom of the Thames River since the Nazi air raids 25 years ago.

The bomb, discovered by a diver Tuesday, was only 25 feet from Blackfriars Road and rail bridges crossed by hundreds of thousands of commuters each day.

The bridges were closed for 90 minutes during nonrush hours as divers raised the bomb and towed it downstream.

"The bomb will be taken out to sea and exploded," a navy spokesman said.

Hospital Staff Foils Bandits

London (AP)—Hospital workers left their wards and joined in a pitched battle Wednesday to foil an attempt by five masked payroll bandits at London's University College Hospital.

They left behind a payroll bag containing thousands of pounds which they had grabbed from a security man on a landing outside one of the hospital wards.

Officer Injured In Auto Crash

An Air Force lieutenant colonel was injured early Thursday morning in a one-car accident in West Lincoln.

Not immediately identified, he was the driver of a westbound car on Cornhusker Highway near Grant St. Police said he lost control of the car and it hit a culvert. The extent of his injuries was unknown.

The accident was the first Lincoln police have covered in West Lincoln since annexation of the village by the city.

Superstitious? Then Get Ready For More Cold

Any groundhogs peering from their burrows in the Lincoln area Wednesday beat a hasty retreat.

The reason: the sun was out, the groundhog's shadow visible. And that, legend has it, means six more weeks of winter.

The Groundhog Day tradition may be right, this time. Wednesday's shadow-creating sunlight was expected to give way to mostly cloudy skies Thursday, the weatherman said. Some light snow was expected.

One Kratochvil Family Member Is Still Critical

Jerome Kratochvil, 20, one of three survivors of a car-train crash Sunday which killed five other members of the family, remained in very critical condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital, a hospital spokesman said late Wednesday.

The St. Elizabeth official said Mrs. Josephine Kratochvil, 44, and a daughter, Bernadette, 22, were improving. They have been taken off the critical list.

Funeral services have been scheduled for Friday at Agnew for Edward Kratochvil, 51, a daughter, Patty, 19, and three sons, Gary, 18, Lloyd, 14, and Richard, 12.

10-County Voters Are Reminded Of Registration Need

Thousands of people in 10 Nebraska counties could lose their right to vote in the 1966 elections, unknowingly, according to an announcement by Robert Thomas, of Norfolk, a spokesman for the Associated Industries of Nebraska and the Nebraska State Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas, chairman of the AIN/NSCC Citizenship Responsibility Council, called attention to a 1965 law passed by the Legislature, LB471, which requires mandatory voter registration in all counties having a 1960 federal census count of 20,000 inhabitants or more. The 10 counties affected are: Adams, Buffalo, Dodge, Gage, Hall, Lincoln, Madison, Platte, Sarpy and Scotts Bluff.

Until LB471 became law, voter registration was required only in cities of 7,000 population or more in these counties. Now, every qualified voter living within these counties must register or be disenfranchised.

"Our concern is not that voters are now required to register, but that thousands of people might not be aware of this new law, and thus would not be registered to vote in the 1966 elections," Thomas stated.

Asked if he was happy to have gone higher in a balloon than anybody else, Piantanida replied: "I couldn't care less. We didn't accomplish our mission."

To a question of whether he would try again, Piantanida declared: "I'll get up there one way or the other, sooner or later."

Piantanida said the shock was heavy when the gondola's parachute opened, causing the gondola to oscillate wildly. He confessed to a brief period of feeling "a little woozy" on the way down.

After talking briefly with reporters, Piantanida went for a medical checkup.

His wife, Janice, was at the Estherville Airport when the balloon went over the town. She watched intently through binoculars.

Asked if he could see the ground, Piantanida said: "It looked real good. It seemed like I went over Estherville at a pretty good pace."

Mrs. Piantanida broke down and cried during the 10 minutes or so of confusion when her husband was too busy working with his oxygen hose to answer technicians on the ground who were talking to him.

She looked relieved when Jacques Istel, president of SPACE Inc., finally called out "It's okay — he's all right."

Istel indicated the company probably will try the experiment, known as "project strato-jump," again. This was the second attempt to end in failure. The first attempt, starting at New Brighton, Minn., last Oct. 22, flopped when the balloon burst at 22,700 feet.

SPACE, Inc., is a private firm working on development of space survival and bail-out equipment and techniques. The name stands for survival programs above common environment.

Probe Planned In Nebraska City Store Fire

Nebraska City — Investigation will get under way this week in the blaze destroying a Hinky Dinky supermarket here Tuesday night, state Fire Marshal Joseph Divis said Wednesday.

Fire Chief Otto Berthold said the building, estimated to be worth $70,000 was a total loss as were the fixtures and stock.

Cause of the blaze was not determined, but the chief said an explosion was heard near the refrigeration and water cooling system. He said an inspection showed faulty wiring near a compressor may have triggered the explosion.

Parts of the east and west walls caved in.

Passersby reported the fire after they saw smoke coming from the north end of the store.

About 40 firemen fought the flames, including some from Percival, Iowa, and rural units.

The alarm was turned in about 10:30 p.m. by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Killion of Nebraska City. Store manager Marvin Vinsonhaer said six employes were working in the store an hour earlier.

The store was surrounded by a large paved parking area, so there was no danger to buildings on the same side of the street. The Pauley Lumber Co. across the street, however, was threatened for a time.

Walls of the brick building began crumbling about midnight, witnesses said. Sounds of cans exploding inside could be heard during the height of the blaze.

Two Injured In Crash On Highway 77

A two-car collision at U.S. 77 and the Raymond turn-off about 14 miles northeast of Lincoln injured two persons Wednesday night.

Listed in good condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital were Fred Schickell, 29, of Wilber, and Elmer Drewell Jr., 19, of Raymond.

The Safety Patrol said the accident occurred when a vehicle driven by Drewell, which was eastbound on a county road, entered the U.S. 77 intersection and collided with the Schickell car, which was northbound on U.S. 77.

Authorities said the Drewell auto left more than 200 feet of skid marks before colliding with the Schickell vehicle.

Peters Receives Jail Sentence In Auto Death Case

Grand Island (AP)—Leon Peters, 63, of Riverside, Calif., was sentenced to 60 days in the Hall County jail Wednesday after he entered a plea of no contest to motor vehicle homicide charges.

District Judge Donald H. Weaver denied a request for probation.

The charge resulted from an accident last Aug. 27 at the intersection of U.S. Highway 34 and 281 southwest of Grand Island. Involved were a car driven by Peters and a truck driven by Harry Hussey, 51-year-old Waterloo, Neb., man who died in the mishap.

The information against Peters charged his car went through a stop sign.

Theological School Board OKs Merger

Chicago (AP) — The Board of Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago has approved a report looking toward merger of the school with the Central Lutheran Theological Seminary in Fremont, Neb.

The announcement Wednesday said the 28-member board approved unanimously a report by a special committee which made suggestions for working details of a merger.

If both the Chicago school and the Fremont seminary endorse the report, the five synods supporting the Fremont seminary will act. A Fremont board meeting has been scheduled for Feb. 17.

Final approval would be up to the biennial convention of the Lutheran Church in America in June in Kansas City.

The special committee proposed that the seminary become the Fremont campus of the Chicago school Sept. 1 of this year, and that the consolidation be completed by Sept. 1, 1967, at the new site of the Chicago school on the University of Chicago campus.

Madrid Embassy Bombing Threats Prompt Security

Madrid, Spain (AP) — Special security measures were placed in effect at the U.S. embassy here following telephoned threats that the building would be "blown up," officials disclosed Wednesday.

They said the first threats were received on Monday. Additional police guards were posted and embassy security personnel took special precautions.

The caller or callers did not indicate whether their threats were motivated by the resumption of U.S. air attacks on North Viet Nam or the loss of a nuclear bomb off Spain's southeast coast as the result of the crash of a U.S. bomber.

Divers Bring Up Nazi Bomb Found In Thames River

London (AP)—Divers Wednesday brought up a 500-pound bomb which had lain at the bottom of the Thames River since the Nazi air raids 25 years ago.

The bomb, discovered by a diver Tuesday, was only 25 feet from Blackfriars Road and rail bridges crossed by hundreds of thousands of commuters each day.

The bridges were closed for 90 minutes during nonrush hours as divers raised the bomb and towed it downstream.

"The bomb will be taken out to sea and exploded," a navy spokesman said.

Hospital Staff Foils Bandits

London (AP)—Hospital workers left their wards and joined in a pitched battle Wednesday to foil an attempt by five masked payroll bandits at London's University College Hospital.

The gangsters, squirting ammonia and lashing out with blackjacks, ran off when they found themselves outnumbered.

They left behind a payroll bag containing thousands of pounds which they had grabbed from a security man on a landing outside one of the hospital wards.

Officer Injured In Auto Crash

An Air Force lieutenant colonel was injured early Thursday morning in a one-car accident in West Lincoln.

Not immediately identified, he was the driver of a westbound car on Cornhusker Highway near Grant St. Police said he lost control of the car and it hit a culvert. The extent of his injuries was unknown.

The accident was the first Lincoln police have covered in West Lincoln since annexation of the village by the city.

Superstitious? Then Get Ready For More Cold

Any groundhogs peering from their burrows in the Lincoln area Wednesday beat a hasty retreat.

The reason: the sun was out, the groundhog's shadow visible. And that, legend has it, means six more weeks of winter.

The Groundhog Day tradition may be right, this time. Wednesday's shadow-creating sunlight was expected to give way to mostly cloudy skies Thursday, the weatherman said. Some light snow was expected.

One Kratochvil Family Member Is Still Critical

Jerome Kratochvil, 20, one of three survivors of a car-train crash Sunday which killed five other members of the family, remained in very critical condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital, a hospital spokesman said late Wednesday.

The St. Elizabeth official said Mrs, Josephine Kratochvil, 44, and a daughter, Bernadette, 22, were improving. They have been taken off the critical list.

Funeral services have been scheduled for Friday at Agnew for Edward Kratochvil, 51, a daughter, Patty, 19, and three sons, Gary, 18, Lloyd, 14, and Richard, 12.

10-County Voters Are Reminded Of Registration Need

Thousands of people in 10 Nebraska counties could lose their right to vote in the 1966 elections, unknowingly, according to an announcement by Robert Thomas, of Norfolk, a spokesman for the Associated Industries of Nebraska and the Nebraska State Chamber of Commerce.

Thomas, chairman of the AIN/NSCC Citizenship Responsibility Council, called attention to a 1965 law passed by the Legislature, LB471, which requires mandatory voter registration in all counties having a 1960 federal census count of 20,000 inhabitants or more. The 10 counties affected are: Adams, Buffalo, Dodge, Gage, Hall, Lincoln, Madison, Platte, Sarpy and Scotts Bluff.

Until LB471 became law, voter registration was required only in cities of 7,000 population or more in these counties. Now, every qualified voter living within these counties must register or be disenfranchised.

"Our concern is not that voters are now required to register, but that thousands of people might not be aware of this new law, and thus would not be registered to vote in the 1966 elections," Thomas stated.

Fancy Over Fact

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A young Creighton University golfer, Bob Mitera, said he has stopped telling people about his 444-yard hole in one because no one will believe him. The only believers are the rest of the foursome playing with him when the feat was accomplished and the foursome that was in front of them. They saw it so they believe it and Mitera has been nationally honored for the shot, a new world record.

The young man is experiencing something that he will see often throughout his life. What the facts might be and what people believe because they want to believe it are often two different things. Currently running in The Star is a series on the new educatonal service units established in the last session of the Legislature. Despite the facts, there are those who are convinced that the service units are the forerunner of school consolidation. The law, for instance, specifically states that "this act shall be supplemental to any other laws and shall not affect the reorganization of school districts."

Entrenched Belief

The districts are organizations of various counties for the purpose of providing supplementary educational services to local school districts. As one advocate of the plan explains, without local school districts, no services could be provided. Thus, the approach is not to do away with local school districts.

The opponents to the service unit plan have one point in their favor. The plan is a collective approach to a problem. It involves the coordination of effort over a large area in order to accomplish things that could not be accomplished by local school districts on their own. Obviously, school district reorganization involves exactly the same theory.

Aside from this common ground in theory or principle, however, opponents to the service unit idea are on pretty thin ice. If school district reorganization should be accelerated, it will not be the result of or through means of the educational service units. Rather, it would come simply because of the growing realization that this state's great number of small school districts are a serious handicap to the cause of education. What all this means is that the service units do not have anything to do with reorganization and those opposing them on the basis that they do are attempting to deny help to the very small districts they want to preserve.

The service unit backer who said that foes of district reorganization ought to be for the service units was absolutely correct. The fact is that the units could provide such assistance as to make the small school districts more acceptable for a longer period of time. The units would actually strengthen the small districts from an educational point of view and that is the only point of view of any consequence. It is only for the purpose of improved education for children that anyone wants to recognize. If this purpose is served through the service units, it weakens the need to achieve it through reorganization. Thus, it would be totally conceivable that the educators who want reorganization would oppose the service units. This would be one way of further crippling small school districts and adding fuel to the fire of reorganization.

It is to the credit of professional educators and others who advance the cause of the service units, knowing that such cases might well prolong the time of meaningful and widespread school district reorganization. They are motivated, not by any selfish or political interests, but by the welfare of the children of the state of Nebraska.

As much, unfortunately, cannot be said of the Lincoln School District which has voted to remain out of the service unit in its area. While it does not have much need for such a unit, it has a responsibility to the cause of education that would be served by its membership therein. With its level of professional achievement and by its example, it could have contributed much to the cause of education by staying in its proposed unit.

The action of the Lincoln district could prove embarrassing to it in the years ahead. That action will earn for it no plaudits on a statewide basis. It, therefore, will help the district none in matters before future sessions of the Legislature. The Lincoln district should have not displayed such a parochial attitude in its approach to this matter. In contrast, the Omaha School District which had no more to gain from the service units than did Lincoln has elected to stay in the unit that included it.

Omaha Stays In

No one is ever going to be right all the time nor can you expect to please all people in all things. There is a time, too, for compromise and a time to stand up and be counted. But it seems that there is often more of this kind of approach than warranted. There is often too little consideration of a problem in its full meaning and impact, too little effort made to find the total truth as opposed to what we like or what serves us best at the immediate moment.

Police Get Payoff

If the above headline doesn't grab you, nothing will. The headline could well be a bit misleading, however, as it does not refer to any illegal activities on the part of the Lincoln Police Department. In fact, quite the opposite is the case.

The Lincoln Police Department has gotten a payoff this week and the people of Lincoln share in it. It is the payoff for a well organized and professionally competent organization.

On Monday evening a young man entered a local dairy store, hit the teen-age girl in attendance on the head and robbed the place of $100. Less than 24 hours later, Lincoln police had arrested and charged a suspect in the crime.

It may all seem like a routine affair in the world of crime but such performance as that is never routine. An outstanding piece of work often looks routine simply because its accomplishment has demanded success.

It has demanded, in this case, a department with a good history of crime in this city and people who move in those circles. It has demanded the work of men well trained in the art of pursuing detail and finding meaning in the little things that might be overlooked by others.

This may or may not have been what police would describe as a difficult case. Perhaps it was not. Nor was it a particularly big case. No life was lost and the amount of money stolen was small.

But what was accomplished in such a short time was substantial and a testimonial to the effectiveness of Lincoln police. The people of Lincoln have cause to be thankful for the kind of Police Department they have.

Take Your Choice

Wednesday was annual Ground Hog day and we can report that, as usual, the nation got through it very well.

In this section of the country the groundhog saw his shadow which, according to custom, means 40 more days of winter. We doubt that he performed at all in upper New York state. With snowdrifts 20 feet deep it is doubtful that he could burrow his way to the surface in one day.

There were other places in the country where it was cloudy and hence no shadow. All we can make of this that the arrival of spring is going to be a spotty affair.

But we have other ways of being hopeful. February 2 is also Candlemas, an ancient church celebration of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin. There is a verse connected with it relating to the arrival of spring.

It goes this way:

If Candlemas Day be dry and fair
The half of winter's to come and mair;
If Candlemas Day be wet and foul
The half of winter's gone at Yule.

In this space age we have an even more dependable way of feeling that spring is almost here.

If you have received your seed catalogs you have already been transported into spring, no matter what the weather is outside.

Your dreams have turned to ageratum, to bedelias to the new and better varieties of dwarf zinnias, and your hands are itching to get into the warm soil.

Brother, that's spring.

Must Register

There are 10 counties in Nebraska this year which will undergo a change in political habits, or there will be a large number of their residents who will be ineligible to vote.

These counties are Adams, Buffalo, Dodge, Gage, Hall, Lincoln, Madison, Platte, Sarpy and Scotts Bluff.

This is because of a new law, LB471, by which the last legislature decreed that residents of counties with a population of 20,000 or more must register in order to participate in voting.

For years citizens of towns of 7,000 or more have had to sign the registration records. But in towns less than that, and in rural areas, no registration has been necessary. Indeed, in these latter areas a voter could wait until electon day and then call for the primary ballot of whichever party he wished at that moment. Not so in Nebraska cities. A person gets the primary ballot of the party of his registration. This permits less political flexiblity and tends to be an asset for whichever party happens to be in power.

Many reasons have been given for registration of voters. One is that where there are a large number of voters there must be safeguards against corrupt election practice. Registration guards against multiple voting—a thing that has not been considered necessary on the small town or township level for the reason that everyone knows everyone else and stuffing the ballot box is hard to do.

The new law will take a small measure of discretion away from the voter in the less populous areas, but its greatest threat is its newness. The man who through his lifetime has never been required to think of registering may think of it too late to vote in the coming primaries.

New HEW Head Is Well Thought Of

WASHINGTON — A group of congressmen came away from an off-the-record White House session the other evening convinced that LBJ had hit a ten strike when he picked John W. Gardner as his second newest cabinet member: secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The meeting was strictly private, but this column can report that Gardner went out of his way to invite criticism from Congress and got a response from Rep. Paul Rogers, Democrat from West Palm Beach, Fla., that he was making a study of new "organizational" problems as chairman of a special committee of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Chairman Harley Staggers, W.Va., new boss of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, came to Gardner's rescue. He told the new secretary of HEW that the committee would give him more time to get established before letting Rogers turn loose an investigation which the Florida congressman has been itching for some time to start. He has in mind digging into new medicines which may have been put on the market without sufficient testing, and other alleged derelictions on the part of the Food and Drug Administration, one of the agencies Gardner inherited.

The new HEW boss, however, appeared ready for the investigation. One of the chief purposes of his meeting at the White House was to introduce to members of Congress his aides: Harold Howe, new commissioner of Education; Dr. James Goddard, new boss of the Food and Drug Administration; Frank Keppel, assistant secretary of Health, and a few others. He also introduced his new under secretary, Wilbur Cohen, recently promoted from assistant.

Gardner talked at some length about his general philosophy. Congressmen were impressed with his ideas on education and his refreshing outlook on government.

As president of the Carnegie Corporation and in talking to his staff, the new secretary of HEW had expressed thoughtful views on education, some of which he repeated at the White House meeting.

"One of the reasons mature people stop learning is that they become less and less willing to risk failure," is one of Gardner's theories. "Much education today is monumentally ineffective. All too often we are giving young people cut flowers when we should be teaching them to grow their own plants. We are stuffing their heads with the products of earlier innovation, rather than teaching them how to innovate.

"We should drop the increasingly silly fiction that education is for youngsters, and devise many more arrangements for lifelong learning. Education is a lifelong process. Some people today seem to imagine that the chief function of education is to provide the student with a bag of tricks. The chief complaint of such people is that the schools are not teaching the tricks well enough — or are teaching mossy 19th century tricks when they should be teaching slick, 20th century tricks."

U.S. Wins No Medals As A Money Lender

NEW YORK — The next time you get a sharp note from the Friendly Shark Loan Company threatening to garnishee because you're three days overdue with a payment on your easy $300 loan, ask the guy why he doesn't do something about Armenia. That should shake him.

Armenia owes you (us) $27,391,079 interest on the $11,959,917 it borrowed during World War I. You might also suggest to the collector that he tap Prince Philip on the shoulder when his highship comes here next month, cough loudly, and say, "now about that $6,837,659,301 your folks owe us from the War To End All Wars. And don't try no monkey business like putting Canada in your wife's name."

Next time Russia sends a multi-million ruble ground-to-air rocket system to Hanoi, somebody should remind Brezhnev and Kosygin that they owe the Americans (against whom the rockets will be aimed) $640,680,535 from World War I, in which they chickened. If we present a bill to the Kremlin, discreetly stamped "overdue" we should also add the $117,612,052 still owed by the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes (Czechoslovakia), Estonia's $26,237,300, Latvia's $10,807,540, Hungary's $2,893,071, Lithuania's $9,636,135, Poland's $325,541,224 and Rumania's $77,133,610.

De Gaulle, who fought in World War I and therefore benefited in some slight way from American aid, doesn't make sounds today like a man who runs a country that still owes the U.S. $4,608,478,839. I happen to know that France has the money to pay. That's the exact sum I paid not long ago for a weekend at the Ritz.

We loaned $12,193,267,338 to 20 countries during World War I. Principal and interest due and unpaid as of the end of the last fiscal year $14,563,284,560.

Of the 20, three paid off. Liberia tapped us for a whopping $26,000, paid it back with $10,471 interest. Nicaragua hit us for $141,950, returned it and the $26,625 interest to boot. But the pre-Castro Cuba is the best job of all. It borrowed $10,000,000, returned it after a bit and Uncle Sam cleaned up $2,286,751 on the interest.

Italy, our ally in World War I, still owes us $1,005,083,409. It was cheaper to have them as enemies in the following world war.

JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 14-year-old girl and weigh 130 pounds. I want to lose weight but I just can't and I don't know why. My family and friends say I will lose weight when I get older. Is this true?—B.J.

You didn't tell me, young friend, how tall you are, so I can't estimate how much extra weight you have, but 130 pounds is too much for a girl of 14, and obviously you know that.

Dr. Molner

You are smart to start worrying about it now, instead of later. The longer you delay, the harder it is going to be to solve your problem. If you get your weight under control now, you'll probably be able to keep it at a correct level the rest of your life.

Why does one person get fat while another stays lean, yet they both seem to "eat the same amount"?

Well, let's say that 95 per cent of what you eat is used up in providing energy, and body heat, and growth. What happens to the other 5 per cent? It turns into fat.

Now let's suppose that another girl of your exact age and height eats 5 per cent less than you do. And SHE isn't fat at all. Her figure is fine. (Or maybe, at 14, a bit on the thin side, which is natural.)

Where is this difference of 5 per cent in what you eat? Does she avoid snacks, candy bars, pop? Does your family serve rather high-calorie foods (Gravy, fried foods, starchy foods, desserts) while hers serves foods that don't contain much fat? And maybe she doesn't care much about desserts, especially rich ones?

A difference of 5 per cent can make the difference between being fat or not fat.

Exercise also is important, because the more calories you use up in exercise, the fewer are left to make you fat. And the fatter a girl is, the less she feels like exercising.

If you can change your eating by 5 per cent, or even less, in total calories, you can stop gaining weight. If you can, for a year or two, cut down by 7 or even 6 per cent, you'll lose, gradually.

To do this, you have to know which foods are very fattening, or just average, or not very fattening. Some folks seem to know this automatically — or absorb the knowledge because they are brought up with the habit of avoiding high-calorie food.

Others have to learn the difference.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son was not able to breathe one day and could hardly make it home. The doctor took X-rays and said it was an air bubble on his lung. What is this; what causes it; is there a cure; is it serious? —MRS. S.B.

From what you tell me, I assume this to be a case of spontaneous pneumothorax. In plain language, a bleb (like a blister) near the surface of the lung breaks. This gap permits air in the lung to leak into the pleural space — the space between the lung and the chest wall.

If only a small amount of air leaks through, there isn't much trouble breathing. The little hole seals over. The air in the pleural space absorbs, and that's the end of the matter.

If more air gets into the pleural space, then that lung cannot expand. It may in some cases be necessary to insert a needle through the chest wall in order to withdraw the air from the pleural space and permit the lung to resume normal expansion.

Sudden shortness of breath, especially in young people, is the usual sign of this occurrence. There may be a momentary sharp pain. When there is serious interference with breathing, this can, of course, be frightening, yet in most cases it is not serious.

Usually, it happens only once, although it is possible for more than one attack to occur.

A cough or some similar strain usually precedes the breaking of the bleb.

Dear Dr. Molner: Wax accumulates in my ears to such a degree that I cannot hear. I have had it washed out three times in the last 10 years. What can I do to prevent wax from hardening in the ears?—P.B.

Wax is a normal secretion. When it accumulates too rapidly, I know of no prevention, but it is not too difficult to rinse out the excess. I'd suggest a rinsing once a year or thereabouts by your doctor. Then ask him for any procedure you may use between visits. A drop of warm sweet oil or olive oil, left overnight, will soften the wax. Then warm water, inserted with a rubber ear syringe, will wash out loosened wax. The important precaution is to let the water FLOW in and out; do not jam the syringe in so that it exerts pressure on the ear drum.

Of course this is important—but a Chihuahua, or any other kind of dog, isn't going to cure asthma. How this notion got started, I can't imagine. Asthma is a breathing difficulty caused by contact with something that irritates or over-sensitizes the tissues. Tell your husband, Mrs. K.B., that you've decided it's smarter to have a doctor start hunting for the cause of the asthma than to depend on a rumor, however popular, that a Chihuahua will cure anything.

Dr. Molner is interested in all the readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his columns, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Taxes

Lincoln, Neb.

In the letter from "Old Timer" about taxes, who does he think controls all the land besides the government and the wealthy?

We can't have small farmers any more with just enough land and livestock to keep their own families. They must own large amounts and lay aside part of it and be paid by the government more than they could earn from it by planting.

Yearly planting is a gamble to any farmer whether he gets anything from it or not. Don't worry about the man who makes big wages but has no property. He pays just as much income tax as the rest of us, according to his wages. Uncle Sam won't let him get by without it.

Paying taxes will never be the answer to feeding the world, but it does seem as if those who spend $35,000 and up on homes could give some of it for the needy. What do we care about fancy homes, two or three cars and such, just to impress others? I prefer a home in Paradise after all this old world is destroyed.

Body A Machine

Lincoln, Neb.

I vote 100% against liquor by the drink, and agree with the writer who signed himself "For A Clean City." All of us who have any age at all on us have known of families who went hungry and broken homes and other things, all because of liquor. If we "live and let live," we'll all lead a happier life, minus liquor in any way.

The way man cares for his body is fully dependent upon what and how often he eats, drinks and smokes. A person who takes good care of his body will be well much longer. It's just like taking good care of a machine, for that is what our body is. If one part breaks or goes bad, it affects the rest.

LINCOLNITE

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed

"I understand they had quite a robbery yesterday."

Fancy Over Fact

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

A young Creighton University golfer, Bob Mitera, said he has stopped telling people about his 444-yard hole in one because no one will believe him. The only believers are the rest of the foursome playing with him when the feat was accomplished and the foursome that was in front of them. They saw it so they believe it and Mitera has been nationally honored for the shot, a new world record.

The young man is experiencing something that he will see often throughout his life. What the facts might be and what people believe because they want to believe it are often two different things. Currently running in The Star is a series on the new educatonal service units established in the last session of the Legislature. Despite the facts, there are those who are convinced that the service units are the forerunner of school consolidation. The law, for instance, specifically states that "this act shall be supplemental to any other laws and shall not affect the reorganization of school districts."

Entrenched Belief

The districts are organizations of various counties for the purpose of providing supplementary educational services to local school districts. As one advocate of the plan explains, without local school districts, no services could be provided. Thus, the approach is not to do away with local school districts.

The opponents to the service unit plan have one point in their favor. The plan is a collective approach to a problem. It involves the coordination of effort over a large area in order to accomplish things that could not be accomplished by local school districts on their own. Obviously, school district reorganization involves exactly the same theory.

Aside from this common ground in theory or principle, however, opponents to the service unit idea are on pretty thin ice. If school district reorganization should be accelerated, it will not be the result of or through means of the educational service units. Rather, it would come simply because of the growing realization that this state's great number of small school districts are a serious handicap to the cause of education. What all this means is that the service units do not have anything to do with reorganization and those opposing them on the basis that they do are attempting to deny help to the very small districts they want to preserve.

The service unit backer who said that foes of district reorganization ought to be for the service units was absolutely correct. The fact is that the units could provide such assistance as to make the small school districts more acceptable for a longer period of time. The units would actually strengthen the small districts from an educational point of view and that is the only point of view of any consequence. It is only for the purpose of improved education for children that anyone wants to recognize. If this purpose is served through the service units, it weakens the need to achieve it through reorganization. Thus, it would be totally conceivable that the educators who want reorganization would oppose the service units. This would be one way of further crippling small school districts and adding fuel to the fire of reorganization.

It is to the credit of professional educators and others who advance the cause of the service units, knowing that such cases might well prolong the time of meaningful and widespread school district reorganization. They are motivated, not by any selfish or political interests, but by the welfare of the children of the state of Nebraska.

As much, unfortunately, cannot be said of the Lincoln School District which has voted to remain out of the service unit in its area. While it does not have much need for such a unit, it has a responsibility to the cause of education that would be served by its membership therein. With its level of professional achievement and by its example, it could have contributed much to the cause of education by staying in its proposed unit.

The action of the Lincoln district could prove embarrassing to it in the years ahead. That action will earn for it no plaudits on a statewide basis. It, therefore, will help the district none in matters before future sessions of the Legislature. The Lincoln district should have not displayed such a parochial attitude in its approach to this matter. In contrast, the Omaha School District which had no more to gain from the service units than did Lincoln has elected to stay in the unit that included it.

Omaha Stays In

No one is ever going to be right all the time nor can you expect to please all people in all things. There is a time, too, for compromise and a time to stand up and be counted. But it seems that there is often more of this kind of approach than warranted. There is often too little consideration of a problem in its full meaning and impact, too little effort made to find the total truth as opposed to what we like or what serves us best at the immediate moment.

Police Get Payoff

If the above headline doesn't grab you, nothing will. The headline could well be a bit misleading, however, as it does not refer to any illegal activities on the part of the Lincoln Police Department. In fact, quite the opposite is the case.

The Lincoln Police Department has gotten a payoff this week and the people of Lincoln share in it. It is the payoff for a well organized and professionally competent organization.

On Monday evening a young man entered a local dairy store, hit the teen-age girl in attendance on the head and robbed the place of $100. Less than 24 hours later, Lincoln police had arrested and charged a suspect in the crime.

It may all seem like a routine affair in the world of crime but such performance as that is never routine. An outstanding piece of work often looks routine simply because its accomplishment has demanded success.

It has demanded, in this case, a department with a good history of crime in this city and people who move in those circles. It has demanded the work of men well trained in the art of pursuing detail and finding meaning in the little things that might be overlooked by others.

This may or may not have been what police would describe as a difficult case. Perhaps it was not. Nor was it a particularly big case. No life was lost and the amount of money stolen was small.

But what was accomplished in such a short time was substantial and a testimonial to the effectiveness of Lincoln police. The people of Lincoln have cause to be thankful for the kind of Police Department they have.

Take Your Choice

Wednesday was annual Ground Hog day and we can report that, as usual, the nation got through it very well.

In this section of the country the groundhog saw his shadow which, according to custom, means 40 more days of winter. We doubt that he performed at all in upper New York state. With snowdrifts 20 feet deep it is doubtful that he could burrow his way to the surface in one day.

There were other places in the country where it was cloudy and hence no shadow. All we can make of this that the arrival of spring is going to be a spotty affair.

But we have other ways of being hopeful. February 2 is also Candlemas, an ancient church celebration of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin. There is a verse connected with it relating to the arrival of spring.

It goes this way:

If Candlemas Day be dry and fair
The half of winter's to come and mair;
If Candlemas Day be wet and foul
The half of winter's gone at Yule.

In this space age we have an even more dependable way of feeling that spring is almost here.

If you have received your seed catalogs you have already been transported into spring, no matter what the weather is outside.

Your dreams have turned to ageratum, to bedelias to the new and better varieties of dwarf zinnias, and your hands are itching to get into the warm soil.

Brother, that's spring.

Must Register

There are 10 counties in Nebraska this year which will undergo a change in political habits, or there will be a large number of their residents who will be ineligible to vote.

These counties are Adams, Buffalo, Dodge, Gage, Hall, Lincoln, Madison, Platte, Sarpy and Scotts Bluff.

This is because of a new law, LB471, by which the last legislature decreed that residents of counties with a population of 20,000 or more must register in order to participate in voting.

For years citizens of towns of 7,000 or more have had to sign the registration records. But in towns less than that, and in rural areas, no registration has been necessary. Indeed, in these latter areas a voter could wait until electon day and then call for the primary ballot of whichever party he wished at that moment. Not so in Nebraska cities. A person gets the primary ballot of the party of his registration. This permits less political flexiblity and tends to be an asset for whichever party happens to be in power.

Many reasons have been given for registration of voters. One is that where there are a large number of voters there must be safeguards against corrupt election practice. Registration guards against multiple voting—a thing that has not been considered necessary on the small town or township level for the reason that everyone knows everyone else and stuffing the ballot box is hard to do.

The new law will take a small measure of discretion away from the voter in the less populous areas, but its greatest threat is its newness. The man who through his lifetime has never been required to think of registering may think of it too late to vote in the coming primaries.

New HEW Head Is Well Thought Of

WASHINGTON — A group of congressmen came away from an off-the-record White House session the other evening convinced that LBJ had hit a ten strike when he picked John W. Gardner as his second newest cabinet member: secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The meeting was strictly private, but this column can report that Gardner went out of his way to invite criticism from Congress and got a response from Rep. Paul Rogers, Democrat from West Palm Beach, Fla., that he was making a study of new "organizational" problems as chairman of a special committee of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

Chairman Harley Staggers, W.Va., new boss of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, came to Gardner's rescue. He told the new secretary of HEW that the committee would give him more time to get established before letting Rogers turn loose an investigation which the Florida congressman has been itching for some time to start. He has in mind digging into new medicines which may have been put on the market without sufficient testing, and other alleged derelictions on the part of the Food and Drug Administration, one of the agencies Gardner inherited.

The new HEW boss, however, appeared ready for the investigation. One of the chief purposes of his meeting at the White House was to introduce to members of Congress his aides: Harold Howe, new commissioner of Education; Dr. James Goddard, new boss of the Food and Drug Administration; Frank Keppel, assistant secretary of Health, and a few others. He also introduced his new under secretary, Wilbur Cohen, recently promoted from assistant.

Gardner talked at some length about his general philosophy. Congressmen were impressed with his ideas on education and his refreshing outlook on government.

As president of the Carnegie Corporation and in talking to his staff, the new secretary of HEW had expressed thoughtful views on education, some of which he repeated at the White House meeting.

"One of the reasons mature people stop learning is that they become less and less willing to risk failure," is one of Gardner's theories. "Much education today is monumentally ineffective. All too often we are giving young people cut flowers when we should be teaching them to grow their own plants. We are stuffing their heads with the products of earlier innovation, rather than teaching them how to innovate.

"We should drop the increasingly silly fiction that education is for youngsters, and devise many more arrangements for lifelong learning. Education is a lifelong process. Some people today seem to imagine that the chief function of education is to provide the student with a bag of tricks. The chief complaint of such people is that the schools are not teaching the tricks well enough — or are teaching mossy 19th century tricks when they should be teaching slick, 20th century tricks."

U.S. Wins No Medals As A Money Lender

NEW YORK — The next time you get a sharp note from the Friendly Shark Loan Company threatening to garnishee because you're three days overdue with a payment on your easy $300 loan, ask the guy why he doesn't do something about Armenia. That should shake him.

Armenia owes you (us) $27,391,079 interest on the $11,959,917 it borrowed during World War I. You might also suggest to the collector that he tap Prince Philip on the shoulder when his highship comes here next month, cough loudly, and say, "now about that $6,837,659,301 your folks owe us from the War To End All Wars. And don't try no monkey business like putting Canada in your wife's name."

Next time Russia sends a multi-million ruble ground-to-air rocket system to Hanoi, somebody should remind Brezhnev and Kosygin that they owe the Americans (against whom the rockets will be aimed) $640,680,535 from World War I, in which they chickened. If we present a bill to the Kremlin, discreetly stamped "overdue" we should also add the $117,612,052 still owed by the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes (Czechoslovakia), Estonia's $26,237,300, Latvia's $10,807,540, Hungary's $2,893,071, Lithuania's $9,636,135, Poland's $325,541,224 and Rumania's $77,133,610.

De Gaulle, who fought in World War I and therefore benefited in some slight way from American aid, doesn't make sounds today like a man who runs a country that still owes the U.S. $4,683,478,839. I happen to know that France has the money to pay. That's the exact sum I paid not long ago for a weekend at the Ritz.

We loaned $12,193,267,338 to 20 countries during World War I. Principal and interest due and unpaid as of the end of the last fiscal year $14,563,284,560.

Of the 20, three paid off. Liberia tapped us for a whopping $26,000, paid it back with $10,471 interest. Nicaragua hit us for $141,950, returned it and the $26,625 interest to boot. But the pre-Castro Cuba is the best job of all. It borrowed $10,000,000, returned it after a bit and Uncle Sam cleaned up $2,286,751 on the interest.

Italy, our ally in World War I, still owes us $1,005,083,409. It was cheaper to have them as enemies in the following world war.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 14-year-old girl and weigh 130 pounds. I want to lose weight but I just can't and I don't know why. My family and friends say I will lose weight when I get older. Is this true?—B.J.

You didn't tell me, young friend, how tall you are, so I can't estimate how much extra weight you have, but 130 pounds is too much for a girl of 14, and obviously you know that.

Dr. Molner

You are smart to start worrying about it now, instead of later. The longer you delay, the harder it is going to be to solve your problem. If you get your weight under control now, you'll probably be able to keep it at a correct level the rest of your life.

Why does one person get fat while another stays lean, yet they both seem to "eat the same amount"?

Well, let's say that 95 per cent of what you eat is used up in providing energy, and body heat, and growth. What happens to the other 5 per cent? It turns into fat.

Now let's suppose that another girl of your exact age and height eats 5 per cent less than you do. And SHE isn't fat at all. Her figure is fine. (Or maybe, at 14, a bit on the thin side, which is natural.)

Where is this difference of 5 per cent in what you eat? Does she avoid snacks, candy bars, pop? Does your family serve rather high-calorie foods (Gravy, fried foods, starchy foods, desserts) while hers serves foods that don't contain much fat? And maybe she doesn't care much about desserts, especially rich ones?

A difference of 5 per cent can make the difference between being fat or not fat.

One of the real actors is a temperamental ocelot with a beautiful tawny coat of fur, who was born at the zoo in May, 1965. He weighed 11 ounces and now tips the scales at nearly 10 pounds.

There is a honey bear, a boa-constrictor whose six-foot length compares to his weight, a native of Central and South America, and also Mexico. It requires food only every six months, but the one in "The Ark" eats once a week.

The five acres that constitute the Children's Zoo will be added to by people interested in children. There is a wealth of interest there, and an education never to be found in books.

Taxes

Lincoln, Neb.

In the letter from "Old Timer" about taxes, who does he think controls all the land besides the government and the wealthy?

We can't have small farmers any more with just enough land and livestock to keep their own families. They must own large amounts and lay aside part of it and be paid by the government more than they could earn from it by planting.

Yearly planting is a gamble to any farmer whether he gets anything from it or not. Don't worry about the man who makes big wages but has no property. He pays just as much income tax as the rest of us, according to his wages. Uncle Sam won't let him get by without it.

Paying taxes will never be the answer to feeding the world, but it does seem as if those who spend $35,000 and up on homes could give some of it for the needy. What do we care about fancy homes, two or three cars and such, just to impress others? I prefer a home in Paradise after all this old world is destroyed.

Body A Machine

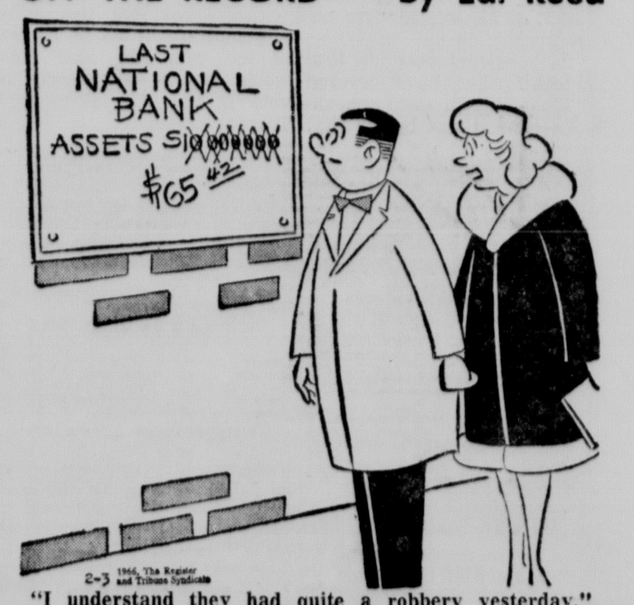

Lincoln, Neb.

I vote 100% against liquor by the drink, and agree with the writer who signed himself "For A Clean City." All of us who have any age at all on us have known of families who went hungry and broken homes and other things, all because of liquor. If we "live and let live," we'll all lead a happier life, minus liquor in any way.

The way man cares for his body is fully dependent upon what and how often he eats, drinks and smokes. A person who takes good care of his body will be well much longer. It's just like taking good care of a machine, for that is what our body is. If one part breaks or goes bad, it affects the rest.

Advertising Man Finds Writing Key To Successful Retirement

By ROBERT PETERSON

Skeptics say that if you've never written a book before retiring, you'll never write one. But Joe Hanson, 73, of South Orange, N.J., has flipped this fable into discard by writing not one but two books since retiring at 65 from half a century in the advertising business.

"I'm blessed with ten grandchildren and over the years concocted hundreds of stories for them," Hanson told me. He's a fine looking, white-haired man with horn-rimmed glasses.

"Following retirement I decided to expand some of these stories. That's how my first book, "Grandfather Todd of Old Cape Cod" came into being.

"I'd heard how difficult it was to get a book published. But when my manuscript was ready it was accepted by the first publisher who saw it.

"I wasn't quite so lucky with my second book "Hong Kong Altar Boy." It's a story of high adventure and self-sacrifice on the part of a Chinese boy born to a smuggler.

"I felt it would be snapped up right away. But I had to take it to 10 different publishers before finding one who saw its possibilities. Today it's the best-selling juvenile book on the list of Bruce Publishers."

Is he planning additional books? "Oh, yes, several of them. I'm at my desk six hours a day. Having something specific to do that you genuinely enjoy is the key to successful retirement."

Is retirement as satisfying as he had hoped? "Much more so. I used to wonder how I'd adjust. But with my daily writing stint, plus church and civic activities, travel and time spent with our children and grandchildren, I find retirement much more stimulating than the humdrum routine of bygone business days."

On several occasions I've heard a radio commercial, sponsored by the phone company, that says housewives can save 76 miles of walking a year by installing an extension phone.

Famed heart specialist Dr. Paul D. White has heard it, too, and he's not impressed. In a recent article he questions whether housewives should deliberately deprive themselves of the splendid exercise they derive from present routines.

"The housewives might do better to preserve this opportunity for daily, moderate exertion," writes Dr. White. "The physical activity involved in walking to the phone and performing household duties fosters good muscle tone and circulation, and helps one control weight. It's the most beneficial kind of exercise for the heart, arteries and general health, and may conceivably be one of the reasons why the housewife currently outlives her mate, the underexercised businessman."

On-Job Service Station Training Set By March If Contract Okayed

On-the-job training for service station attendants is expected to be under way in Nebraska by March 1 if a contract completed Wednesday is apprvoed by the Manpower Development and Training program, it was announced here.

George L. Watters executive secretary of the Nebraska Petroleum Marketers, Inc. which is sponsoring the training project, reported that the contract with Manpower and the Bureau of Apprenticeship Training calls for slightly more than $125,000 to train a minimum of 320 persons in the next year.

The program, conceived at the beginning of a similiar project conducted at the Kearney Boys Training School, will enroll persons after they are hired by service stations that participate in the Petroleum Marketers program.

Will Already Hold Jobs

Fifty per cent of the enrollees will already hold service station jobs and be seeking training to upgrade their work, while the other 50% will be placed in service station job by the State Employment Agency and then enrolled in the program, Watters said.

The project, including enrollee's wages, is paid for entirely by the federal government, he reported, although service stations will provide a great deal of the administration and supervision.

The proposal provides for a state coordinator and eight instructors, Watters explained. Each instructor will conduct four [illegible]essions of 10 weeks each.

"Most of the [illegible] will be on-the-job," Watters said. He said that instructors will move constantly to "personally supervise enrollees." Six hours a week will be spent in classroom sessions.

Watters indicated that the service station training will be offered in "at least eight Nebraska cities," although the locations have not been designated.

Model Contract

"Nebraska's contract is considered the model contract," Watters said. Eleven other states will have similar contracts for training programs with the petroleum groups as sponsors, he said.

The project, which Watters reported has tentative Washington approval, will be aimed at "upgrading the lowest person at a service station — the driveway salesman." Techniques for selling products, servicing cars and meeting the public are expected to be taught.

In future programs, Watters said, the Petroleum Marketers are considering offering courses in specialized skills and mechanical training.

Anti-Smoking Campaign Will Be Mapped At Feb. 18 Meeting Here

A meeting will be held at the Nebraska Center Feb. 18 to discuss details of a campaign to discourage Nebraskans from smoking.

Dr. E. A. Rogers, state health director, said it will be preliminary to a statewide conference this spring.

He said the anti-smoking drive is headed by Dr. Leo T. Heywood of Omaha, president of the State Division of the American Cancer Society, and is aimed at both youngsters and adults.

Attending the meeting will be representatives of the Nebraska Dental Association, University of Nebraska College of Medicine, Nebraska Tuberculosis Association, Eppley Cancer Institute and Lancaster County Tuberculosis Association.

Lincoln Company Has Low Bid On Electric Signs

State Display Neon Co. of Lincoln was apparent low bidder Wednesday to supply city electric utility signs at five locations.

The low bid was $3,433, compared with Lincoln Neon Sign Co., Inc., $3,730; Ed's Signs, $3,994 and Nebraska Neon Sign Co., $4,111.

The signs will be installed at 1401 O, 3945 So. 48th, 6129 Havelock, 9th and L and 9th and K—all city utilities billing or warehouse locations.

The only other bid received by the city was on a truck for the water department.

Apparent low bidder was Cornhusker GMC Truck Co. at $1,270, followed by O'Shea-Rogers, $1,483; DeBrown Auto Sales, $1,486, and International Harvester Co., $1,329.

Chicago Firm Checks Lincoln As Plant Site

Representatives of a Chicago engineering company were in Lincoln Wednesday viewing possible sites for a new electronics assembly plant.

The group was headed by M. E. Prichard, vice president for operations of the C. P. Clare & Co. of Chicago.

Hosting the visiting delegation were Lincoln Chamber of Commerce officials.

Prichard has earlier said the size of the proposed plant and the product it would manufacture have not been decided.

Lincoln is being considered because of its proximity to Chicago, its air service, a stable labor supply, the University of Nebraska and the city's "reputation as a stable community," he said.

State's Smokers Coughed Up More Taxes In January

Nebraska cigarette smokers coughed up more taxes in January than a year ago, but smoked fewer cigarettes.

The state tax commissioner's office reported Wednesday cigarette tax receipts totalled $951,153 for the month, representing an increase of $207,874 from a year ago.

However, the tax office said, 12,431,000 packages of cigarettes were stamped during January, a decrease of 644,000 packages from the previous January.

A tax increase from six to eight cents a pack by the 1965 Legislature accounted for the revenue gain, a spokesman said.

Murmansk Frozen

Moscow (AP)—It was 36 degrees below zero in the northern port of Murmansk and the usually ice-free bay was covered with eight inches of ice, Tass news agency said. The bay is warmed by the Gulf Stream and Tass said old timers never before had seen ships locked in ice.

Dr. Osborne Of Norfolk Is Offered Hastings Hospital Job

State Institutions Director George Morris reported Wednesday he has offered the Hastings State Mental Hospital superintendent's post to Dr. Robert G. Osborne of Norfolk.

Dr. Osborne is clinical director at the Norfolk State Hospital. He said he has not made up his mind yet.

The Hastings superintendency has been vacant since last summer when Dr. Finn Lunde resigned.

Morris said Dr. Osborne is "highly qualified" for the post and would help attract needed staff members to the hospital.

Norfolk Hospital Director Dr. Charles J. Ingham said Dr. Osborne would "make an outstanding director for Hastings." He said he would be hard to replace as clinical director.

Now only the Norfolk hospital has a clinical director.

Morris noted that the state is seeking to re-accredit the Hastings hospital and that adding Dr. Osborne to the staff would be a helpful move in this direction.

Hosting the visiting delegation were Lincoln Chamber of Commerce officials.

Prichard has earlier said the size of the proposed plant and the product it would manufacture have not been decided.

Lincoln is being considered because of its proximity to Chicago, its air service, a stable labor supply, the University of Nebraska and the city's "reputation as a stable community," he said.

SECRETIVE SAUSAGE MAKER

Earl Mugele Jr. holds a sausage containing the 105-year-old German recipe that no one knows—including the St. Louis health authorities. Earl and his father will probably go to court to keep family sausage-making secrets from the board of public service which voted to revoke the Mugeles' store wholesale permit. Dr. J. Earl Smith, city health commissioner, says the Mugeles haven't complied with the ordinance. Earl Jr. says, "Dr. Smith wouldn't know a good sausage if he ate one."

State's Smokers Coughed Up More Taxes In January

Nebraska cigarette smokers coughed up more taxes in January than a year ago, but smoked fewer cigarettes.

The state tax commissioner's office reported Wednesday cigarette tax receipts totalled $951,153 for the month, representing an increase of $207,874 from a year ago.

However, the tax office said, 12,431,000 packages of cigarettes were stamped during January, a decrease of 644,000 packages from the previous January.

A tax increase from six to eight cents a pack by the 1965 Legislature accounted for the revenue gain, a spokesman said.

Murmansk Frozen

Moscow (AP)—It was 36 degrees below zero in the northern port of Murmansk and the usually ice-free bay was covered with eight inches of ice, Tass news agency said. The bay is warmed by the Gulf Stream and Tass said old timers never before had seen ships locked in ice.

Dr. Osborne Of Norfolk Is Offered Hastings Hospital Job

State Institutions Director George Morris reported Wednesday he has offered the Hastings State Mental Hospital superintendent's post to Dr. Robert G. Osborne of Norfolk.

Dr. Osborne is clinical director at the Norfolk State Hospital. He said he has not made up his mind yet.

The Hastings superintendency has been vacant since last summer when Dr. Finn Lunde resigned.

Morris said Dr. Osborne is "highly qualified" for the post and would help attract needed staff members to the hospital.

Norfolk Hospital Director Dr. Charles J. Ingham said Dr. Osborne would "make an outstanding director for Hastings." He said he would be hard to replace as clinical director.

Now only the Norfolk hospital has a clinical director.

Morris noted that the state is seeking to re-accredit the Hastings hospital and that adding Dr. Osborne to the staff would be a helpful move in this direction.

Kosygin: Spare Nations Without Nuclear Arms

Moscow (AP)—Premier Alexei N. Kosygin called Wednesday night for a ban on use of nuclear weapons against countries without such weapons on their territory.

Western diplomatic sources said the proposal is new and represents a Soviet attempt to win more support for a treaty against proliferation (spreading) of nuclear weapons.

Presumably, it could also be aimed at forbidding the United States to use such weapons in wars like Viet Nam. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, said in December that use of atomic weapons by the United States in Viet Nam was "inconceivable" and had not even been considered.

Brief Viet Comment

Kosygin's statement, a long policy message to the disarmament conference in Geneva, contained only a brief reference to Viet Nam, saying "aggression against Viet Nam is aggression against all countries and people who are upholding their freedom and independence."

The new round of the 17-nation disarmament conference in Geneva opened Jan. 27. At that time Presient Johnson in a message proposed a sweeping plan for nuclear disarmament. Pope Paul VI also sent a message to the opening session pleading for "positive and concrete results."

Western sources said Kasygin's message repeated known Soviet positions with one exception, which was presented as follows:

"With the object of facilitating an understanding on the conclusion of a (nonproliferation) treaty, the Soviet government expresses its readiness to insert into the draft treaty an article on forbidding the use of nuclear weapons against non-nuclear states, parties to the treaty, which have no nuclear weapons on their territory."

Indian Suggestion

Some such proviso had been suggested by non-nuclear powers, including India, as a guarantee of their security if they agreed not to try to acquire nuclear weapons.

Kosygin's proposal came after indications from Geneva that the Soviet Union is seriously bent on getting a nonproliferation treaty. The new collective leadership that succeeded Nikita S. Khrushchev has shown interest in playing a peacekeeping role.

Among the Soviet offers Kosygin repeated in his message was one not to be first to use nuclear weapons, providing other nuclear powers would make the same commitment.

The premier also voiced again the Soviet refusal to allow international inspections to police a ban on underground nuclear testing. This has blocked extension of the 1963 nuclear test ban to include underground explosions.

IT HAD GREAT APPEAL

Radcliffe College's Linda McVeigh, first female managing editor of the Harvard Crimson, cooked up some Viennese veal for John Rothchild, managing editor of the Yale Daily News. He'd said 19-year-old Linda's election to the Crimson post was evidence modern women had lost their feminine charms. After dinner, Rothchild, 20, admitted, "Linda's femininity has great appeal," even though "the beans were frozen."

Soviet People Are Told Better Life Has Come

Moscow (AP) — The Soviet government told its 232 million people Wednesday they are getting some of the long-promised better life.

Production of consumer goods has accelerated rapidly in recent years and average incomes have risen, according to a report on 1965 by the central statistical board.

It said the nation's 77 million nonagricultural workers earned an average of 95 rubles ($105.55) a month, up five rubles ($5.55) from 1964 and was exactly double the 1946 figure.

Counting bonuses and such social services as free medical care, the real average income of factory, office and commercial workers was 128 rubles ($142.22) a month last year, the report said.

Earnings in the United States are almost as much per week as the Soviet monthly figures. But differing conditions make direct comparisons difficult and for the Russian people the important thing has been their progress upward.

Production of consumer goods in 1965 was listed as 8.5% above 1964. In 1963 the gain had only been 3% over 1962, and in 1964 the increase over 1963 was 5.1%.

The increasing rate of consumer goods production meant that promises made by former Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and renewed with greater emphasis by his successor, Alexei N. Kosygin, were being at least partially kept.

Housing construction, a continual weak point here, failed to meet the 1965 target but the report showed an increase over 1964.

The major failure admitted in the report was in grain production. Drought dropped it from 152.1 million metric tons in 1964 to 120.5 million in 1965.

The report said steps have been taken to insure grain supplies. It did not explain that some 9.5 million tons of wheat are being imported.

Jury Trials Switch Being Tried Here

A change in the handling of jury trial cases in Lancaster District Court, recommended by the Lincoln Bar Association, was implemented on an experimental basis this week.

The procedure is to notify attorneys three days prior to the court call to eliminate unprepared cases being placed on the trial list.

Under the procedure, cases further down than 60th on the list of pending cases will not be called for trial without agreement of the parties involved.

The change is the result of attorneys complaints that they are not given sufficient notice to prepare cases for trial which have been placed on the trial list.

OLD SCHOOL TIES HELP INDIA-PAKISTANI PEACE

With Indian troops in Pakistan (AP)— Old school ties are helping to smooth the pullback of Indian and Pakistan troops from border areas where they fought a war in September.

Lt. Gen. P. O. Dunn of the Indian army sat in his headquarters Wednesday at Jammu, in Kashmir, and talked about the school ties of Britain and old British India.

"Indian and Pakistan army commanders at the border were old classfellows, either at Sandhurst or Dehra Dun Military Academies, and our old school ties are standing us in good stead now,'" he said

"There is no ill will de-tween us and we met as long-lost friends. We talk the same language, eat the same food and feel the same way as soldiers.

"There is no chance of a hitch occurring when we are determined to carry out the Tashkent agreement in letter and spirit."

The Tashkent agreement was signed by Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India and President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan Jan. 10 a few hours before Shastri died of a heart attack in the Soviet city.

It envisaged the withdrawal of Indian and Pakistani armies to 1,000 yards of either side of the border by Jan. 30, the completion of dismantling defense posts in another three weeks, and complete withdrawal by Feb. 25.

Regular Meetings On Schools Sought

. . . BY ADVISORY GROUP

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Citizens Advisory Committee members Wednesday moved to seek meetings with the Lincoln Board of Education "at specific intervals to discuss common problems" in an effort to improve communication between school patrons and the policy-makers.

School Board members met with the advisory committee soon after it started, but it was felt that regular contact among the citizens organization, the School Board and the executive committee of the Lincoln Area Council of PTA would be beneficial.

It was suggested that a School Board committee to deal with the advisory group might be proposed instead of asking that the entire board attend each meeting.

Mrs. Thyra Monroe, director of the school food service, who met with the advisory committee to discuss the lunch program and new policies, reported that "now that I have control of internal operations, I can program the outer workings better."

Difficult To Control

But, she said, it is difficult to control without enforcement. Lincoln's food service does not have the personnel to supervise management of dining rooms, cafeterias—including 375 employes — and preparation of food, she said.

Committee members informally endorsed her reported need for at least three supervisors, which, she said, have been requested from numerous administrative officials.

These supervisors, she added, need to have dietetic training and enough authority to enforce uniform menus and recipes in all schools.

Mrs. Monroe refused to answer any questions concerning the new foods warehouse or food buying policies, explaining that these were the domain of the purchasing department. In other phases of the food service, which Mrs. Monroe predicted would grow 25% in the next 10 years, she reported:

—All junior and senior high schools, except Dawes, have cafeteria systems, and "if parents want a cafeteria system there (Dawes), we're willing to put it in."

—Participation in the meal ticket system (purchase of a $1.35 card for five meals) has amounted to 73%. The system was initiated "to get rid of excessive labor costs for handling money," she said.

Single Meals Too

However, it was pointed out, the cards can be purchased every day for single meals which cost 30 cents.

—Master cycle menus to provide uniformity for all schools were distributed Tuesday in an effort to control the quality of food offered.

—Some 12,323 free lunches have been given to students from Sept. 13, 1965 to Dec. 31, 1965.

—Nutrition study should be included in the curriculum, as well as "encouraging nutritional education at home."

Dr. Julius Humann, director of guidance, pupil accounting and special education, also appeared to explain the school policy concerning attendance for married and unmarried boys and girls of school age.

A parent had criticized what was called a "double standard" of letting students return to school after a pregnancy or paternity if they did not marry, but did not allow them to return if they did marry, according to Committee Chairman Dr. Milton Evans.

Only One Call

Humann, who said he had had only one call in five years concerning the policy determined by a citizens group of PTA and social agency representatives, ministers, and school officials, indicated he felt the policy was satisfactory. He said it seems to be the "most reasonable for all kids concerned."

Married students are required to enroll in the Adult High School, while unmarried girls and boys who are involved in paternity or pregnancy are withdrawn from school when pregnancy is determined. The unmarried students may re-enter school upon "recommendation of the director of guidance," Humann said.

's 'Carmen' Excites Opening-Night Crowd

By RUTH ARDIS

Opening night Wednesday for the University of Nebraska's presentation of "Carman" found the capacity crowd at Howell Theater caught in the excitement of a fine performance of this popular work.

Emanuel Wishnow conducted, with Director John Zei and Musical Director Richard Grace assisting.

Few operas possess the universal appeal of this one in which the conflict of love, hate, fate, and death are interwoven into a drama of great realism, set to the splendor of Bizet's music.

Interest Growing

Interest in opera in Lincoln has grown year after year until the four performances given by the group do not begin to take care of the number wishing to hear it. Although Wednesday was the first regular night of the opera, a sell-out crowd had witnessed the dress rehearsal on Tuesday. It seems that other provisions need to be made in future years to take care of those interested in hearing the consistently fine performances given by the Music Department of the University.

The casting was admirable, with all roles sung by students of the department. The four leading roles are sung by a double cast on alternate nights. Wednesday and Friday night's cast includes Rosella Lange as Carmen; Don Canady as Don Jose; Mark Gruett as Escamillo; and Loveday Bellsle in the role of Micaela. Janet Payne, Willard Marquardt, Wilmer Wall, and Carole Petersen will be featured on Thursday and Saturday.

Mark Gruett gave special vitality to his role of the famous bullfighter, singing with power and resonance. Each of the soloists gave a convincing performance, both vocally and dramatically. Two other members of the cast — Sally Arneson and Joan Brannigan —also deserve special recognition.

Dimension

The sets designed by Charles Howard prompted enthusiastic approval from the audience. Howard's imaginative and colorful use of the limited space lent dimension to the necessarily cramped staging. The excellent lighting facilities of the theater enhanced the dramatic effect. John Oblak served as technical director of the opera.

The chorus sang with enthusiasm and gave a colorful background of realism to the scenes. In addition to the singers from the University, several members of the Lincoln Boys' Choir were cast as street urchins.

The vocal parts were well supported by a choice instrumental group, although lack of proper pit facilities makes it difficult to obtain a proper balance with the soloists.

JFK Secretary O'Donnell Runs For Governor

Boston (UPI) — Democrat Kenneth P. O'Donnell formally declared his candidacy for Massachusetts governor Wednesday and pledged he would run the state in much the same manner his former boss—the late President John F. Kennedy—ran the nation.

O'Donnell, appointment secretary for Kennedy during his White House term made numerous references to the late president at a news conference.

O'Donnell, billing himself as a new face in the Democratic Party, said he would carry the campaign to the primary even if his party rejected him at the state convention here June 11.

Washington (AP) — A House committee complained Wednesday that the Air Force, focusing on accomplishments "in the wild blue yonder, has ignored the foot soldiers in the dirty brown under."

Regular Meetings On Schools Sought

. . . BY ADVISORY GROUP

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Citizens Advisory Committee members Wednesday moved to seek meetings with the Lincoln Board of Education "at specific intervals to discuss common problems" in an effort to improve communication between school patrons and the policy-makers.

School Board members met with the advisory committee soon after it started, but it was felt that regular contact among the citizens organization, the School Board and the executive committee of the Lincoln Area Council of PTA would be beneficial.

It was suggested that a School Board committee to deal with the advisory group might be proposed instead of asking that the entire board attend each meeting.

Mrs. Thyra Monroe, director of the school food service, who met with the advisory committee to discuss the lunch program and new policies, reported that "now that I have control of internal operations, I can program the outer workings better."

Difficult To Control

But, she said, it is difficult to control without enforcement. Lincoln's food service does not have the personnel to supervise management of dining rooms, cafeterias—including 375 employes — and preparation of food, she said.

Committee members informally endorsed her reported need for at least three supervisors, which, she said, have been requested from numerous administrative officials.

These supervisors, she added, need to have dietetic training and enough authority to enforce uniform menus and recipes in all schools.

Mrs. Monroe refused to answer any questions concerning the new foods warehouse or food buying policies, explaining that these were the domain of the purchasing department. In other phases of the food service, which Mrs. Monroe predicted would grow 25% in the next 10 years, she reported:

—All junior and senior high schools, except Dawes, have cafeteria systems, and "if parents want a cafeteria system there (Dawes), we're willing to put it in."

—Participation in the meal ticket system (purchase of a $1.35 card for five meals) has amounted to 73%. The system was initiated "to get rid of excessive labor costs for handling money," she said.

Single Meals Too

However, it was pointed out, the cards can be purchased every day for single meals which cost 30 cents.

—Master cycle menus to provide uniformity for all schools were distributed Tuesday in an effort to control the quality of food offered.

—Some 12,323 free lunches have been given to students from Sept. 13, 1965 to Dec. 31, 1965.

—Nutrition study should be included in the curriculum, as well as "encouraging nutritional education at home."

Dr. Julius Humann, director of guidance, pupil accounting and special education, also appeared to explain the school policy concerning attendance for married and unmarried boys and girls of school age.

A parent had criticized what was called a "double standard" of letting students return to school after a pregnancy or paternity if they did not marry, but did not allow them to return if they did marry, according to Committee Chairman Dr. Milton Evans.

Only One Call

Humann, who said he had had only one call in five years concerning the policy determined by a citizens group of PTA and social agency representatives, ministers, and school officials, indicated he felt the policy was satisfactory. He said it seems to be the "most reasonable for all kids concerned."

Married students are required to enroll in the Adult High School, while unmarried girls and boys who are involved in paternity or pregnancy are withdrawn from school when pregnancy is determined. The unmarried students may re-enter school upon "recommendation of the director of guidance," Humann said.

House Says Klan Group In Contempt

Washington (AP) — The House voted overwhelmingly Wednesday for contempt of Congress citations against the imperial wizard of the United Klans of America, Robert M. Shelton, and six of his grand dragons and other state leaders.

Most of what opposition there was came from liberals, who while expressing distaste for the Ku Klux Klan said they questioned the propriety of the process.

This is the same group which consistently votes against funds for the House Un-American Activities Committee which brought the contempt citations of the Klan leaders before the House.

At Wednesday's hearing before the committee, John E. Thornhill, 57, a farmer and oil man from McComb, Miss., testified he got out of the Klan after several Negro churches were burned, and people thought he was involved. Thornhill, who said he made millions of dollars leasing oil rights from Mississippians, told the committee he did not approve of bombings and burnings.

The House liberals were joined by a conservative Republican from Missouri, Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, who wanted the contempt citations referred to a special select committee to rule on the sufficiency of the evidence. His motion lost on a roll call vote of 307-57.

The citations now go to the Justice Department for presentation to a federal grand jury.

They were cited for refusing to turn over to the committee Klan documents subpoenaed from them as Klan officials. They pleaded the First, Fourth, Fifth and 14th Amendments in refusing to do so.

They were not held liable for refusing to answer the committee's questions, since the committee regards the Fifth Amendment ban on self-incrimination as proper grounds for declining to answer.

Shelton Denounces

Shelton denounced the committee as "un-Christian and un-American itself," and said its staff's investigation of the Klan had been conducted in bars and night clubs.

Speaking for the liberals, Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said the committee's subpoena was broad enough to be construed as calling on the Klan to produce its membership lists. He said the Supreme Court has ruled, in a case involving the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, that this violates the First Amendment protecting the right of free assembly.

"That the private organization involved here, the KKK, is unpopular, even hated by the great majority of people, is immaterial," Edwards said. "First Amendment protections must be accorded to the ideas and organizations we hate, or sooner or later they will be denied to organizations and ideas we cherish."

Curtis said that since 1950, 129 contempt citations have come from the committee on un-American activities, and he said only 9 of these resulted in convictions.

AMC Head Predicts New Sales Surge

Detroit (AP) — Despite a 13% drop in first quarter auto sales, American Motors Corp. made over $4 million during the period and was expected to overcome the sales lag soon, the auto firm's president said Wednesday.

Shareholders also were cheered by the firm's largest single stock holder who had words of praise for AMC's top management.

Robert D. Evans, Detroit industrialist-sportsman who bought over 200,000 shares of AMC stock in recent weeks, told a stockholders meeting that he had "complete confidence in the present management of AMC."

The lively two hour meeting was held against the backdrop of a first quarter financial report which showed that the firm, which lost over $13 million in the previous fiscal quarter, made over $4 million in the period ended last Dec. 31.

That profit figure, however, was well below the $9.5 million earned in the opening quarter of the last fiscal year.

After the meeting, AMC's board of directors voted to pass a dividend for the second consecutive quarter.

Local Group Aims To Form State ACLU

Eight local members of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) were appointed at a Wednesday night meeting of the ACLU to take steps towards establishing a Nebraska chapter of the ACLU.

Selected by the 75 ACLU members at the meeting were David Levine, Warren Caldwell, Robert Narveson, Rev. Charles Stephen, Nicholas Babchuk, Jacqueline Herman, Louis Crompton and Patrick Healey.

The group of eight was empowered to write bylaws for a potential Nebraska ACLU chapter and to get further information from the national ACLU on how to set up a chapter.

Eventually the committee hopes to petition the national ACLU for permission to establish a Nebraska chapter.

Local Group Aims To Form State ACLU

Eight local members of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) were appointed at a Wednesday night meeting of the ACLU to take steps towards establishing a Nebraska chapter of the ACLU.

Selected by the 75 ACLU members at the meeting were David Levine, Warren Caldwell, Robert Narveson, Rev. Charles Stephen, Nicholas Babchuk, Jacqueline Herman, Louis Crompton and Patrick Healey.

The group of eight was empowered to write bylaws for a potential Nebraska ACLU chapter and to get further information from the national ACLU on how to set up a chapter.

Eventually the committee hopes to petition the national ACLU for permission to establish a Nebraska chapter.

NASON ON EDUCATION:

Failing Student May Need More Than Tutor

By DR. LESLIE J. NASON

High school and college students from Maine to California often volunteer their services as tutors for pupils who find the going a little rough. They provide individual help and encouragement not otherwise possible in our crowded schools.

These volunteers are ready, willing and usually capable of helping a child with his current schoolwork. In many cases, however, it requires a careful study by a trained counselor to determine the kind of help which could solve the pupil's problem once and for all and make it possible for him to compete successfully on his own in the classroom.

This study should include a child's cumulative records, his past and present home environment, and his present deficiencies.

John was tutored to catch up in arithmetic in the fifth grade and again in the sixth. But not until a counselor made a thorough study of his development in arithmetic from the beginning was it realized that he had failed to learn his multiplication tables.

A volunteer helped John master the tables through the use of Flash Cards. He was then carried through a rapid review of the fourth and fifth grade arithmetic. From this point on, John maintained satisfactory performance in his arithmetic classes, needing no more tutoring.

Pedro had made high grades in art, music and science and above-average grades in mathematics. But only through dint of great efforts had he been able to achieve passing grades in English. His verbal I.Q. was 20 points below his overall I.Q.

Pedro was on the verge of failing seventh grade English when, through a study of his history, it was realized that he had not had an adequate opportunity to gain facility in the use of English. His home was bilingual, and the English spoken was not sufficiently accurate.

Rather than requiring tutoring in present assignments, Pedro needed someone to spend hours talking with him, giving him an opportunity to develop a facility in the use of English.

Volunteers should be used to help students make permanent gains. But only after individual programs have been set up by counselors following a thorough study of each case.

Shriner: Lack Of Support May Kill Beef Program

By JOHN ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

State Centennial Commission Director Don Shriner said Wednesday plans for a centennial-oriented Nebraska beef promotion program probably will collapse if the beef industry does not agree within a month to financially support the proposal.

Shriner said the commission reserved $16,650 for the beef promotion program, but he will recommend diversion of the state funds for other purposes if industry support does not come before the March 9 commission meeting.

"We promised the Legislature we would spend money on beef promotion only if the state funds are matched dollar-for-dollar with industry money," Shriner said. "As far as I'm concerned, the fate of the program is back in the hands of beef interests."

Only 4 Markets

He noted only four livestock markets have participated in a "check-off" plan recommended by the Nebraska Beef Council under which the promotional effort would get one cent for each head of cattle sold.

The four markets contributed $2,400 to the promotion program, Shriner said.

Designation of a Nebraska centennial sirloin steak to be nationally known and recognized had figured in the beef promotion plans, and money already has been expended in the promotion.

Shriner said the Nebraska Stock Growers Association, Nebraska Beef Council and Nebraska Cowbelles have given their full cooperation, but the Livestock Feeders Organization, State Auction Market Association and the Omaha market balked at the "check-off" methods.

"I don't care how they raise the matching money," Shriner said, "but I do feel this state is badly in need of a strong beef promotion program.

"The industry is so fractionalized that a strong promotion has been impossible in the past, and I was hoping the centennial would offer an opportunity for beef interests to put aside their differences."

Shriner said eleventh hour support from the industry could still result in a $30,000 promotion effort during the centennial year and lay the groundwork for further cooperation among beef interests in years to come.

Peru Dormitory Bonds OKd At 4.36% Interest

The State Normal Board Wednesday approved a $1.8 million revenue bond issue at an average interest rate of 4.36% for construction of a new 300-student dormitory at Peru State College.

The only bid on the 30-year bonds, which will carry an interest cost of $1,934,672, was submitted by a purchase syndicate of eight bond houses headed by John Nuveen & Co. of Omaha.

The board accepted the single proposal after an executive session with its bond consultant, Don Pettis of Omaha.

A 1964 Peru dormitory bond issue of $1,730,000 carries an interest rate of 3.67%.

Pettis termed the accepted bid on the $1.8 million issue "as favorable as could be expected in today's money market."

Associated with Nuveen in the purchase were Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, Smith & Associates, Chicago; Goodbody & Co., Chicago; Van Horn Investment Co., Omaha; Storz-Wachob-Bender, Omaha; Stern Bros., Kansas City; J. Cliff Rahel, Omaha, and Eugene Dinsmore, Omaha.

A board spokesman said construction bids on the new dormitory and dining facility are expected to be called in early March.

3 More Seeking Vote On Leaving Education Units

Harlan, Phelps and Grant Counties joined the movement Wednesday to exclude counties from the educational service units created by the 1965 Legislature.

Petition forms to attempt to force local votes in those three counties on the unit exclusion question were filed with the secretary of state, increasing to 69 the number of counties in which anti-unit efforts will be lodged.

SIX REAPPRAISALS BEING WITHDRAWN

State Tax Commissioner George Dworak Wednesday announced that the professional reappraisals of six sandhills counties are being withdrawn until March 1 by the Brandt Appraisal Co. of Scottsbluff.

Dworak said Orville Brandt, firm president, requested this action for the opportunity of correcting certain reappraisal errors and compiling additional field data.

Brandt's letter said in part that "some valuations were compiled 18 months to two years ago and may not necessarily reflect today's current values," Dworak said. "Additional field work necessitates a time extension."

The six counties involved are Arthur, Blaine, Hooker, McPherson, Grant and Thomas.

Field Study Ordered

Dworak had tentatively approved the Brandt appraisals, but then directed a field study into the firm's work after receiving complaints in early January from the Nebraska Stock Growers Association.

Dworak said Brandt submitted additional substantiating data Monday as requested, but it "wasn't to my satisfaction."

"We're not concerned with the over-all valuations at this time of the six counties," he said, "but with the procedures used in arriving at the values."

The Brandt appraisals showed a $100 million valuation for the counties as compared with $73.6 million set last year by the State Board of Equalization.

"Errors found in Brandt's computations of a typical ranch operation can reduce the land valuation as much as 25% on capitalized values," he said. "This could reduce a $41 per acre average value to $35."

Hopes For Revisions

The tax commissioner said he hopes the reappraisals can be revised and used yet this year, but noted that changes may require new review hearings and notices to landowners and delay their use.

He reserved comment on whether the Brandt appraisals can be used for the 1966 tax year until he has an opportunity to meet with county officials in early February.

"Maybe we're being a little too cautious, but I don't think we can be too cautious in accepting the first reappraisals," he said. "These first reappraisals will set guidelines for the rest of the state."

Dworak is charged under the 1963 mandatory reappraisal law with approving the county reappraisal performances.

Chase, Jefferson and Clay are the only other counties that may complete mandatory reappraisals this year subject to the commissioner's action.

Dairy Fair Trade Act Hearing Feb. 14

The State Agriculture Department will hold a public hearing Feb. 14 on proposed rules and regulations under the 1965 dairy fair trade practices act.

Leon Murphy, department administrator of the act, said the hearing will begin at 9 a.m. in the Capitol's west senate chamber.

Job Corps' First Camp Loses Few

Washington (AP) — A blustery winter's day last year, 30 young men straggled into an old Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Catoctin, Md., bringing it back to life after a quarter-century of idleness.

They came from the streets of Baltimore and the backwoods hollows of western Virginia and eastern Kentucky. They all had one thing in common—poverty. They were the first 30 Job Corpsmen.

A year later, five are in military service one is awaiting induction, eight have jobs and two are back in school — a total of 16 graduates. Nine still are in the Job Corps. Only five dropped out.

Low Dropout Rate

This dropout rate — one in six — is better than the rate for later enrollees. Recent figures released by Job Corps Director Franklyn A. Johnson show an over-all dropout rate of about 28%.

There are currently 17,800 young men and women enrolled in the Job Corps. More than 600 have graduated in the first year.

Officials don't believe their study of the first 30 shows any sort of average for those who have followed, but in a general way, they look upon them as representative.

With few exceptions, their parents had less than six year's formal education. In no case, was an adult breadwinner employed as a white collar worker or in a skilled job. Many parents were sick or out of jobs.

8 School Years

The average age of the first group was less than 18—Job Corps limits are 16 to 21. As a group, they had spent an average of eight years in school. Examination showed all were physically and educationally deprived.

All had taken up the Job Corps offer to "be somebody" and they volunteered.

First to drop out was Harvey, from Baltimore, although bright and creative, he couldn't accept the discipline of the center. He left within 10 days. Harvey dropped out of school in the 10th grade. He has held several jobs since leaving the Job Corps, but hasn't gone back to school.

Don, from the Kentucky mountains, was one of the outstanding successes. A high school graduate, he was unable to find a job because of a speech impediment. He quickly adapted to the Job Corps programs and soon was chosen corpsman leader. The new status increased his self-confidence. Gradually, his speech problem eased. Don now is in the Marine Corps after completing a course in auto maintenance.

LEFT FOR DEAD IN TRUNK

Chester James Austin, a 31-year-old Quincy, Mass., service station worker, is recuperating in an Ellijay, Ga., hospital after having been left for dead in a car's trunk. He had been without food about five days. The FBI said Donald F. Maskell, also of Quincy, has been charged with kidnaping and unlawful flight to avoid confinement. Austin said he was taken prisoner during a service station holdup.

Mass Grave Found

London (AP)—The Soviet Tass news agency reported building workers in the Ukrainian town of Kherson have found a mass grave containing bodies of more than 1,000 people killed by Nazis in World War II with machine guns, bayonets and rifles.

U.S. Bobcats Escape Viet Cong's Tunneled Sneak Attack Uninjured

EDITORS' NOTE—Associated Press photographer Al Chang jumped from a helicopter at a 25th Infantry Division position only minutes before members of the unit fought one of the strangest engagements in a strange war. Here is his report.

Cu Chi, Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong sprang from beneath the earth like the fabled dragon's teeth to strike deep inside the American camp, their burp guns spitting fire.

A Viet Cong bullet set a chain of explosions racing through the American ammunition dump. Cooks threw down skillets and clerks ran from their typewriters to battle the flames.

Barehanded, they grabbed burning boxes of mortar bombs, grenades and bangalore torpedoes and hurled them into the open. Others ignored Viet Cong bullets hosing into their midst and shoveled dirt over the boxes to put out the fires.

Came Out Shooting

The Viet Cong came from a network of tunnels dug long ago in the sector 15 miles northwest of Saigon and they came out shooting. More than 50 men had wriggled a quarter of a mile underground. Overhead were positions seized a few days ago by the Bobcats — men of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Battalion of the 25th Infantry Division.

The Viet Cong assault came at 3:30 p.m. Two hours and thousands of bullets later, after the last Viet Cong soldier had scuttled back into the tunnels, 10 of their black-pajama clad suicide squad lay dead.

In all the fighting, not one American was even scratched.

Standing in the open throughout to direct the American operations was the Bobcat commander, Lt. Col. Thomas U. Greer of Gainesville, Tex. Greer rushed out bareheaded at the sound of the first shots and never had time to go back for his steel helmet.

Counterpunch

Soldiers leaped into carriers and began shooting back at Viet Cong concealed in the treeline as they popped in and out of their tunnels. Greer ordered the tanks forming the outer perimeter of the camp to wing in for a counterpunch.

"We hit paydirt," said Sgt. Maj. Armand W. Pardy. "I killed two."

Pardy, a veteran of three wars from Utica, N.Y., said he finished them off with handgrenades from the vantage point of an armored personnel carrier.

Sp4 John A. Vicich of Naperville, Ill., a machine-gunner aboard one of the carriers, shot two others out of trees, where they had tied themselves to branches with rope slings.

"I kept firing to make sure I killed them," he said.

Job Corps' First Camp Loses Few

Washington (AP) — A blustery winter's day last year, 30 young men straggled into an old Civilian Conservation Corps camp at Catoctin, Md., bringing it back to life after a quarter-century of idleness.

They came from the streets of Baltimore and the backwoods hollows of western Virginia and eastern Kentucky. They all had one thing in common—poverty. They were the first 30 Job Corpsmen.

A year later, five are in military service one is awaiting induction, eight have jobs and two are back in school — a total of 16 graduates. Nine still are in the Job Corps. Only five dropped out.

Low Dropout Rate

This dropout rate — one in six — is better than the rate for later enrollees. Recent figures released by Job Corps Director Franklyn A. Johnson show an over-all dropout rate of about 28%.

There are currently 17,800 young men and women enrolled in the Job Corps. More than 600 have graduated in the first year.

Officials don't believe their study of the first 30 shows any sort of average for those who have followed, but in a general way, they look upon them as representative.

With few exceptions, their parents had less than six year's formal education. In no case, was an adult breadwinner employed as a white collar worker or in a skilled job. Many parents were sick or out of jobs.

8 School Years

The average age of the first group was less than 18—Job Corps limits are 16 to 21. As a group, they had spent an average of eight years in school. Examination showed all were physically and educationally deprived.

All had taken up the Job Corps offer to "be somebody" and they volunteered.

First to drop out was Harvey, from Baltimore, although bright and creative, he couldn't accept the discipline of the center. He left within 10 days. Harvey dropped out of school in the 10th grade. He has held several jobs since leaving the Job Corps, but hasn't gone back to school.

Don, from the Kentucky mountains, was one of the outstanding successes. A high school graduate, he was unable to find a job because of a speech impediment. He quickly adapted to the Job Corps programs and soon was chosen corpsman leader. The new status increased his self-confidence. Gradually, his speech problem eased. Don now is in the Marine Corps after completing a course in auto maintenance.

Chester James Austin, a 31-year-old Quincy, Mass., service station worker, is recuperating in an Ellijay, Ga., hospital after having been left for dead in a car's trunk. He had been without food about five days. The FBI said Donald F. Maskell, also of Quincy, has been charged with kidnaping and unlawful flight to avoid confinement. Austin said he was taken prisoner during a service station holdup.

U.S. Bobcats Escape Viet Cong's Tunneled Sneak Attack Uninjured

EDITORS' NOTE—Associated Press photographer Al Chang jumped from a helicopter at a 25th Infantry Division position only minutes before members of the unit fought one of the strangest engagements in a strange war. Here is his report.

Cu Chi, Viet Nam (AP)—The Viet Cong sprang from beneath the earth like the fabled dragon's teeth to strike deep inside the American camp, their burp guns spitting fire.

A Viet Cong bullet set a chain of explosions racing through the American ammunition dump. Cooks threw down skillets and clerks ran from their typewriters to battle the flames.

Barehanded, they grabbed burning boxes of mortar bombs, grenades and bangalore torpedoes and hurled them into the open. Others ignored Viet Cong bullets hosing into their midst and shoveled dirt over the boxes to put out the fires.

Came Out Shooting

The Viet Cong came from a network of tunnels dug long ago in the sector 15 miles northwest of Saigon and they came out shooting. More than 50 men had wriggled a quarter of a mile underground. Overhead were positions seized a few days ago by the Bobcats — men of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Battalion of the 25th Infantry Division.

The Viet Cong assault came at 3:30 p.m. Two hours and thousands of bullets later, after the last Viet Cong soldier had scuttled back into the tunnels, 10 of their black-pajama clad suicide squad lay dead.

In all the fighting, not one American was even scratched.

Standing in the open throughout to direct the American operations was the Bobcat commander, Lt. Col. Thomas U. Greer of Gainesville, Tex. Greer rushed out bareheaded at the sound of the first shots and never had time to go back for his steel helmet.

Counterpunch

Soldiers leaped into carriers and began shooting back at Viet Cong concealed in the treeline as they popped in and out of their tunnels. Greer ordered the tanks forming the outer perimeter of the camp to wing in for a counterpunch.

ABBY

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter, who lives in another state, was having a little trouble with her husband, so she and her four kids came back home to live with her Pa and me. She stayed five weeks and then her husband came and got her. They went home again as everything was patched up. My husband never did know the real reason why she came home. He didn't ask so nobody told him. He must have found out some way because I got a letter from my daughter saying her father had sent her a bill for $140 for room and board while she was here. He said that if her husband didn't pay it he'd turn it over to a lawyer; that he could collect, too, because after a woman gets married, her HUSBAND is supposed to support her, not her father. That's not all. My daughter got mad and had the police pick up her father for driving without a license. (He hasn't had one in six years, and she knew it.) Which was worse? Sending a daughter a bill, or sicking the police on a father?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: You all sound like a bunch of kids to me. I think your daughter inherited her father's brains and they deserve each other.

☆ ☆ ☆

DEAR ABBY: A friend's daughter was recently married. They are very social people in town, so I went overboard on the wedding gift, but I was foolish because when all the gifts were displayed there were no cards with the gifts, so no one knew who gave what. I think this was a dirty trick. I wonder why they did this? Or is this something new to protect cheapskates?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: It's nothing new, and it is proper to display wedding gifts with the givers' cards removed. It's neither to "protect cheapskates" nor to deflate show-offs. It's one of the rules of etiquette which makes sense.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MRS. F. T. R. IN HARTFORD: There is hardly a more earnest champion of teen-age morality than this writer, and because I published the letter signed "ST. LOUIS" without comment, I regret that it gave the impression that I was all for pre-marital sleeping together. You are right. I should have blasted the writer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦
Pass	2 ♥	Pass	4 ♦
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	6 ♦

Opening lead—four of spades.

Here is a remarkable hand played in the men's pair championship in Portland, Ore., in 1964.

Looking at the North-South cards only, you would certainly not want to be in six diamonds, even though the East-West cards might be so divided that you could make the slam. As a matter of fact, you could not guarantee even five diamonds if West's opening lead were a club.

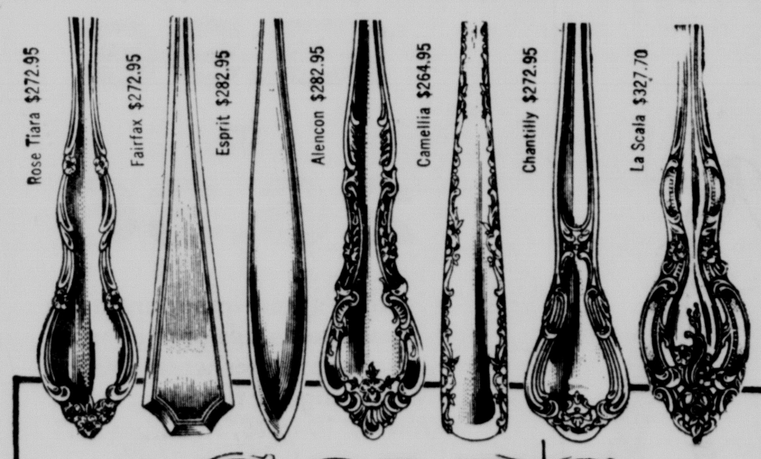

But, when the hand was played, South did reach a slam on the bidding shown and furthermore made the slam in relatively easy style.

West, for reasons best known to himself, decided to lead a low spade. Underleading an ace against a game or part score suit contract is virtually taboo in the best of circles, but underleading an ace against a slam discloses a suicidal tendency suggesting urgent attention. However, West did lead the four of spades and the grateful declarer, Oswald Jacoby, well-known Texas star, won the trick in dummy with the king and discarded a heart.

When he now played a low diamond from dummy and East followed with the ten, Jacoby was faced with what would in most circumstances be regarded as a difficult guess. His play could not matter if East had all three trumps, nor could his play matter if the ten were a singleton, in which case West would have the A-Q.

The only case that could make a difference was the one where West had a singleton, in which event, if it were the queen, the king would be the winning play, while if it were the ace, the jack would be the winning play.

Jacoby solved the problem quickly. He reasoned that while West might be slightly daft, he could hardly be crazy enough to underlead the ace of spades if he also had the ace of diamonds. Consequently, crediting East with the ace, Jacoby went up with the king, caught the queen, and thus made the slam.

NEWS of the suburban areas

Here we are in the second month of the year—how fast time goes, we say, but look back and see how much has already been accomplished. The busy schedules naturally make time pass a little faster and this we think is good especially when we know most of those busy, busy schedules had various social events listed on them.

Now what have we to look forward to—well, there's Valentine's Day which is fast approaching and not long after that sweet day passes will come spring and the Easter holidays—now doesn't that sound good?

But, until those festive days arrive let's stick with the day-by-day social news from around and about.

PARK MANOR

Leaving Sunday for Denver, Colo., will be Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leopald and their daughter Jennifer. Mr. and Mrs. Leopald will be the house guest of Mrs. Leopald's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Holcomb while in Denver. The visit, which will extend to Feb. 14, will include hopefully several trips to the ski slopes by Mr. and Mrs. Leopald and by Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb.

While one Park Manor family is planning to visit in the state of Colorado we have a Colorado family who plans to make a weekend visit in Nebraska. Mr. and Nrs. John Feigstall of Littleton, Colo., will arrive in Lincoln Friday for a visit with former Littleton neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoll who we know are now residing in the Park Manor area. Mr. and Mrs. Feigstall will be leaving the Stoll home Monday as they prepare to continue their travels to New York City, N.Y.

Last week we mentioned that Mrs. Dale Theobald would be returning to the University of Nebraska to resume her studies for the second semester and this week we discovered another resident on Skyline Drive who is attending the second semester term at the University and she is Mrs. Max Schuster. Any more scholars in the crowd?

COTNER TERRACE

Just a hop, skip and a few blocks from their old home in Cotner Terrace are Mr. and Mrs. Barry Burkhart and their children, Sydney and Natt. Moving day was Jan. 21 and their new address is 2125 N. 58th.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

Hostessing a cold, winter morning coffee at her home last Friday was Mrs. Dean Zavadil. The hostess and her guests, including Mrs. Ivan Orthengren, Mrs. Richard Rook, Mrs. Loren Wilson, and Mrs. Jeff Mills, hold their get-together once a month to stave off winter hibernation.

On Tuesday Mrs. Henry A. Willemsen entertained seven suburban residents at her home for an evening of pinochle. The skillful players were Mrs. Francis Peters, Mrs. George Riggs, Mrs. Jo Ann Lehechka, Mrs. Jim Wenzl, Mrs. Lynn Summers, Mrs. Marvin Smith, and Mrs. Andrew Wach.

Two former Lincoln residents, Mr. and Mrs. William Rewerts, and their daughters, Mary and Judy, were visitors in Lincoln during the past weekend. On Sunday the Rewerts, who now reside in Papillion, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Willemsen.

Motoring to Nebraska City for a Saturday visit were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Mundt and their three sons, Craig, Duane, and Roger, who were the guests of Mrs. Mundt's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carr.

What They're Reading

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's memoirs which are compiled in several volumes under the heading of "The White House Years," have met the critics on several occasions and have repeatedly earned negative comments.

One critic, for instance, stated that the volumes could not be read with enjoyment — "They have the flavor of a court chronicle such as might have been composed by James I or George III." Another strong defense against the two volumes is the fact that Eisenhower describes himself more on the order of a Napoleon while both his critics and his admirerers view him as "an honest Harding". The two volumes have in them hardly a trace of humor or even warmth, and it is a well-known fact that these are the characteristics that the general public has, in the past, associated with Eisenhower.

A third remark made in opposition to "The White House Years" is the fact that Eisenhower never gives any hint that any thought or act of his might have been a mistake although he does acknowledge errors John Foster Dulles, Sherman Adams and others made.

Despite the many negative comments, critics still acknowledge Eisenhower's two volumes as unique, rare work in the field of world literature. His volumes are said to be complete and accurately written as far as his very own point of view on each issue goes.

Looking over the best-seller list we noticed two other presidents of the United States are subjects of books—the late, John F. Kennedy and President Lyndon B. Johnson. Turning to the world of entertainment, the best-seller list holds novels written by actress, Helen Hayes and singer-actor, Sammy Davis, Jr.

TALK of the town

Perish the thought that the town's populace is involved in nothing but thumb-twiddling these cold winter days. We'll grant that various and sundry residents have taken to warmer climes such as Florida and southern California where Palm Springs and Lajolla seem to be the popular spots.

* * *

But those who remain at home have their own ideas on how best to thwart the creeping paralysis that plagues activity each winter season.

Take Mrs. L. D. Arnot, for example. Mrs. Arnot, inspired by the Valentine season, decided that things had been dull long enough, and that it was time to do something about it—so she did.

Today Mrs. Arnot takes on the hostess role when she entertains at the first of a series of bride-luncheons—all at home — and a guest eightsome for each party.

* * *

Dancing clubs, of course, never feel the effects of an acute activity drought. For them there always is a party to plan and to attend.

We already have menioned the Monday Night Club dinner dance which will be held Saturday evening at Hotel Cornhusker, but this morning we have the names of guest couples.

The guest list will include Mr. and Mrs. Lee Chapin, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Garlinghouse, and Mr. and Mrs. Avery Forke.

* * *

Had a little communique from Beloit College, Beloit, Wis., this morning. It told us that James Pansing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pansing, was one of the 131 fraternity pledges at the college. Mr. Pansing pledged Phi Kappa Psi.

NEWS of the suburban areas

Here we are in the second month of the year—how fast time goes, we say, but look back and see how much has already been accomplished. The busy schedules naturally make time pass a little faster and this we think is good especially when we know most of those busy, busy schedules had various social events listed on them.

Now what have we to look forward to—well, there's Valentine's Day which is fast approaching and not long after that sweet day passes will come spring and the Easter holidays—now doesn't that sound good?

But, until those festive days arrive let's stick with the day-by-day social news from around and about.

PARK MANOR

Leaving Sunday for Denver, Colo., will be Mr. and Mrs. Norman Leopald and their daughter Jennifer. Mr. and Mrs. Leopald will be the house guest of Mrs. Leopald's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Holcomb while in Denver. The visit, which will extend to Feb. 14, will include hopefully several trips to the ski slopes by Mr. and Mrs. Leopald and by Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb.

While one Park Manor family is planning to visit in the state of Colorado we have a Colorado family who plans to make a weekend visit in Nebraska. Mr. and Nrs. John Feigstall of Littleton, Colo., will arrive in Lincoln Friday for a visit with former Littleton neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stoll who we know are now residing in the Park Manor area. Mr. and Mrs. Feigstall will be leaving the Stoll home Monday as they prepare to continue their travels to New York City, N.Y.

Last week we mentioned that Mrs. Dale Theobald would be returning to the University of Nebraska to resume her studies for the second semester and this week we discovered another resident on Skyline Drive who is attending the second semester term at the University and she is Mrs. Max Schuster. Any more scholars in the crowd?

COTNER TERRACE

Just a hop, skip and a few blocks from their old home in Cotner Terrace are Mr. and Mrs. Barry Burkhart and their children, Sydney and Natt. Moving day was Jan. 21 and their new address is 2125 N. 58th.

NORTHEAST HEIGHTS

THERE'S news about brownies

Every homemaker knows that during the cold winter her talents must be employed to make the indoors especially delightful. One way to keep the family happy is to offer the fragrance and taste of good food. And how about brownies—especially these 'peanutty' chocolate brownies we are talking about this morning. Here is the recipe:

PEANUTTY BROWNIES

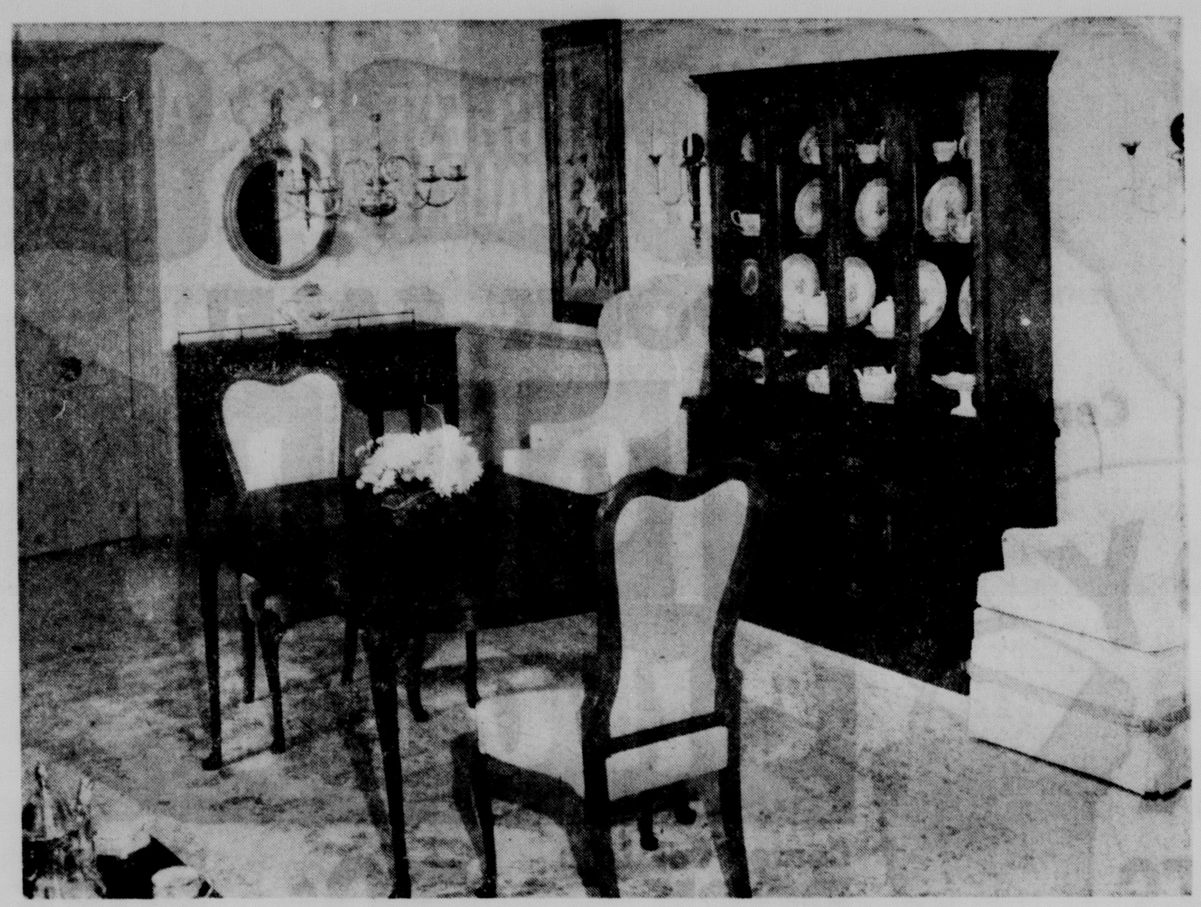

¼ cup (½ stick) butter or margarine
1 cup dark brown sugar, firmly packed
1 egg
½ cup unsifted flour
¼ teaspoon baking soda
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate, melted
1 cup peanuts
Chopped peanuts
Chocolate frosting (follows)

Cream butter or margarine in small mixing bowl. Add brown sugar and egg; continue beating until light and fluffy. Beat in flour, soda, salt and melted chocolate; mix until well blended. Fold in 1 cup peanuts. Spoon into greased 8-inch square pan.

Bake in slow oven (325°F.) 25-30 minutes, or until done. Cool. Frost with Chocolate Frosting (follows). Sprinkle with chopped peanuts. Cut into squares or bars.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

Melt 1 square (1 ounce) unsweetened chocolate and 2 tablespoons Fleischmann's Margarine. Stir in ¾ cup unsifted confectioners' sugar. Add 2-3 teaspoons boiling water for desired consistency.

LOOK what's happened to dining rooms!

If you want proof the pendulum swings back, just look what's happening to dining rooms. They've gone formal, when only a minute ago, all seemed headed down the casual garden path. Along with the return of formality, has come the elegance of 18th Century mahogany, gracious Queen Anne curves and classic outlines.

The high china cabinet is scaled, with its overhanging cornice and substantial cabinet base, to bring architectural importance to modern rooms. Like the oval Queen Anne dining table and huntboard in the background, the breakfront is made of solid mahogany with panels and tops of beautifully matched mahogany veneers. The base may be had without the hutch top for use as a buffet. The top center drawer comes fitted with non-tarnish liners for silver, and storage bins on either side have adjustable shelves. Both units together, as seen here, make an imposing wall decoration for displaying fine china or bibelot collections. The "Old Colony Rose" pattern Spode china with its Bristol blue border, echoes the color scheme of the room. Its dado and doorway are painted a matching blue, while the dining chairs are covered in a slightly darker shade of antique satin. The small highback wing chairs in white velveteen with velvet tailored bows make delightful host and hostess chairs.

'Serve Yourself' Sandwiches

Help-yourself sandwiches are ideal for informal buffets. For a change of pace, we suggest these home-baked Whole Wheat "Hard" Rolls

WHOLE WHEAT HARD ROLLS

2 cups warm water (105-115 degrees F)
1 package or cake yeast, active dry or compressed
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2½ cups unsifted whole wheat flour
2¾ cups unsifted white flour (about)
1 egg white, unbeaten

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle or crumble in yeast; stir until dissolved. Stir in sugar, salt, butter or margarine and whole wheat flour; beat until smooth. Stir in enough white flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Divide each half into 10 equal pieces. Form each into a smooth ball. Place in lightly greased baking sheets, about 3-inches apart. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake in hot oven (525 degrees F.) until lightly browned, about 15-20 minutes. Remove from oven; brush rolls with egg white and return to oven for 2 minutes.

Jefferson County Revaluation Task Completed

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Fairbury — Imagine 10 days of fielding complaints from every fifth taxpayer in the county — and being pleased that the number was no less.

That's the "happy" situation just ending for David Alexander and his National Valuation Service. Some 1,100 Jefferson countians, new real estate valuations in hand, have flocked in to confer with the reappraisal firm.

"That's just what we wanted, for if nobody protested we'd know we were too low," explained the Omaha company's vice president. "On the other hand, if they came in hopping mad and banging their fists on the table we would be too high."

Long lines notwithstanding, neither Alexander nor County Assessor J. W. Winslow was disturbed by the number of appeals. "Actually pretty quiet hearings," the appraiser compared them with experiences in other states.

"In reality 50 to 60% didn't come so much to complain as to satisfy their curiosity," the official continued. "And there were no threats — you should have heard one Iowa county where property quadrupled and more."

Too busy with personal assessments to do much analyzing, Winslow does foresee a substantial valuation hike over the present $28.7 million. Fairbury's $7 million will "definitely be up," most rural land will follow and the only general cuts will be in a few downhill-headed villages.

Hedging on predictions prior to a June determination, the assessor is "hopefully predicting" the boost will permit a levy "dropped below the 100-mill mark" for Fairbury. Erroneously teaming this year's 109.56 levy to their new valuations, hundreds of residents had been in semi-shock upon opening reappraisal notices.

"Something that people forget also is that a lower levy will apply to more than real estate," continued the veteran office-holder. "A reduced figure would help on an individual's car and personal property as well as his farm or house."

Started 1½ years ago, the Jefferson revaluation is among the first 11 completed since a 1963 state law requiring scientific reappraisals every six to 16 years. It is the first Nebraska county finished by National Valuation, which has nine more under contract.

Definitely not a problem for Jefferson is one bringing a recent clash between six counties and the state tax commissioner. Low appraisal-to-sales ratios, 80% and under, have not met a state standard of 90%.

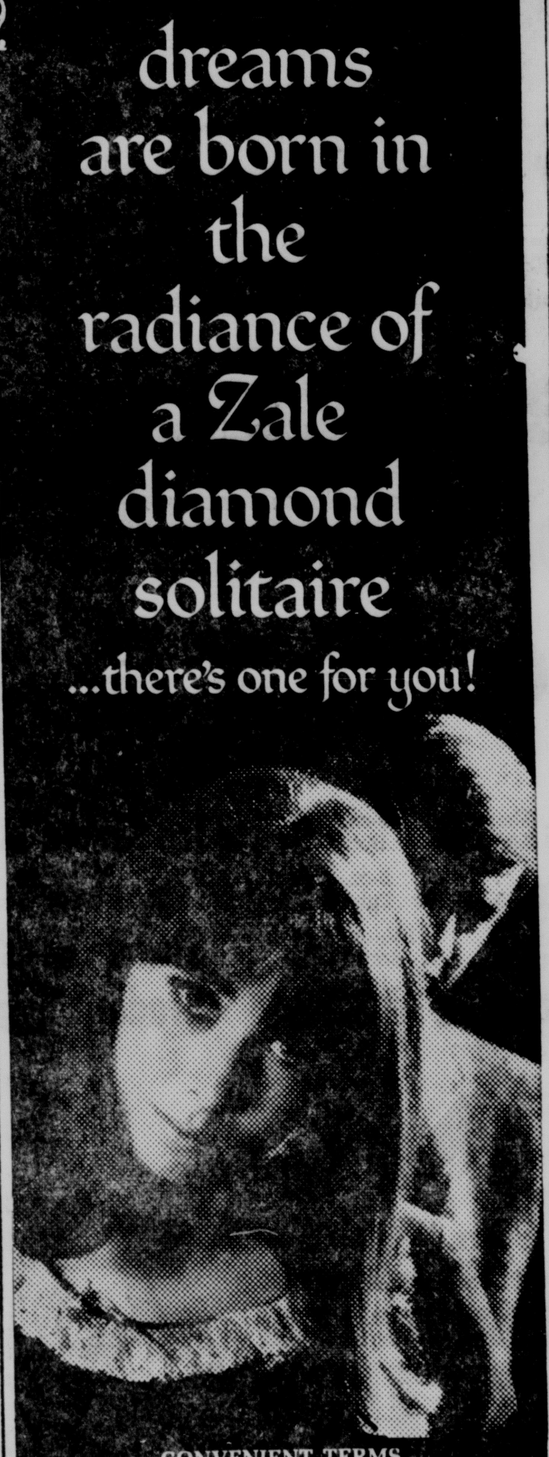

"On some $6 million of sales and 40,000 acres, we have an urban ratio here of 99% and rural of 97," said Alexander. "This is the highest we've seen in this state."

Winslow's fear is that this could balloon the county above others state-wise, though this will be considered by the tax office. A percentage factor could be applied to equalize the valuations.

Although virtually finished otherwise, the reappraisal firm will act in an advisory capacity this spring to the county board of equalization. Complaint hearings will be held beginning April 1.

Sardinia, 120 miles west of the Italian mainland, is losing its reputation as Italy's wild and woolly frontier. Marinas, villas and luxury hotels have transformed Sardinia's bleakly beautiful northeast shoreline into the "Emerald Coast."

—VISITORS RUN AWAY IN SECOND HALF—

Akron Goodyear Whips Behlens Cagers, 131-102

By TOM HENDERSON
Star Sports Writer

Waverly — The Stars of Behlens owned a perfect, 6-0, basketball record Wednesday morning, but it didn't stay that way for long.

Behlens ran into Akron Goodyear Wednesday night in the Waverly High School gym, and coach Bill Ketterer's boys might as well have been hit by a Mack truck, losing, 131-102, to the taller Akron outfit.

Behlens battled evenly through most of the first half, leading by as many as six points early in the game.

Goodyear took the lead, 21-20, midway through the half, and, although Behlens kept close, the visitors didn't give it up again.

A six-point spurt in the last 30 seconds gave Akron a 56-47 halftime edge, the closest Behlens was to come the rest of the game.

Goodyear, a team generously endowed with giants like 7-1 Mike McCoy, and 6-10 Dan Anderson, quickly widened its lead in the second half, with 6-0 guard Danny Schutz gunning in points on long set shots.

Akron held a 19-point edge, 83-64, midway through the final 20 minutes, and led by 24, 114-90, with two minutes still left in the contest.

Al Maxey, who dropped in 20 first half points, added 15 in the final period to finish with 35 to lead all scorers.

His Behlen teammate, Gary Reimers added 29, and Al Peithman contributed 18. Peithman started the game at a forward position, but switched back to his familiar guard spot midway through the second half. Twelve of his points came while playing guard.

Jay Miller was high for Goodyear with 25, but Schutz finished close behind at 24, and Warren Fouts, former Oklahoma University star, added 22. Art Becker contributed 16 more for the Akron club.

In a preliminary game, Lincoln Goodyear, led by the 24-point effort of Bernier Heier, stopped Roberts, 84-78. Don Smith was high for Roberts with 18 points.

McGOWAN GOLF LEADER

ARNIE AND ARMY—Arnold Palmer lashes a drive off the tee of the fifth hole at Indian Wells Country Club.

Dark Horses, Unknowns Rule

. . . BOB HOPE GOLF TOURNEY

Palm Springs, Calif. (AP) — Jack McGowan led a parade of lesser lights and dark horses into the front ranks Wednesday in the first round of the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Leaving such celebrated professionals as Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper Jr. and Ken Venturi to trail in the first of this Farflung, 90-hole tournament, the 35-year-old McGowan from Largo, Fla., shot a six-under-par 32-34—66.

The 128 pros, each with three amateurs, launched the five-day event on four Dester Country Club courses—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, La Quinta and Eldorado.

Each has par 36-36—72.

The weather was bright and ideal, and the galleries seemed scattered all over the Coachella Valley in the 20-courses.

Casper, the defending champion, playing Indian Wells, as did most of the stars in the opening round, shot a 37-32—69; Palmer, 37-34—71, and Venturi, the 1964 U.S. Open champion, who is still in high spirits after his great victory in the San Francisco Lucky International Monday, had 34-38—72.

Tied at 67 were Joe Taylor, 45-year-old club professional from the blackberry country of Charlotte, W. Va., with 33-34, and veteran Al Besselink, with 34-33.

The host comedian, Hope, played in a foursome with Sam Reynolds of Springfield, Mo., with comedienne Phyllis Diller, garbed in an outlandish knicker outfit as Hope's so-called caddie. Reynolds had a 76 and the four had a best ball score of 63.

"This is the first time I've ever been on a golf course," Miss Diller informed the large gallery at the first tee at Indian Well's "All the time I thought this was a cemetery."

McGowan, whose last tournament victory was in the now-defunct Mountain Viet tournament at Corona, Calif., in 1964, had seven birdies and one bogey. He had three putts from 12 feet out and another downhill of 18 feet.

. . . NU MENTOR CITED

Omaha (UPI)—Coach Bob Devaney will be the recipent of the annual "Man of the Year" Award of the Variety Club of Nebraska at a banquet to be held at the Town House ballroom Feb. 18. The award will be presented by one of the Variety Club's members, Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb.

The awards' dinner will conclude the local group's celebration of National Variety Club Week, during which local branches of the International Variety Clubs recount their charitable activities of the past year.

"This will not be a fund-raising event and reservations will be limited to 400 persons," said Arnold Stern, property master (secretary) of Variety. "This will be one local event, honoring Bob Devaney, at which wives will also be welcome. They have also followed the fortunes of the Cornhuskers and should have an equal opportunity to honor the coach."

Variety Clubs International is an organization of business men and women associated in the entertainment fields of motion pictures, stage, radio and television and related industries, and has chapters throughout the United States, Canada, and England.

One of the Nebraska club's prinicipal current activities is the operation of its Sunshine Coach, based at Childrens Memorial Hospital. The coach is equipped with a hydraulic lift and wheel chair facilities for 10 children.

"Bob Devaney was named as the recipient of our first award because of the national acclaim he has brought to Nebraska," Jack Cohen, chairman of the selection committee of Variety, said. "Selection of future recipients may be from any fields of endeavor."

Two Bowie Horses Infected By Virus

. . . SWAMP FEVER SCARE

College Station, Tex. (AP) — A veterinarian reported Wednesday that two out of five blood samples from horses at Bowie race track in Maryland showed swamp fever and one other sample possibly showed the disease.

The report was made by Dr. R. W. Moore, Texas A&M University professor of veterinary microbiology.

The tests were run at the request of the track where a barn of horses was quarantined because of suspected fever.

Texas A&M spokesmen said the school is the only place in the world that has developed a reliable test for the ailment.

Swamp fever is one of the most dreaded of horse diseases especially among thoroughbreds. There is no known cure and victims usually are destroyed because the disease is so easily transmitted to other animals, a university spokesman said.

Maryland's Livestock Sanitation Service director said the January outbreak was the first known in that state.

Dr. Moore said other samples have been sent by Bowie track to A&M but the results "are confidential and the investigation is continuing."

Major swamp fever occurrences in the past 18 months have been in Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Illinois and North Carolina. Small outbreaks occurred in Florida and Kentucky, the school reported.

Dr. Moore said the disease is most often transmitted by contaminated hypodermic needles and syringes.

"So far we have investigated six major swamp fever outbreaks in the United States, and we found that all of them were caused by misuse of syringes or transfusion of blood," Dr. Moore said.

Jim Brown Faced With Paternity Suit

Cleveland, Ohio (AP)—An 18-year-old girl testified in Juvenile Court Wednesday that fullback Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns is the father of a baby she is going to have later this month.

Brenda Ayres filed a paternity suit against the professional football star last Nov. 29, asking that Brown, married and father of three, pay for her pre-natal care and support the baby.

Brown has pleaded innocent to her charge that he is the father.

Judge Walter G. Whitlatch, who will rule whether the charges made by Miss Ayres should go to trial, said at the opening session of a preliminary hearing Wednesday afternoon there would be more testimony by Miss Ayres Thursday morning.

The judge has asked her to bring into court then a personal calendar she said she kept. She testified Wednesday that this calendar would show dates of her alleged relationships with Brown, whom she said she first met last May 12.

Last July 23 a Municipal Court jury acquitted Brown of assault and battery charges brought against him by Miss Ayres. She charged that he beat her in a Cleveland motel room on the night of June 19.

After the hearing had recessed until 9 a.m. Thursday, Brown told a newsman: "I feel that the trial will prove that the charges are ridiculous."

NU Tankers Host Big 8 Competition

Coach Dick Klaas is making his swimmers work double time this week in preparation for a big week in conference competition.

Friday night Missouri sends its swimmers to Lincoln to meet the Husker freshmen and varsity tankers. The freshmen meet will begin at 6:30 in the Coliseum. At 8:30 the Varsity will meet Missouri in a meet to be televised on KUON-TV, Channel 12, the University TV station.

Saturday Oklahoma brings its Big Eight champions to test the strength of the Husker swimmers.

Nebraska posts a 4-5 record in swimming competition this year. Two of those losses came last week from Macalester and the University of Minnesota.

"I feel we put up our best effort of the year against Macalester last Friday but illness kept us from being strong enough to handle them," said Klass. Mike Jackson, returning Big Eight conference champ in the breststroke, was suffering form bronchial pneumonia, Steve Sorenson, sophomore diver, had strep throat and Keefe Lodwig, NU's star sprinter, was ailing with the flu. Sorenson and Lodwig are back in good health but Jackson is still suffering from bronchitis and his condition is doubtful.

SINGLES LEADER . . . Ollie Meier

Meier's 728 Series Tops Men's Singles

By BILL BARNES
Star Sports Writer

Seven years of bowling reaped huge dividends for Ollie Meier last Tuesday night.

Meier rolled a 674 scratch series, coupled to it a 54-pin handicap for a 728 total and found himself far ahead of the pack in the men's singles division of the Lincoln City Bowling Tournament.

Although Ollie was "pleasantly surprised" to find himself in first place, he is quick to note that he could be overtaken anytime as the tourney continues until Sunday night.

Meier first became interested in bowling through the urgings of his wife Lila.

Mrs. Meier is an above average bowler herself, carrying a 145 average in the Does League at Parkway Lanes.

Consistency seems to be the key to the kegler's success.

In his sparkling 674 series Ollie rolled games of 235, 214 and 225. He also carries a 182 average in the Elks League at Bowl-Mor and a 176 in the Greater Lincoln League at Parkway.

The 674 series was far from Meier's best, however. Two years ago he rolled a 740 series in league play, and one year earlier had a sanctioned 269 game.

Although he has participated in the Lincoln City tourney the past several years, this is the first time Ollie has been even close to the top in individual standings.

He will bowl on the Central State Drug team this Sunday in the windup of the team competition.

Gals' Singles Lead Taken By Fastenau

Jo Ann Fastenau jumped into first place in the singles division of the Lincoln City Women's Bowling Tournament Wednesday, rolling a 538 scratch series, which after 11 handicap pins had been added in, gave her a 649, eight pins ahead of Tuesday's leader, Ruth Merrill.

Darlene Nelson moved to the top of the women's all-events scratch competition, with a 1798, four pins in front of Sharon Weidman, who held the lead after Tuesday's action.

Opal Johnson's 543 series took the lead in the gals' 600 Sweeper, and then combined with Elsie Gudeker for a 1040 doubles scratch score to lead in that department.

In the men's tourney, no leaders fell, but Standard Motors moved into second place in the men's teams behind T and M Construction. Standard Motors finished at 3070.

Halas Recalls High Spot Of 46 Years In Football

Chicago (AP) — On a bleak Monday in 1925, before the Thanksgiving Day football game between the Chicago Bears and the Chicago Cardinals in Wrigley Field, George Halas saw a line of nearly 3,000 fans circling a downtown city block waiting to buy tickets.

As the chipper Halas reached his 71st birthday Wednesday he looked back on 46 years in the National Football League and tabbed this turnstile break through as a high spot of his career.

The day before the ticket stampede started, the Bears had signed Red Grange, the fabulous halfback who had just played his last game for the University of Illinois.

The magnetism of the Galloping Ghost drew a sellout crowd of 36,000 for his pro debut against the Cards and Halas said at least 30,000 more tickets could have been sold.

"The Cards Paddy Driscoll kept angling punts out of bounds and Red's ability as a punt-return specialist was checked," recalled the vigorous owner-coach of the Bears. "The game ended in a scoreless tie but was a huge success financially. Our share was $24,000 and this nearly matched our total profit in five previous seasons."

Other Halas' reminiscences:

Biggest thrill—"It has to be our 73-0 victory over the Redskins in Washington in the 1940 championship game. It centered attention on the T formation and changed the course of all pro and college football. Sid Luckman, the greatest quarterback of them all in my book, showed what could be done when all the techniques of the formation can be applied with precision."

Biggest disappointment — "That would be our 1934 playoff game with the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds. We had won all our games that season as the elusive, hard-running halfback from Tennessee, Beattie Feathers, set records behind the shattering blocking of Bronko Nagurski. In all, we had an 18-game winning streak. Feathers was sidelined with injuries but even without him we took a 10-3 halftime lead.

"At the start of the second half the Giants came out wearing rubber sneakers. They could maintain traction on the icy ground and we lost 30-13."

Greatest single game performance ever seen—"Rookie Gale Sayers' six touchdowns for us against San Francisco last December to tie a league record has to rate as high as any."

Halas' greatest thrill as a player—"Probably my best game was when I played end for Great Lakes in the 1919 Rose Bowl game against the Mare Island Marines. We won 17-0. I scored a touchdown on a pass from Driscoll and I intercepted a pass and ran 79 yards before being caught from behind on the one.

"My most artistic satisfaction as a player was playing against Jim Thorpe. Thorpe could cut you down with his legs and he could throw a defensive body block at top speed that still echoes."

Halas retire? Let his pert wife, Min, answer that one: "When we were arried he told me he would retire at 35 or 40. When he was 40 he said it would be 55. At 55 he said 70 for sure.

"I'm thankful he is still George Halas and Papa Bear at 71."

Bluejays Top Memphis '5'

Omaha (UPI)—The Creighton Bluejays, aiming at victory number 100 for coach Red McManus, defeated Memphis State, 115-82, Wednesday night in a basketball game at the Omaha City Auditorium.

Creighton — taller, deeper, and more experienced—came on strong after trailing 9-8 in the opening minutes of play.

Neil Johnson and Tim Powers paced Creighton with 23 points while Mike Butler got 23 to lead Memphis State.

The game left Creighton at 9-8 for the season while it marked Memphis State's sixth consecutive loss and left the team a season record of 6-12.

Johnson got 20 of his 23 points before the intermission and it was his artistry that perked up the Creighton attack.

Fritz Pointer connected on a pair of free throws to edge the Bluejays into the lead 18-17 at 12 minutes into the first half. Then Johnson hit on a layup and the Jays started mounting their lead.

Creighton led 61-43 at halftime and 99-69 with six minutes left, at which point McManus swept the bench.

Creighton had six players in double figures.

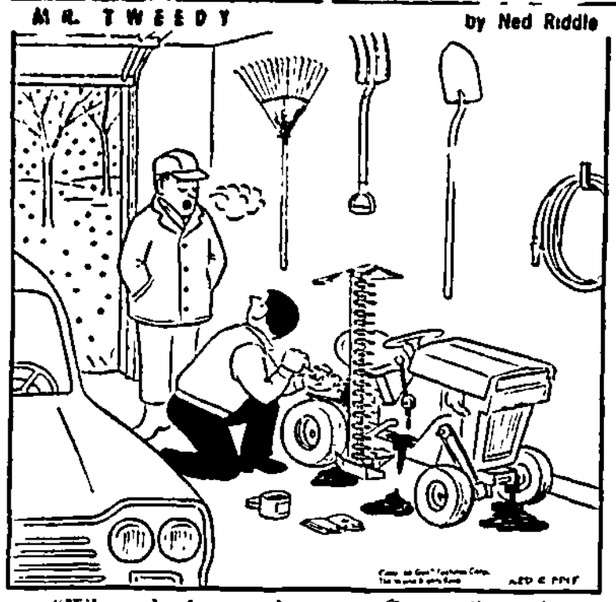

Following Butler in the Memphis State scoring were Jack Romp with 14 points and Jim Hawkins with 12.

LA's Owner Would Accept Expansion

New York (AP)— Walter O'Malley testified Wednesday that he could be persuaded to accept expansion in major league baseball—but reiterated his personal opposition to expansion now.

The owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, a powerful figure in baseball, completed his deposition in Wisconsin's court action against the Braves and the National League. In the antitrust suit, the state is seeking to make the Braves play in Milwaukee this year—instead of moving to Atlanta—unless the city is given another big league franchise for 1966.

O'Malley, who testified earlier that expansion in 1966 "would wreak havoc on the league and on my club," said under cross examination that if a substantial majority of owners favored immediate expansion he "would subordinate my personal feelings" and go along.

He added that he did not know the prevailing majority feeling on the issue.

Depositions in the suit are being taken at the offices of National League attorneys, with Willard Stafford representing Wisconsin and Bowie Kuhn representing the league. Several baseball men have given depositions here and in other cities.

'O'Malley was questioned for two hours Wednesday, completing testimony started Tuesday.

In his first session, O'Malley predicted an eventual expansion to three eight-team major leagues but said this was at least five years away.

On the subject of a nine-team league now, which other baseball people have called unworkable, O'Malley was asked by Stafford if that possibility had come up in 1960 when the Continental League was being proposed as the third major league.

The Dodger owner said it had never been considered seriously.

Four teams set for the Continental League were given franchises in the two established leagues. Stafford asked O'Malley what happened to the four others, which also were to have been taken into the majors eventually.

O'Malley at first answered that none of the four had applied for a franchise, then conceded Dallas-Fort Worth had made what he called a "pre-application" but that no action had been taken.

Stafford touched on the monopoly issue when he asked O'Malley if a team could be formed independently and then join organized baseball.

"No, they couldn't invite themselves in," O'Malley answered.

After a discussion of the Dodgers' profits, the National League lawyers decided against further testimony about finances until more specific ground rules were laid.

Stafford said his side will seek financial reports from all National League clubs.

Later, Bing Devine, assistant president of the New York Mets and former general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, testified that he, too, was opposed to expansion at this time.

"We're still assimilating from the expansion of 1962," Devine answered under questioning by Kuhn.

"We're also faced with the problem of retaining player personnel in view of the military situation. We deal with young players and some of them will be called to service or have to remain in college, particularly those on the minor league level."

Devine's desposition was completed in one hour and 15 minutes.

Bowie To Resume Racing Friday If . . .

. . . SNOW, FIRE AND DISEASE HIT HARD-LUCK TRACK

Bowie, Md. (AP) — Bowie race course, battling back from a winter snow, fire and disease, plans to resume racing Friday if the weather cooperates.

General Manager John F. Loome was cautiously optimistic Wednesday, although the track with the hard-luck history already had lost five days — counting Thursday— from a 26-day meeting which began Jan. 8.

"Heavy snow removal equipment and crews are working around the clock and we will be ready on Friday," he said.

"Of course, we have one ear cocked for other weather disturbances.

"The Storm of the Century has posed a problem at Bowie race course but we are well equipped to meet the challenge. Snow was removed from the track Wednesday morning and horses engaged in workouts.

"By Thursday afternoon our parking lots will be clear. Main arteries and access roads to the track are reported clear and the card for Friday attracted oversized fields in eight of the nine races."

Last month, possible cases of swamp fever — an incurable disease — were reported in seven horses at Bowie.

Monday, fire killed at least 41 thoroughbreds and destroyed five barns, causing an estimated $500,000 damage.

Snowstorms brought cancellations of Bowie's racing programs last Thursday and Friday and again this week.

However, Bowie's troubles began much earlier than 1966.

The Southern Maryland track began winter racing — with the horses running in January and February — in 1957. Next year a blizzard stranded 5,000 persons over a weekend and the track canceled six programs during that meeting.

On Feb. 3, 1961, a special race train ran down a bank, killing six persons and injuring more than 100. The same day fire destroyed a betting area in the grandstand.

In College Station, Tex., Wednesday, Dr. R. W. Moore of Texas A&M University said two out of five blood samples from horses at Bowie showed swamp fever, and one other sample possibly showed the disease.

Bowie said last Friday that Texas A&M had reported signs of swamp fever in two horses among 26 tested earlier. An autopsy showed that one horse who died during the scare, East India II, had symptoms of swamp fever but also had pneumonia.

Swamp Fever — it's technical name is equine infestious anemia — is incurable. Dr. Moore said that six major outbreaks in the nation have been investigated and all were caused by misuse of syringes or transfusion of blood.

Meanwhile, Loome announced plans to make up four of the lost days. One program will be run Feb. 8, on a scheduled dark day, he said, and three more during Bowie's spring meeting which runs from March 28 through April 30.

NU Gymnasts Entertain ISU, Sooners Saturday

A full slate of gymnastics is being offered this week at the University of Nebraska. At 10:30 Saturday morning the NU Frosh meet the Iowa State freshmen. At 2:00 in the afternoon Iowa State, Oklahoma and Nebraska will compete in a triple dual.

Nebraska is currently holding a 3-2 record. And considering the pre-season outlook given by Coach Jake Geier, the record is quite respectable.

The NU team is composed of ten sophomores, five juniors and no seniors. Geier expected this to be a 'rebuilding year' but the Husker gymnasts, led by Rich Beran and Allan Armstrong, have come up with victories over Ft. Hays, Kansas State and Wichita State. Losses came at the hands of Mankato and the University of Minnesota.

—VISITORS RUN AWAY IN SECOND HALF—

Akron Goodyear Whips Behlens Cagers, 131-102

By TOM HENDERSON
Star Sports Writer

Waverly — The Stars of Behlens owned a perfect, 6-0, basketball record Wednesday morning, but it didn't stay that way for long.

Behlens ran into Akron Goodyear Wednesday night in the Waverly High School gym, and coach Bill Ketterer's boys might as well have been hit by a Mack truck, losing, 131-102, to the taller Akron outfit.

Behlens battled evenly through most of the first half, leading by as many as six points early in the game.

Goodyear took the lead, 21-20, midway through the half, and, although Behlens kept close, the visitors didn't give it up again.

A six-point spurt in the last 30 seconds gave Akron a 56-47 halftime edge, the closest Behlens was to come the rest of the game.

Goodyear, a team generously endowed with giants like 7-1 Mike McCoy, and 6-10 Dan Anderson, quickly widened its lead in the second half, with 6-0 guard Danny Schutz gunning in points on long set shots.

Akron held a 19-point edge, 83-64, midway through the final 20 minutes, and led by 24, 114-90, with two minutes still left in the contest.

Al Maxey, who dropped in 20 first half points, added 15 in the final period to finish with 35 to lead all scorers.

His Behlen teammate, Gary Reimers added 29, and Al Peithman contributed 18. Peithman started the game at a forward position, but switched back to his familiar guard spot midway through the second half. Twelve of his points came while playing guard.

Jay Miller was high for Goodyear with 25, but Schutz finished close behind at 24, and Warren Fouts, former Oklahoma University star, added 22. Art Becker contributed 16 more for the Akron club.

In a preliminary game, Lincoln Goodyear, led by the 24-point effort of Bernier Heier, stopped Roberts, 84-78. Don Smith was high for Roberts with 18 points.

McGOWAN GOLF LEADER

ARNIE AND ARMY—Arnold Palmer lashes a drive off the tee of the fifth hole at Indian Wells Country Club.

Dark Horses, Unknowns Rule

. . . BOB HOPE GOLF TOURNEY

Palm Springs, Calif. (AP) — Jack McGowan led a parade of lesser lights and dark horses into the front ranks Wednesday in the first round of the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Leaving such celebrated professionals as Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper Jr. and Ken Venturi to trail in the first of this Farflung, 90-hole tournament, the 35-year-old McGowan from Largo, Fla., shot a six-under-par 32-34—66.

The 128 pros, each with three amateurs, launched the five-day event on four Dester Country Club courses—Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, La Quinta and Eldorado.

Each has par 36-36—72.

The weather was bright and ideal, and the galleries seemed scattered all over the Coachella Valley in the 20-courses.

Casper, the defending champion, playing Indian Wells, as did most of the stars in the opening round, shot a 37-32—69; Palmer, 37-34—71, and Venturi, the 1964 U.S. Open champion, who is still in high spirits after his great victory in the San Francisco Lucky International Monday, had 34-38—72.

Tied at 67 were Joe Taylor, 45-year-old club professional from the blackberry country of Charlotte, W. Va., with 33-34, and veteran Al Besselink, with 34-33.

The host comedian, Hope, played in a foursome with Sam Reynolds of Springfield, Mo., with comedienne Phyllis Diller, garbed in an outlandish knicker outfit as Hope's so-called caddie. Reynolds had a 76 and the four had a best ball score of 63.

"This is the first time I've ever been on a golf course," Miss Diller informed the large gallery at the first tee at Indian Well's "All the time I thought this was a cemetery."

McGowan, whose last tournament victory was in the now-defunct Mountain Viet tournament at Corona, Calif., in 1964, had seven birdies and one bogey. He had three putts from 12 feet out and another downhill of 18 feet.

Two Bowie Horses Infected By Virus

. . . SWAMP FEVER SCARE

College Station, Tex. (AP) — A veterinarian reported Wednesday that two out of five blood samples from horses at Bowie race track in Maryland showed swamp fever and one other sample possibly showed the disease.

The report was made by Dr. R. W. Moore, Texas A&M University professor of veterinary microbiology.

The tests were run at the request of the track where a barn of horses was quarantined because of suspected fever.

Texas A&M spokesmen said the school is the only place in the world that has developed a reliable test for the ailment.

Swamp fever is one of the most dreaded of horse diseases especially among thoroughbreds. There is no known cure and victims usually are destroyed because the disease is so easily transmitted to other animals, a university spokesman said.

Maryland's Livestock Sanitation Service director said the January outbreak was the first known in that state.

Dr. Moore said other samples have been sent by Bowie track to A&M but the results "are confidential and the investigation is continuing."

Major swamp fever occurrences in the past 18 months have been in Kansas, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Illinois and North Carolina. Small outbreaks occurred in Florida and Kentucky, the school reported.

Dr. Moore said the disease is most often transmitted by contaminated hypodermic needles and syringes.

"So far we have investigated six major swamp fever outbreaks in the United States, and we found that all of them were caused by misuse of syringes or transfusion of blood," Dr. Moore said.

Jim Brown Faced With Paternity Suit

Cleveland, Ohio (AP)—An 18-year-old girl testified in Juvenile Court Wednesday that fullback Jim Brown of the Cleveland Browns is the father of a baby she is going to have later this month.

Brenda Ayres filed a paternity suit against the professional football star last Nov. 29, asking that Brown, married and father of three, pay for her pre-natal care and support the baby.

Brown has pleaded innocent to her charge that he is the father.

Judge Walter G. Whitlatch, who will rule whether the charges made by Miss Ayres should go to trial, said at the opening session of a preliminary hearing Wednesday afternoon there would be more testimony by Miss Ayres Thursday morning.

The judge has asked her to bring into court then a personal calendar she said she kept. She testified Wednesday that this calendar would show dates of her alleged relationships with Brown, whom she said she first met last May 12.

Last July 23 a Municipal Court jury acquitted Brown of assault and battery charges brought against him by Miss Ayres. She charged that he beat her in a Cleveland motel room on the night of June 19.

After the hearing had recessed until 9 a.m. Thursday, Brown told a newsman: "I feel that the trial will prove that the charges are ridiculous."

NU Tankers Host Big 8 Competition

Coach Dick Klaas is making his swimmers work double time this week in preparation for a big week in conference competition.

Friday night Missouri sends its swimmers to Lincoln to meet the Husker freshmen and varsity tankers. The freshmen meet will begin at 6:30 in the Coliseum. At 8:30 the Varsity will meet Missouri in a meet to be televised on KUON-TV, Channel 12, the University TV station.

Saturday Oklahoma brings its Big Eight champions to test the strength of the Husker swimmers.

Nebraska posts a 4-5 record in swimming competition this year. Two of those losses came last week from Macalester and the University of Minnesota.

"I feel we put up our best effort of the year against Macalester last Friday but illness kept us from being strong enough to handle them," said Klass. Mike Jackson, returning Big Eight conference champ in the breststroke, was suffering form bronchial pneumonia, Steve Sorenson, sophomore diver, had strep throat and Keefe Lodwig, NU's star sprinter, was ailing with the flu. Sorenson and Lodwig are back in good health but Jackson is still suffering from bronchitis and his condition is doubtful.

SINGLES LEADER . . . Ollie Meier

Meier's 728 Series Tops Men's Singles

By BILL BARNES
Star Sports Writer

Seven years of bowling reaped huge dividends for Ollie Meier last Tuesday night.

Meier rolled a 674 scratch series, coupled to it a 54-pin handicap for a 728 total and found himself far ahead of the pack in the men's singles division of the Lincoln City Bowling Tournament.

Although Ollie was "pleasantly surprised" to find himself in first place, he is quick to note that he could be overtaken anytime as the tourney continues until Sunday night.

Meier first became interested in bowling through the urgings of his wife Lila.

Mrs. Meier is an above average bowler herself, carrying a 145 average in the Does League at Parkway Lanes.

Consistency seems to be the key to the kegler's success.

In his sparkling 674 series Ollie rolled games of 235, 214 and 225. He also carries a 182 average in the Elks League at Bowl-Mor and a 176 in the Greater Lincoln League at Parkway.

The 674 series was far from Meier's best, however. Two years ago he rolled a 740 series in league play, and one year earlier had a sanctioned 269 game.

Although he has participated in the Lincoln City tourney the past several years, this is the first time Ollie has been even close to the top in individual standings.

He will bowl on the Central State Drug team this Sunday in the windup of the team competition.

Gals' Singles Lead Taken By Fastenau

Jo Ann Fastenau jumped into first place in the singles division of the Lincoln City Women's Bowling Tournament Wednesday, rolling a 538 scratch series, which after 11 handicap pins had been added in, gave her a 649, eight pins ahead of Tuesday's leader, Ruth Merrill.

Darlene Nelson moved to the top of the women's all-events scratch competition, with a 1798, four pins in front of Sharon Weidman, who held the lead after Tuesday's action.

Opal Johnson's 543 series took the lead in the gals' 600 Sweeper, and then combined with Elsie Gudeker for a 1040 doubles scratch score to lead in that department.

In the men's tourney, no leaders fell, but Standard Motors moved into second place in the men's teams behind T and M Construction. Standard Motors finished at 3070.

Halas Recalls High Spot Of 46 Years In Football

Chicago (AP) — On a bleak Monday in 1925, before the Thanksgiving Day football game between the Chicago Bears and the Chicago Cardinals in Wrigley Field, George Halas saw a line of nearly 3,000 fans circling a downtown city block waiting to buy tickets.

As the chipper Halas reached his 71st birthday Wednesday he looked back on 46 years in the National Football League and tabbed this turnstile break through as a high spot of his career.

The day before the ticket stampede started, the Bears had signed Red Grange, the fabulous halfback who had just played his last game for the University of Illinois.

The magnetism of the Galloping Ghost drew a sellout crowd of 36,000 for his pro debut against the Cards and Halas said at least 30,000 more tickets could have been sold.

"The Cards Paddy Driscoll kept angling punts out of bounds and Red's ability as a punt-return specialist was checked," recalled the vigorous owner-coach of the Bears. "The game ended in a scoreless tie but was a huge success financially. Our share was $24,000 and this nearly matched our total profit in five previous seasons."

Other Halas' reminiscences:

Biggest thrill—"It has to be our 73-0 victory over the Redskins in Washington in the 1940 championship game. It centered attention on the T formation and changed the course of all pro and college football. Sid Luckman, the greatest quarterback of them all in my book, showed what could be done when all the techniques of the formation can be applied with precision."

Biggest disappointment — "That would be our 1934 playoff game with the New York Giants in the Polo Grounds. We had won all our games that season as the elusive, hard-running halfback from Tennessee, Beattie Feathers, set records behind the shattering blocking of Bronko Nagurski. In all, we had an 18-game winning streak. Feathers was sidelined with injuries but even without him we took a 10-3 halftime lead.

"At the start of the second half the Giants came out wearing rubber sneakers. They could maintain traction on the icy ground and we lost 30-13."

Greatest single game performance ever seen—"Rookie Gale Sayers' six touchdowns for us against San Francisco last December to tie a league record has to rate as high as any."

Halas' greatest thrill as a player—"Probably my best game was when I played end for Great Lakes in the 1919 Rose Bowl game against the Mare Island Marines. We won 17-0. I scored a touchdown on a pass from Driscoll and I intercepted a pass and ran 79 yards before being caught from behind on the one.

"My most artistic satisfaction as a player was playing against Jim Thorpe. Thorpe could cut you down with his legs and he could throw a defensive body block at top speed that still echoes."

Halas retire? Let his pert wife, Min, answer that one:

"When we were urried he told me he would retire at 35 or 40. When he was 40 he said it would be 55. At 55 he said 70 for sure.

"I'm thankful he is still George Halas and Papa Bear at 71."

Bluejays Top Memphis '5'

Omaha (UPI)—The Creighton Bluejays, aiming at victory number 100 for coach Red McManus, defeated Memphis State, 115-82, Wednesday night in a basketball game at the Omaha City Auditorium.

Creighton — taller, deeper, and more experienced—came on strong after trailing 9-8 in the opening minutes of play.

Neil Johnson and Tim Powers paced Creighton with 23 points while Mike Butler got 23 to lead Memphis State.

The game left Creighton at 9-8 for the season while it marked Memphis State's sixth consecutive loss and left the team a season record of 6-12.

Johnson got 20 of his 23 points before the intermission and it was his artistry that perked up the Creighton attack.

Fritz Pointer connected on a pair of free throws to edge the Bluejays into the lead 18-17 at 12 minutes into the first half. Then Johnson hit on a layup and the Jays started mounting their lead.

Creighton led 61-43 at halftime and 99-69 with six minutes left, at which point McManus swept the bench.

Creighton had six players in double figures.

Following Butler in the Memphis State scoring were Jack Romp with 14 points and Jim Hawkins with 12.

Golf's 'Grand Old Man' Chides Modern Players

'TOO MANY CLUBS, SLOW PLAY' FLAWS IN TODAY'S GAME

New York (AP)—One of golf's all-time great personalities chided the modern players Wednesday for carrying too much equipment and playing too slowly.

"The standard number of clubs now is 14 and some of the pros insist they need 16," said Francis Ouimet, the game's Grand Old Man. "That is ridiculous. Twelve should be an absolute maximum and most players will find they can get along very well with seven or eight."

Ouimet, 72, winner of the National Open as a 20-year-old caddie in 1913, returned to the scene of his triumph at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass., to referee a match between Bill Casper and Doug Sanders, shown on television last Saturday.

The man who served a record 28 years on the U.S. Walker Cup team as player and captain was asked what significant changes he had found in the fairway sport.

"The modern players are wonderful athletes and rare precisionists," he replied from his home in Wellesley, Mass. "They make it an exciting sport but if I was asked to pick the main flaws my answer would be: Too many clubs and dreary, slow play."

"The average golfer would do well to master half a dozen clubs, much less 14. As for the tournament pro, so many clubs makes play automatic, reduces skill and, I daresay, doesn't help much."

Ouimet recalled that he carried only 10 clubs and used only seven in his dramatic playoff victory over Britain's Harry Vardon and Ted Ray at Brookline 52 years ago.

"I had three wood clubs — two brassies, including one I drove with, and a wood cleek, much like the modern spoon," he said. "I had a putter, mid-iron equivalent to a three-iron, mashie six-iron and mashie-niblick eight-iron.

"There were three other clubs I carried for comfort—another niblick, a jigger shallow-faced iron and a sammy (a form of cleek). They were entirely sufficient. I think they would be sufficient today."

Ouimet said he felt that tournament players are confused by the choice of so many clubs. "They debate whether they should hit a soft three or a full four and sometimes they get so mixed up they blow the shot," he added.

Ouimet said he would like to conduct a survey after an important tournament such as the Masters or Open and determine just how many clubs the champion used.

"When Jack Nicklaus won the masters last April, I know it was said he used only five or six clubs on one round," the pleasant, soft-speaking New Englander said. "He used only one fairway wood. I think surveys would show most golfers use a few clubs and carry the others for comfort."

Ouimet did not blame indecision over clubs on the current trend toward slow play.

"I think this is caused by the huge amount of money resting on every shot," he said.

"In our day, we had our mind made up when we reached the ball. Gene Sarazen was a rapid player. Walter Hagen was carefree but careful. Bob Jones was never a drone. All played reasonably fast.

"Now players dawdle over every shot, even the shortest putts. Our caddies were used to keeping their eyes on the ball. The caddies today are strategists. Players confer with them so much the caddies get to thinking it's their game. This comes from a former caddie."

—GREAT SWIMMER WELL—

Schollander Ready To Compete Again

New Haven, Conn. (AP)—Don Schollander, the fabulous winner of four Olympic gold medals for swimming, makes his first Yale varsity appearance Saturday, a splash eagerly awaited by many.

The blond with the dimples and a boyish grin has been entered in only one event — the anchor leg in the 400-yard medley relay—against undefeated Navy.

But if the competition is tight, Coach Phil Moriarty says Schollander will be ready for other tests.

Among those who barely can wait for the swim is Schollander himself. To Don, who'll be 20 in April, the meet starts a drive for national and world honors that will reach its climax in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

The young swimmer from Lake Oswego, Ore., became eligible for varsity only last week. He didn't start his freshman year at Yale until February 1965, the result of competing in the Tokyo Olympic Games in the fall of 1964.

Last month, while waiting for Schollander to become eligible, Yale lost to Army, ending a dual meet winning streak that had stretched to 42.

With Schollander and another Olympian, Bill Mettler, a butterfly stroke whiz, experts predict it won't be long before the start of another golden swimming era for the sons of Eli.

Schollander, a bout with mononucleosis behind him feels fine, e said Wednesday. "I've been swimming every day and doing as well as I ever did at this time of the year."

His coach said Don is shaping up excellent. Schollander came down with mononucleosis—a disease bringing on fever, general weakness, headaches and a swelling of the lymph glands — last June while in Switzerland.

Schollander resumed swimming when he returned to Yale in September and has been swimming 1½ hours daily — all he has time for between classes and studies.

Why has Moriarty entered Schollander in only one event?

"We're trying to qualify others for the National Collegiate A.A. meet late in March," explained the coach. "Don qualified for the 200-yard sprint in the National AAU indoor meet last April, and we'll give him chances to qualify for other events during the rest of the season. We're trying to enter the national competition with the best possible balanced team."

"I feel ready," said the 172-pound Schollander, probably the world's greatest swimmer.

Sooners Bury Southern Foe

Norman, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma track and field performers placed first in 12 of 14 events to defeat Southern Methodist 87-25 in a dual indoor meet.

The meet, first indoor track and field event for both schools this season, was postponed from last Saturday because of bad weather.

Leroy Storbeck won Southern Methodists's only two first places against Oklahoma. He won the mile in 4:34.8 and came in first in the 1,000-yard event in 2:22.8.

Oklahoma's only double winner was Bill Calhoun, who ran the 440-yard dash in 50.1 and the 60-yard low hurdles in 6.9.

LA's Owner Would Accept Expansion

New York (AP) — Walter O'Malley testified Wednesday that he could be persuaded to accept expansion in major league baseball—but reiterated his personal opposition to expansion now.

The owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, a powerful figure in baseball, completed his deposition in Wisconsin's court action against the Braves and the National League. In the antitrust suit, the state is seeking to make the Braves play in Milwaukee this year—instead of moving to Atlanta—unless the city is given another big league franchise for 1966.

O'Malley, who testified earlier that expansion in 1966 "would wreak havoc on the league and on my club," said under cross examination that if a substantial majority of owners favored immediate expansion he "would subordinate my personal feelings" and go along.

He added that he did not know the prevailing majority feeling on the issue.

Depositions in the suit are being taken at the offices of National League attorneys, with Willard Stafford representing Wisconsin and Bowie Kuhn representing the league. Several baseball men have given depositions here and in other cities.

O'Malley was questioned for two hours Wednesday, completing testimony started Tuesday.

In his first session, O'Malley predicted an eventual expansion to three eight-team major leagues but said this was at least five years away.

On the subject of a nine-team league now, which other baseball people have called unworkable, O'Malley was asked by Stafford if that possibility had come up in 1960 when the Continental League was being proposed as the third major league.

The Dodger owner said it had never been considered seriously.

Four teams set for the Continental League were given franchises in the two established leagues. Stafford asked O'Malley what happened to the four others, which also were to have been taken into the majors eventually.

O'Malley at first answered that none of the four had applied for a franchise, then conceded Dallas-Fort Worth had made what he called a "pre-application" but that no action had been taken.

Stafford touched on the monopoly issue when he asked O'Malley if a team could be formed independently and then join organized baseball.

"No, they couldn't invite themselves in," O'Malley answered.

After a discussion of the Dodgers' profits, the National League lawyers decided against further testimony about finances until more specific ground rules were laid.

Stafford said his side will seek financial reports from all National League clubs.

Later, Bing Devine, assistant president of the New York Mets and former general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, testified that he, too, was opposed to expansion at this time.

"We're still assimilating from the expansion of 1962," Devine answered under questioning by Kuhn.

"We're also faced with the problem of retaining player personnel in view of the military situation. We deal with young players and some of them will be called to service or have to remain in college, particularly those on the minor league level."

Devine's desposition was completed in one hour and 15 minutes.

Bowie To Resume Racing Friday If . . .

. . . SNOW, FIRE AND DISEASE HIT HARD-LUCK TRACK

Bowie, Md. (AP) — Bowie race course, battling back from a winter snow, fire and disease, plans to resume racing Friday if the weather cooperates.

General Manager John F. Loome was cautiously optimistic Wednesday, although the track with the hard-luck history already had lost five days — counting Thursday—from a 26-day meeting which began Jan. 8.

"Heavy snow removal equipment and crews are working around the clock and we will be ready on Friday," he said.

"Of course, we have one ear cocked for other weather disturbances.

"The Storm of the Century has posed a problem at Bowie race course but we are well equipped to meet the challenge. Snow was removed from the track Wednesday morning and horses engaged in workouts.

"By Thursday afternoon our parking lots will be clear. Main arteries and access roads to the track are reported clear and the card for Friday attracted oversized fields in eight of the nine races."

Last month, possible cases of swamp fever — an incurable disease — were reported in seven horses at Bowie.

Monday, fire killed at least 41 thoroughbreds and destroyed five barns, causing an estimated $500,000 damage.

Snowstorms brought cancellations of Bowie's racing programs last Thursday and Friday and again this week.

However, Bowie's troubles began much earlier than 1966.

The Southern Maryland track began winter racing — with the horses running in January and February — in 1957. Next year a blizzard stranded 5,000 persons over a weekend and the track canceled six programs during that meeting.

On Feb. 3, 1961, a special race train ran down a bank, killing six persons and injuring more than 100. The same day fire destroyed a betting area in the grandstand.

In College Station, Tex., Wednesday, Dr. R. W. Moore of Texas A&M University said two out of five blood samples from horses at Bowie showed swamp fever, and one other sample possibly showed the disease.

Bowie said last Friday that Texas A&M had reported signs of swamp fever in two horses among 26 tested earlier. An autopsy showed that one horse who died during the scare, East India II, had symptoms of swamp fever but also had pneumonia.

Swamp Fever — It's technical name is equine infestious anemia — is incurable. Dr. Moore said that six major outbreaks in the nation have been investigated and all were caused by misuse of syringes or transfusion of blood.

Meanwhile, Loome announced plans to make up four of the lost days. One program will be run Feb. 8, on a scheduled dark day, he said, and three more during Bowie's spring meeting which runs from March 28 through April 30.

NU Gymnasts Entertain ISU, Sooners Saturday

A full slate of gymnastics is being offered this week at the University of Nebraska. At 10:30 Saturday morning the NU Frosh meet the Iowa State freshmen. At 2:00 in the afternoon Iowa State, Oklahoma and Nebraska will compete in a triple dual.

Nebraska is currently holding a 3-2 record. And considering the pre-season outlook given by Coach Jake Geier, the record is quite respectable.

The NU team is composed of ten sophomores, five juniors and no seniors. Geier expected this to be a 'rebuilding year' but the Husker gymnasts, led by Rich Beran and Allan Armstrong, have come up with victories over Ft. Hays, Kansas State and Wichita State. Losses came at the hands of Mankato and the University of Minnesota.

Fairbury Juco Hits Wentworth

Lexington, Mo. (AP) — Fairbury Junior College handed Wentworth Military Academy a 70-65 basketball defeat Wednesday night as Mike Backer hit 10 field goals and 10 for 10 free throws for 30 points. Bob Sawdon, usually the Fairbury scoring leader, was held to 10 points. Don Dohardy hit 25 points for Wentworth, hitting 11 of 14 gift shots.

Ex-Football Star To Have Parole Reduction Hearing

The State Parole Board Wednesday set March 16 for a hearing to consider reducing the sentence of a former Rushville High School football star serving a life term for first degree murder.

Penitentiary inmate Duane McLain, 32, had asked that the board consider an application for parole, but the board agreed only to take under submission his request for reduction of sentence.

McLain was imprisoned on Dec. 23, 1953, for the slaying of Miss Karon Talbot, 13, of Rushville.

McLaine, who was 19 at the time, hit the girl with a hammer, then shot her several times with a rifle before burying her body in a field south of Rushville on the night of Aug. 20, 1953.

He confessed the crime shortly afterward and pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge but was found guilty by a Dawes District Court jury.

The Parole Board also set March 16 hearings on the parole requests of 11 other Penitentiary inmates and hearings the following day on the freedom bids of four Men's Reformatory inmates.

Penitentiary inmates to be heard, with name, age, home, crime, county in which convicted, term and date of sentencing, included:

Ralph L. Ridgeway, 26, Maryland; escape from custody, two counts; Cheyenne; 3-5 years; Oct. 23, 1963.

Henry Hawn, 27, Wisconsin; possession of forged and counterfeit checks; Gage; 5 years; Feb. 28, 1964.

Lloyd E. Enfield, 34, Oregon; breaking custody; Phelps; 3-6 years; Nov. 11, 1963.

Richard Borrell, 22, Hastings; breaking and entering; Adams; 3 years; Dec. 4, 1964.

Melvin E. Allen, 27; Wisconsin; burglary; Douglas; 3 years; July 30, 1964.

Raymond E. McCarty, 31, Omaha; burglary; Douglas; 6 years; March 22, 1963

Tom L. Standlee, 21, Idaho; insufficient fund check; Hall; 1-2 years; April 23, 1965.

Roland Cullen, 37, Edgar; breaking and entering; Holt; 10 years; Jan. 29, 1962.

Donald Maas, 23, Oregon; uttering forged instrument; Madison; 2½ years; March 19, 1965.

William Bradford, 49, Lincoln; uttering forged instrument; Otoe; six years; May 20, 1963.

Allen A. Marth, 24, Broken Bow; rape; Sherman; 6 years; June 17, 1963.

The Reformatory inmates included:

Larry W. Adams, 18, South Dakota; auto theft and violation of bench parole; Cherry; two years; March 10, 1964.

Frank G. Kibler, 23, Fremont; forgery; Dodge; 1-3 years; Feb. 25, 1965.

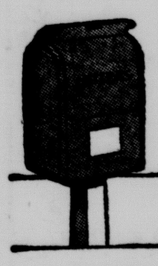

Larry Copass, 23, Cozad; breaking and entering; Gosper; 15-30 months; Dec. 21, 1964.

'EVERY EFFORT' PLEDGED IN DEFENSE OF REMAP

Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer said Wednesday his office will "make every effort" to uphold the validity of Nebraska's newest legislative reapportionment law in Federal Court Monday.

He said assistant attorneys general Richard H. Williams and Robert Nelson will defend the act in a hearing before a panel of three judges.

Meyer had appointed a special assistant, Cecil O. Johnson of Omaha, to back the act in the State Supreme Court because he thought it violated the state constitution.

No Violation

However, the state court ruled that the 1965 Legislature did not violate the constitution by crossing county lines in remapping the state.

The State AFL-CIO has challenged the act in Federal Court. It wants the panel to order an at-large election this spring.

Meyer said his assistants will direct their efforts toward avoiding an at-large election.

The federal judges are expected to rule in a hurry on the act since the deadline for filing for the 1967 Legislature is little more than a month away.

Didn't Meet Standard

The judges struck down a 1963 redistricting act and the first plan passed by the last Legislature. In both instances, they said the acts did not meet the one-man, one-vote apportionment standard.

The judges said in their latest ruling that if the 1965 Legislature did not come up with a valid plan, they would order at-large elections.

U.S. Satellites Lead

Zurich, Switzerland (AP)—The United States has made more than twise as many successful space launchings as the Soviet Union, the Swiss Society for the Study of Rocket Techniques estimated. It figured the score at 255 to 123 for the leaders and listed one by France, and of the 199 whirling around now, 155 are American, 43 Russian and one French.

Taxpayers Reminded That Personal Property $200 Exemption Repealed

State Tax Commissioner George Dworak reminded Nebraskans Wednesday that the 1965 Legislature repealed the $200 personal property tax exemption.

This means, he added, that everyone who owns anything must report it as taxable this year — including the shirt on the taxpayer's back.

Dworak said a preliminary report shows that the elimination of the exemption is increasing property values in most counties.

Taxpayers have until March 1 to submit their 1966 personal property tax reports to county assessors.

Golf's 'Grand Old Man' Chides Modern Players

'TOO MANY CLUBS, SLOW PLAY' FLAWS IN TODAY'S GAME

New York (AP)—One of golf's all-time great personalities chided the modern players Wednesday for carrying too much equipment and playing too slowly.

"The standard number of clubs now is 14 and some of the pros insist they need 16," said Francis Ouimet, the game's Grand Old Man. "That is ridiculous. Twelve should be an absolute maximum and most players will find they can get along very well with seven or eight."

Ouimet, 72, winner of the National Open as a 20-year-old caddie in 1913, returned to the scene of his triumph at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass., to referee a match between Bill Casper and Doug Sanders, shown on television last Saturday.

The man who served a record 28 years on the U.S. Walker Cup team as player and captain was asked what significant changes he had found in the fairway sport.

"The modern players are wonderful athletes and rare precisionists," he replied from his home in Wellesley, Mass. "They make it an exciting sport but if I was asked to pick the main flaws my answer would be: Too many clubs and dreary, slow play."

"The average golfer would do well to master half a dozen clubs, much less 14. As for the tournament pro, so many clubs makes play automatic, reduces skill and, I daresay, doesn't help much."

Ouimet recalled that he carried only 10 clubs and used only seven in his dramatic playoff victory over Britain's Harry Vardon and Ted Ray at Brookline 52 years ago.

"I had three wood clubs — two brassies, including one I drove with, and a wood cleek, much like the modern spoon," he said. "I had a putter, mid-iron equivalent to a three-iron, mashie six-iron and mashie-niblick eight-iron.

"There were three other clubs I carried for comfort—another niblick, a jigger shallow-faced iron and a sammy (a form of cleek). They were entirely sufficient. I think they would be sufficient today."

Ouimet said he felt that tournament players are confused by the choice of so many clubs. "They debate whether they should hit a soft three or a full four and sometimes they get so mixed up they blow the shot," he added.

Ouimet said he would like to conduct a survey after an important tournament such as the Masters or Open and determine just how many clubs the champion used.

"When Jack Nicklaus won the masters last April, I know it was said he used only five or six clubs on one round," the pleasant, soft-speaking New Englander said. "He used only one fairway wood. I think surveys would show most golfers use a few clubs and carry the others for comfort."

Ouimet did not blame indecision over clubs on the current trend toward slow play.

"I think this is caused by the huge amount of money resting on every shot," he said.

"In our day, we had our mind made up when we reached the ball. Gene Sarazen was a rapid player. Walter Hagen was carefree but careful. Bob Jones was never a drone. All played reasonably fast.

"Now players dawdle over every shot, even the shortest putts. Our caddies were used to keeping their eyes on the ball. The caddies today are strategists. Players confer with them so much the caddies get to thinking it's their game. This comes from a former caddie."

—GREAT SWIMMER WELL—

Schollander Ready To Compete Again

New Haven, Conn. (AP)—Don Schollander, the fabulous winner of four Olympic gold medals for swimming, makes his first Yale varsity appearance Saturday, a splash eagerly awaited by many.

The blond with the dimples and a boyish grin has been entered in only one event — the anchor leg in the 400-yard medley relay—against undefeated Navy.

But if the competition is light, Coach Phil Moriarty says Schollander will be ready for other tests.

Among those who barely can wait for the swim is Schollander himself. To Don, who'll be 20 in April, the meet starts a drive for national and world honors that will reach its climax in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City.

The young swimmer from Lake Oswego, Ore., became eligible for varsity only last week. He didn't start his freshman year at Yale until February 1965, the result of competing in the Tokyo Olympic Games in the fall of 1964.

Last month, while waiting for Schollander to become eligible, Yale lost to Army, ending a dual meet winning streak that had stretched to 42.

With Schollander and another Olympian, Bill Mettler, a butterfly stroke whiz, experts predict it won't be long before the start of another golden swimming era for the sons of Eli.

Schollander, a bout with mononucleosis behind him feels fine, e said Wednesday. "I've been swimming every day and doing as well as I ever did at this time of the year."

His coach said Don is shaping up excellent. Schollander came down with mononucleosis—a disease bringing on fever, general weakness, headaches and a swelling of the lymph glands — last June while in Switzerland.

Schollander resumed swimming when he returned to Yale in September and has been swimming 1½ hours daily — all he has time for between classes and studies.

Why has Moriarty entered Schollander in only one event?

"We're trying to qualify others for the National Collegiate A.A. meet late in March," explained the coach. "Don qualified for the 200-yard sprint in the National AAU indoor meet last April, and we'll give him chances to qualify for other events during the rest of the season. We're trying to enter the national competition with the best possible balanced team."

"I feel ready," said the 172-pound Schollander, probably the world's greatest swimmer.

Sooners Bury Southern Foe

Norman, Okla. (AP) — University of Oklahoma track and field performers placed first in 12 of 14 events to defeat Southern Methodist 87-25 in a dual indoor meet.

The meet, first indoor track and field event for both schools this season, was postponed from last Saturday because of bad weather.

Leroy Storbeck won Southern Methodists's only two first places against Oklahoma. He won the mile in 4:34.8 and came in first in the 1,000-yard event in 2:22.8.

Oklahoma's only double winner was Bill Calhoun, who ran the 440-yard dash in 50.1 and the 60-yard low hurdles in 6.9.

Ex-Football Star To Have Parole Reduction Hearing

The State Parole Board Wednesday set March 16 for a hearing to consider reducing the sentence of a former Rushville High School football star serving a life term for first degree murder.

Penitentiary inmate Duane McLain, 32, had asked that the board consider an application for parole, but the board agreed only to take under submission his request for reduction of sentence.

McLain was imprisoned on Dec. 23, 1953, for the slaying of Miss Karon Talbot, 13, of Rushville.

McLaine, who was 19 at the time, hit the girl with a hammer, then shot her several times with a rifle before burying her body in a field south of Rushville on the night of Aug. 20, 1953.

He confessed the crime shortly afterward and pleaded innocent to a first degree murder charge but was found guilty by a Dawes District Court jury.

The Parole Board also set March 16 hearings on the parole requests of 11 other Penitentiary inmates and hearings the following day on the freedom bids of four Men's Reformatory inmates.

Penitentiary inmates to be heard, with name, age, home, crime, county in which convicted, term and date of sentencing, included:

Ralph L. Ridgeway, 26, Maryland; escape from custody, two counts; Cheyenne; 1-3 years; Oct 23, 1963.
Henry Hawn, 27, Wisconsin; possession of forged and counterfeit checks; Gage; 3 years; Feb 28, 1964.
Lloyd E. Enfield, 34, Oregon, breaking custody; Phelps; 3-6 years, Nov. 11, 1963.
Richard Borrell, 22, Hastings, breaking and entering, Adams; 3 years, Dec. 1, 1964
Melvin E. Allen, 27; Wisconsin; burglary; Douglas; 3 years; July 30, 1964.
Raymond E. McCarty, 31, Omaha; burglary; Douglas; 6 years; March 22, 1963
Tom L. Standlee, 21, Idaho; insufficient fund check; Hall; 1-2 years; April 23, 1965.
Roland Cullen, 37, Edgar; breaking and entering; Holt; 10 years; Jan. 29, 1962.
Donald Maas, 23, Oregon; uttering forged instrument; Madison; 2½ years; March 19, 1963.
William Bradford, 49, Lincoln; uttering forged instrument; Otoe; six years; May 20, 1963.
Allen A. Marth, 24, Broken Bow; rape; Sherman; 6 years; June 17, 1963

The Reformatory inmates included:

Larry W. Adams, 18, South Dakota; auto theft and violation of bench parole; Cherry; two years; March 10, 1964.
Frank G. Kibler, 23, Fremont; forgery; Dodge; 1-3 years; Feb. 25, 1963
Larry Copass, 23, Cozad; breaking and entering; Gosper; 15-30 months; Dec. 21, 1964.
Lee Daniels, 19, Lexington; breaking and entering; Gosper; 15-30 months; Dec. 21, 1964

Swedes Off A Month

Stockholm — Fully effective in 1965 for the first time was a 1963 law that gives all wage and salary earners in Sweden a four-week vacation. Many companies closed for all July.

'EVERY EFFORT' PLEDGED IN DEFENSE OF REMAP

Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer said Wednesday his office will "make every effort" to uphold the validity of Nebraska's newest legislative reapportionment law in Federal Court Monday.

He said assistant attorneys general Richard H. Williams and Robert Nelson will defend the act in a hearing before a panel of three judges.

Meyer had appointed a special assistant, Cecil O. Johnson of Omaha, to back the act in the State Supreme Court because he thought it violated the state constitution.

No Violation

However, the state court ruled that the 1965 Legislature did not violate the constitution by crossing county lines in remapping the state.

The State AFL-CIO has challenged the act in Federal Court. It wants the panel to order an at-large election this spring.

Meyer said his assistants will direct their efforts toward avoiding an at-large election.

The federal judges are expected to rule in a hurry on the act since the deadline for filing for the 1967 Legislature is little more than a month away.

Didn't Meet Standard

The judges struck down a 1963 redistricting act and the first plan passed by the last Legislature. In both instances, they said the acts did not meet the one-man, one-vote apportionment standard.

The judges said in their latest ruling that if the 1965 Legislature did not come up with a valid plan, they would order at-large elections.

U.S. Satellites Lead

Zurich, Switzerland (AP)—The United States has made more than twise as many successful space launchings as the Soviet Union, the Swiss Society for the Study of Rocket Techniques estimated. It figured the score at 255 to 123 for the leaders and listed one by France, and of the 199 whirling around now, 155 are American, 43 Russian and one French.

Taxpayers Reminded That Personal Property $200 Exemption Repealed

State Tax Commissioner George Dworak reminded Nebraskans Wednesday that the 1965 Legislature repealed the $200 personal property tax exemption.

This means, he added, that everyone who owns anything must report it as taxable this year — including the shirt on the taxpayer's back.

Dworak said a preliminary report shows that the elimination of the exemption is increasing property values in most counties.

Taxpayers have until March 1 to submit their 1966 personal property tax reports to county assessors.

Man Similar To Powers Seen At Crime

Miami, Fla. (AP) — A broadcast executive testified Wednesday he saw a man "with a similarity" to Melvin Lane Powers leave the Governor's Lodge apartments the night Jacques Mossler was murdered there.

Marvin Tavel, general manager of radio station WOAH, said the man was dressed in dark slacks and a dark shirt and wore his hair down to his shirt collar in the back.

Defense attorney Percy Foreman moved for a mistrial and was denied, when Assistant State Atty. Arthur Huttoe showed Tavel a picture on Powers from police files taken shortly after the killing.

Similarity

The witness testified that there was a similarity between the man in the pictures and the one he saw in the apartment house.

Powers, who is charged with his aunt, Candace Mossler, with plotting the murder of her wealthy husband, wore his hair long at that time, June 30, 1964, but now has a shorter cut.

Mrs. Robert Arone, an attractive, red haired former model, testified that she left the apartment building about 3:15 a.m. that night to get some cigarettes and found the driveway blocked by a red Pontiac convertible.

As the convertible was moved to let her by, she said she thought she recognized Rita Wilder, Mrs. Mossler's daughter, in the car, and some of Mrs. Mossler's adopted children in the back seat. She said she could not be sure however.

She walked out on her balcony, she said, and heard the sounds of a scuffle, a cry of, "Don't do that to me," and a thud. Then she said she heard footsteps going down the stairs.

Lack Of Sites Delays Airport Construction

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen said Wednesday the main roadblock to constructing airports at recreation areas is finding suitable sites for the airstrips.

He said many of the state's major recreation areas are located in terrain which makes airport construction costs prohibitive or the cost of land purchase is excessive.

However, he noted there is a "considerable demand" for airports at recreation areas and the demand will increase as flying becomes more popular.

Steen said airports are located near many Nebraska recreation attractions, like Lake McConaughy, Harlan County Reservoir and Harry Strunk Lake, but other sites, notably Fort Robinson, have no nearby airfields.

The State Aeronautics Commission last month called for construction of an airport at each major recreation site in Nebraska.

Aeronautics Department officials said the biggest problems preventing an accelerated recreational airport construction program is the prohibition against using federal funds for private airports and indetermination of what agency should be responsible for maintaining such airports.

Faisal Ends Visit

Amman, Jordan (AP)—King Faisal of Saudia Arabia flew home at the conclusion of his seven-day visit to Jordan.

New Cash Transmittal Sheet Eyed

State Treasurer Fred Sorensen said Wednesday the cash transmittal sheet used by county treasurers in remitting state revenue is "being revised and simplified."

Sorensen said he and two state tax commissioner representatives met earlier this week with Cuming County Treasurer Leo J. Schmitt at West Point in developing a revised form.

"The present form, devised by the state administrative services department, has been causing confusion and complaints among the county treasurers," he said.

Sorensen said the present form listing 27 tax fund and fee items for the state "will be consolidated by 20% to 25% and unnecessary detail eliminated."

The transmittal sheet is used monthly by the 93 county treasurers in reporting tax and fee collections for the state, including the property tax, intangibles, driver licenses, auto registration and building fund levies, and other special funds.

Sorensen anticipated a new form will be issued to the county treasurers in the very near future.

$150,000 Sought In Accident Suit

Sharon Hanson filed a $150,000 suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday in connection with a Feb. 9, 1965, car-truck collision.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendants, Fairmont Foods Co. and Joseph R. Bertsch, when a Fairmont truck driven by Bertsch was in collision with a car in which the plaintiff was riding at Sunburst Lane and A Street.

Hedy Gets Continuance

Los Angeles (UPI)—Actress Hedy Lamarr did not appear in court for arraignment on a charge of shoplifting $86 in merchandise from a department store, but her attorney won a continuance of the case until Feb. 9.

Dirksen Blocks Committee's Continued Policy Hearings

Washington (AP) — A move by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to reopen hearings at which members have criticized U.S. policy in Asia was blocked Wednesday by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

The senator from Arkansas, J. W. Fulbright, arose to say plaintively that his Foreign Relations Committee has a lot of Viet Nam business and wouldn't the Senate let it get about it?

An aisle away the senator from Illinois, Dirksen, his feet planted solidly apart, shook his head determinedly. He said a firm no.

Everybody was exceedingly polite to everybody else as Chairman Fulbright made a pitch to renew the hearings in which members last week scorched Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Asian policies.

Another Fish

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader from Illinois, objected because he had another fish to fry.

The point of contention is a Senate rule which forbids committees from meeting while the Senate is in session.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has been calling Senate meetings two hours earlier than usual at 10 a.m., in a gentlemanly attempt to break a filibuster being managed by Dirksen.

Seeking to prevent the Senate from taking up a House-passed bill which would end state authority to ban union shop contracts, Dirksen retaliated by objecting to committee meetings. This forced senators either to hold early morning or night meetings, a circumstance most of them find inconvenient, or not meet at all.

Blocking Exploration

With Fulbright lounging against a desk nearby, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., jumped up to say that those who were blocking full exploration of foreign policy he and others want "are assuming a serious responsibiliy for the safety and future of this nation."

Dirksen said he was perfectly willing to clear the way for any action the Senate wants to take on Viet Nam issues. All Mansfield had to do, he said, was to withdraw the motion to take up the union shop bill.

"Is compulsory unionism more important than the lives of the young men who are slugging through the swamps of Viet Nam?" Dirksen asked.

Smiling a little, the Democratic leader replied that no Viet Nam legislation is ready for Senate action.

Fulbright wanted to know how it happened that the Senate Armed Services Committee was listening at the time to closed testimony from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Before Subcommittee

Mansfield replied that McNamara officially was before a Senate appropriations subcommittee with which the armed services members were sitting. He recalled that the Appropriations Committee had received unanimous consent last year to meet during the 89th Congress while the Senate was in session.

Fulbright then came up with a motion to permit his committee to meet Friday, when he said it wants to hear foreign aid Director David E. Bell on the Viet Nam economic assistance request.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, assistant Democratic leader, bounded down the aisle to denounce this as a "dilatory motion." He said opponents of the union shop bill could talk endlessly about the proposal.

Bowing to Fulbright, he said he knew the Arkansas senator didn't mean to be dilatory, but that his motion was. Long asked an agreement for only five minutes of debate on the Fulbright proposal.

Sen. Norrus Cotton, R-N.H., boomed an objection.

Shrugging his shoulders, Long moved to kill the Fulbright proposal by a tabling motion.

When it carried by a 52-31 roll call vote, everybody was right back where the whole thing started.

Fulbright announced he will call his committee together a half hour before the Senate meets Thursday to decide what to do.

Bull Buying Blocked

Hereford, England (AP)—Britain's embargo on trade with rebel Rhodesia has blocked sales of seven thoroughbred Hereford bulls. The government board of trade refused to make an exception for the Hereford Breed Society to fill an order from Rhodesian cattleman Archie Black.

Otoe County Honored For Watershed Project

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Syracuse — Otoe County, a national leader in watershed construction, added another first to its impressive conservation record Wednesday night.

It became the first county in Nebraska to receive national recognition on watershed development under a special Agriculture Conservation Program project.

The Wilson Creek watershed project of Otoe County was awarded a certificate of merit from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) for securing construction agreements on 51 of 53 farms in the drainage area within one year.

To speed land treatment measures required for Wilson Creek watershed, the Otoe County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Commission set up a special reserve fund of $72,000 to be used only on farms in the project during a three year period.

The special recognition came from the USDA on a project that was at one time considered impossible to complete, and in a number of years came through with 422,500 square feet of sodded waterways, 133,300 square feet of terraces, and two erosion control dams in a years' time.

Hans Jensen, state ASC chairman, presented the award to Les Hohnroth of Nebraska City, chairman of the Otoe County ASC Committee.

Jensen noted that Otoe County is the home of the national award-winning Brownell watershed, and said it was quite appropriate for the county to take the leadership in conservation development by utilizing the new special projects program to speed conservation work.

Senate Urged Not To Hinder Wheat Sales

Washington (AP)—A U.S. Department of Agriculture official cautioned the Senate Wednesday against putting new restrictions on government sale of surplus wheat.

There is no need to raise the minimum price for such sales to 115% of support prices, Edwin A. Jaenke, associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, told the Agriculture Committee.

The minimum is now 105%. The committee is considering a bill by Sens. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., and Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., to raise it to 115%.

Jaenke said U.S. should have the opportunity to supply the market when there are scarcities.

Young said Secretary Orville L. Freeman had been selling no wheat from Commodity Credit Corp. stocks when he announced last November the government would sell wheat at 108%.

Woman Refuses To Leave Invalid Husband In Fire

Police said Clifford Reed, 63, an invalid, and his wife Susan, 62, died of smoke inhalation.

Officers said neighbors, prevented by smoke and flames from entering the house, pleaded with Mrs. Reed to come out, but she refused. Firemen said the blaze apparently was started by a heating unit.

WHITE DUO GUILTY OF KILLING FLORIDA NEGRO

Deland, Fla. (UPI)—Two white men were convicted of first degree murder by an all-white jury Wednesday in the slaying of a 58-year-old Negro they picked up hitchhiking.

After three hours of deliberations, the jury found Charles A. Cirack, 22 and Richard White, 24, guilty in the slaying of Moses Jackson of Oviedo last May.

Mercy was recommended for White.

Under Florida law Cirack faces death in the electric chair and White life in prison.

The pair have 10 days to appeal the verdict and file for a new trial.

Andrew Cashe, a 49-year-old Negro, testified the two white men picked up him and Jackson while they were hitchhiking, drove them to a wooded area and robbed and shot them.

Cashe was wounded but recovered.

Man Similar To Powers Seen At Crime

Miami, Fla. (AP) — A broadcast executive testified Wednesday he saw a man "with a similarity" to Melvin Lane Powers leave the Governor's Lodge apartments the night Jacques Mossler was murdered there.

Marvin Tavel, general manager of radio station WOAH, said the man was dressed in dark slacks and a dark shirt and wore his hair down to his shirt collar in the back.

Defense attorney Percy Foreman moved for a mistrial and was denied, when Assistant State Atty. Arthur Huttoe showed Tavel a picture on Powers from police files taken shortly after the killing.

Similarity

The witness testified that there was a similarity between the man in the pictures and the one he saw in the apartment house.

Powers, who is charged with his aunt, Candace Mossler, with plotting the murder of her wealthy husband, wore his hair long at that time, June 30, 1964, but now has a shorter cut.

Mrs. Robert Arone, an attractive, red haired former model, testified that she left the apartment building about 3:15 a.m. that night to get some cigarettes and found the driveway blocked by a red Pontiac convertible.

As the convertible was moved to let her by, she said she thought she recognized Rita Wilder, Mrs. Mossler's daughter, in the car, and some of Mrs. Mossler's adopted children in the back seat. She said she could not be sure however.

She walked out on her balcony, she said, and heard the sounds of a scuffle, a cry of, "Don't do that to me," and a thud. Then she said she heard footsteps going down the stairs.

Lack Of Sites Delays Airport Construction

State Game Commission Director Mel Steen said Wednesday the main roadblock to constructing airports at recreation areas is finding suitable sites for the airstrips.

He said many of the state's major recreation areas are located in terrain which makes airport construction costs prohibitive or the cost of land purchase is excessive.

However, he noted there is a "considerable demand" for airports at recreation areas and the demand will increase as flying becomes more popular.

Steen said airports are located near many Nebraska recreation attractions, like Lake McConaughy, Harlan County Reservoir and Harry Strunk Lake, but other sites, notably Fort Robinson, have no nearby airfields.

The State Aeronautics Commission last month called for construction of an airport at each major recreation site in Nebraska.

Aeronautics Department officials said the biggest problems preventing an accelerated recreational airport construction program is the prohibition against using federal funds for private airports and indetermination of what agency should be responsible for maintaining such airports.

Amman, Jordan (AP)—King Faisal of Saudia Arabia flew home at the conclusion of his seven-day visit to Jordan.

New Cash Transmittal Sheet Eyed

State Treasurer Fred Sorensen said Wednesday the cash transmittal sheet used by county treasurers in remitting state revenue is "being revised and simplified."

Sorensen said he and two state tax commissioner representatives met earlier this week with Cuming County Treasurer Leo J. Schmitt at West Point in developing a revised form.

"The present form, devised by the state administrative services department, has been causing confusion and complaints among the county treasurers," he said.

Sorensen said the present form listing 27 tax fund and fee items for the state "will be consolidated by 20% to 25% and unnecessary detail eliminated."

The transmittal sheet is used monthly by the 93 county treasurers in reporting tax and fee collections for the state, including the property tax, intangibles, driver licenses, auto registration and building fund levies, and other special funds.

Sorensen anticipated a new form will be issued to the county treasurers in the very near future.

$150,000 Sought In Accident Suit

Sharon Hanson filed a $150,000 suit in Lancaster District Court Wednesday in connection with a Feb. 9, 1965, car-truck collision.

The plaintiff alleges negligence on the part of the defendants, Fairmont Foods Co. and Joseph R. Bertsch, when a Fairmont truck driven by Bertsch was in collision with a car in which the plaintiff was riding at Sunburst Lane and A Street.

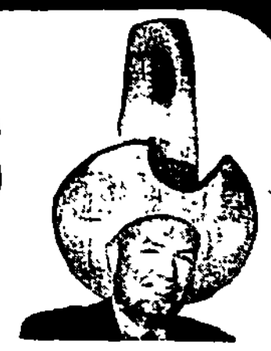

Hedy Gets Continuance

Los Angeles (UPI)—Actress Hedy Lamarr did not appear in court for arraignment on a charge of shoplifting $86 in merchandise from a department store, but her attorney won a continuance of the case until Feb. 9.

DOWNTOWN — 2 SALES FLOORS "THANK YOU FOR SHOPPING AT KRESGE'S" GATEWAY
S. S. KRESGE COMPANY

A note from the beauty parlors this morning. Ladies are going off the gold standard.

"Blondes, natural or otherwise, are disappearing on a world-wide basis," reports a Committee on Demographic Studies. (Who appoints these committees? Helena Rubenstein's press agent probably.)

Anyway, the Committee said Sweden is the blondest country. Yet blondes have fallen off 20% in the last 10 years.

"By the year 2100, blondes will be extremely rare throughout the world."

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, it seems only yesterday that Anita Loos made plenty peroxide money out of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Heaven knows what they will prefer when blondes are gone but not forgotten.

Speaking of committees, I had an idea of a Save-the-Blondes Committee.

"Every member save a blonde, Save a blonde for every member"—a catchy slogan.

But I got a lot of local household objections. I said, "Goodness, can't you take a joke?" (Apparently not. True appreciation of humor is scarce around here. A sunny disposition is wasted.)

☆ ☆ ☆

About The Case of the Disappearing Blondes now. No mention is made by the important Committee about why blondes are going the way of the whooping crane and dinosaur. They just are.

What will people talk about when blondes no longer sparkle?

Hair color is good for at least one brisk evening in most households today.

Madam says: "Joe, how do you like my hair?"

Joe says: "What? Oh, your hair looks fine."

Madam says: "I went to the beauty parlor today."

Joe says: "What? Why that's good. Fine."

Madam says: "Does it look all right? I mean, natural?" (Careful, Joe. Minefield. Achtung Mine!!)

Joe says: "It certainly looks natural to me."

"Oh, Joe," says Madam weeping, "they ruined it! And you don't care!"

☆ ☆ ☆

In many a tinted year, I saw my loved ones, large and small, go through the blended blonde routine. (Gad, the suffering I've seen!)

My oldest chick was a happy brunette until the golden teens when she decided to gild the lily.

She got hold of a bottle of mixed emotions that was supposed to make you come out like Kim Novak. She came out — well, brassy is the best word I can think of. Though I wished I had thought of another at the time I said it.

With a household of muffins, I've gone through streaks. I've gone through rinses. I've gone through lanolin — a kind of sheep dip. I've gone through pure hell.

However, it kept things lively around the scatter. And what will people do for amusement when all this high grade ore is turned to lead?

☆ ☆ ☆

The quality of blondes in journalism is well known. Blondes are twice as fat with editors as brunettes. (Ask me not why. Editors live on a high plains I've never understood.)

If I didn't know much about their Art, I knew what they liked. And while working for space rates for a New York tabloid, I peroxided more ladies than Elizabeth Arden.

I wrote, "A honey-blonde former coed blasted her boy friend with a .38—."

I wired urgently: "Statuesque ash-blonde showgirl icepicks lover."

☆ ☆ ☆

The fact was that many of these ladies were rinsed only by my typed word. But New York was far away, and the editors so eager I didn't want to disappoint them.

Dirksen Blocks Committee's Continued Policy Hearings

Washington (AP) — A move by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to reopen hearings at which members have criticized U.S. policy in Asia was blocked Wednesday by Sen. Everett M. Dirksen.

The senator from Arkansas, J. W. Fulbright, arose to say plaintively that his Foreign Relations Committee has a lot of Viet Nam business and wouldn't the Senate let it get about it?

An aisle away the senator from Illinois, Dirksen, his feet planted solidly apart, shook his head determinedly. He said a firm no.

Everybody was exceedingly polite to everybody else as Chairman Fulbright made a pitch to renew the hearings in which members last week scorched Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Asian policies.

Another Fish

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader from Illinois, objected because he had another fish to fry.

The point of contention is a Senate rule which forbids committees from meeting while the Senate is in session.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has been calling Senate meetings two hours earlier than usual at 10 a.m., in a gentlemanly attempt to break a filibuster being managed by Dirksen.

Seeking to prevent the Senate from taking up a House-passed bill which would end state authority to ban union shop contracts, Dirksen retaliated by objecting to committee meetings. This forced senators either to hold early morning or night meetings, a circumstance most of them find inconvenient, or not meet at all.

Blocking Exploration

With Fulbright lounging against a desk nearby, Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., jumped up to say that those who were blocking full exploration of foreign policy he and others want "are assuming a serious responsibiliy for the safety and future of this nation."

Dirksen said he was perfectly willing to clear the way for any action the Senate wants to take on Viet Nam issues. All Mansfield had to do, he said, was to withdraw the motion to take up the union shop bill.

"Is compulsory unionism more important than the lives of the young men who are slugging through the swamps of Viet Nam?" Dirksen asked.

Smiling a little, the Democratic leader replied that no Viet Nam legislation is ready for Senate action.

Fulbright wanted to know how it happened that the Senate Armed Services Committee was listening at the time to closed testimony from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Before Subcommittee

Mansfield replied that McNamara officially was before a Senate appropriations subcommittee with which the armed services members were sitting. He recalled that the Appropriations Committee had received unanimous consent last year to meet during the 89th Congress while the Senate was in session.

Fulbright then came up with a motion to permit his committee to meet Friday, when he said it wants to hear foreign aid Director David E. Bell on the Viet Nam economic assistance request.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, assistant Democratic leader, bounded down the aisle to denounce this as a "dilatory motion." He said opponents of the union shop bill could talk endlessly about the proposal.

Bowing to Fulbright, he said he knew the Arkansas senator didn't mean to be dilatory, but that his motion was. Long asked an agreement for only five minutes of debate on the Fulbright proposal.

Sen. Norrus Cotton, R-N.H., boomed an objection.

Shrugging his shoulders, Long moved to kill the Fulbright proposal by a tabling motion.

When it carried by a 52-31 roll call vote, everybody was right back where the whole thing started.

Fulbright announced he will call his committee together a half hour before the Senate meets Thursday to decide what to do.

Bull Buying Blocked

Hereford, England (AP)—Britain's embargo on trade with rebel Rhodesia has blocked sales of seven thoroughbred Hereford bulls. The government board of trade refused to make an exception for the Hereford Breed Society to fill an order from Rhodesian cattleman Archie Black.

WANTS ORDER

Robert L. Pierce heads a 12-member committee assigned to remove some of the noise and confusion from the next Republican National Convention. Pierce, Wisconsin's GOP national committeeman, favors keeping some hoopla, but he wants more discipline, too.

Senate Urged Not To Hinder Wheat Sales

Washington (AP)—A U.S. Department of Agriculture official cautioned the Senate Wednesday against putting new restrictions on government sale of surplus wheat.

There is no need to raise the minimum price for such sales to 115% of support prices, Edwin A. Jaenke, associate administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, told the Agriculture Committee.

The minimum is now 105%. The committee is considering a bill by Sens. Milton R. Young, R-N.D., and Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., to raise it to 115%.

Jaenke said U.S. should have the opportunity to supply the market when there are scarcities.

Young said Secretary Orville L. Freeman had been selling no wheat from Commodity Credit Corp. stocks when he announced last November the government would sell wheat at 108%.

Otoe County Honored For Watershed Project

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

Syracuse — Otoe County, a national leader in watershed construction, added another first to its impressive conservation record Wednesday night.

It became the first county in Nebraska to receive national recognition on watershed development under a special Agriculture Conservation Program project.

The Wilson Creek watershed project of Otoe County was awarded a certificate of merit from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) for securing construction agreements on 51 of 53 farms in the drainage area within one year.

To speed land treatment measures required for Wilson Creek watershed, the Otoe County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Commission set up a special reserve fund of $72,000 to be used only on farms in the project during a three year period.

The special recognition came from the USDA on a project that was at one time considered impossible to complete, and in a number of years came through with 422,500 square feet of sodded waterways, 133,300 square feet of terraces, and two erosion control dams in a years' time.

Hans Jensen, state ASC chairman, presented the award to Les Hohnroth of Nebraska City, chairman of the Otoe County ASC Committee.

Jensen noted that Otoe County is the home of the national award-winning Brownell watershed, and said it was quite appropriate for the county to take the leadership in conservation development by utilizing the new special projects program to speed conservation work.

Woman Refuses To Leave Invalid Husband In Fire

Sparta, Ill. (AP)—A woman refused to leave her bedfast husband Tuesday night and died with him in a fire that destroyed their home here.

Police said Clifford Reed, 63, an invalid, and his wife Susan, 62, died of smoke inhalation.

Officers said neighbors, prevented by smoke and flames from entering the house, pleaded with Mrs. Reed to come out, but she refused. Firemen said the blaze apparently was started by a heating unit.

WHITE DUO GUILTY OF KILLING FLORIDA NEGRO

Deland, Fla. (UPI)—Two white men were convicted of first degree murder by an all-white jury Wednesday in the slaying of a 58-year-old Negro they picked up hitchhiking.

After three hours of deliberations, the jury found Charles A. Cirack, 22 and Richard White, 24, guilty in the slaying of Moses Jackson of Oviedo last May.

Mercy was recommended for White.

Under Florida law Cirack faces death in the electric chair and White life in prison.

The pair have 10 days to appeal the verdict and file for a new trial.

Andrew Cashe, a 49-year-old Negro, testified the two white men picked up him and Jackson while they were hitchhiking, drove them to a wooded area and robbed and shot them.

Cashe was wounded but recovered.

DOWNTOWN ONLY

A note from the beauty parlors this morning. Ladies are going off the gold standard.

"Blondes, natural or otherwise, are disappearing on a world-wide basis," reports a Committee on Demographic Studies. (Who appoints these committees? Helena Rubenstein's press agent probably.)

Anyway, the Committee said Sweden is the blondest country. Yet blondes have fallen off 20% in the last 10 years.

"By the year 2100, blondes will be extremely rare throughout the world."

☆ ☆ ☆

Well, it seems only yesterday that Anita Loos made plenty peroxide money out of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Heaven knows what they will prefer when blondes are gone but not forgotten.

Speaking of committees, I had an idea of a Save-the-Blondes Committee.

"Every member save a blonde, Save a blonde for every member"—a catchy slogan.

But I got a lot of local household objections. I said, "Goodness, can't you take a joke?" (Apparently not. True appreciation of humor is scarce around here. A sunny disposition is wasted.)

☆ ☆ ☆

About The Case of the Disappearing Blondes now. No mention is made by the important Committee about why blondes are going the way of the whooping crane and dinosaur. They just are.

What will people talk about when blondes no longer sparkle?

Hair color is good for at least one brisk evening in most households today.

Madam says: "Joe, how do you like my hair?"

Joe says: "What? Oh, your hair looks fine."

Madam says: "I went to the beauty parlor today."

Joe says: "What? Why that's good. Fine."

Madam says: "Does it look all right? I mean, natural?" (Careful, Joe. Minefield. Achtung Mine!!)

Joe says: "It certainly looks natural to me."

"Oh, Joe," says Madam weeping, "they ruined it! And you don't care!"

☆ ☆ ☆

In many a tinted year, I saw my loved ones, large and small, go through the blended blonde routine. (Gad, the suffering I've seen!)

My oldest chick was a happy brunette until the golden teens when she decided to gild the lily.

She got hold of a bottle of mixed emotions that was supposed to make you come out like Kim Novak. She came out — well, brassy is the best word I can think of. Though I wished I had thought of another at the time I said it.

With a household of muffins, I've gone through streaks. I've gone through rinses. I've gone through lanolin — a kind of sheep dip. I've gone through pure hell.

However, it kept things lively around the scatter. And what will people do for amusement when all this high grade ore is turned to lead?

☆ ☆ ☆

The quality of blondes in journalism is well known. Blondes are twice as fat with editors as brunettes. (Ask me not why. Editors live on a high plains I've never understood.)

If I didn't know much about their Art, I knew what they liked. And while working for space rates for a New York tabloid, I peroxided more ladies than Elizabeth Arden.

I wrote, "A honey-blonde former coed blasted her boy friend with a .38—."

I wired urgently: "Statuesque ash-blonde show girl icepicks lover."

☆ ☆ ☆

The fact was that many of these ladies were rinsed only by my typed word. But New York was far away, and the editors so eager I didn't want to disappoint them.

Reserve Nearing Completion

. . . SELECTIVE FORCE GROWING

A spokesman for the Nebraska Army National Guard said Wednesday the state's new Selective Reserve Force (SRF) should be at full 4,677-man strength by the end of this month.

Col. John R. Stephenson, executive officer of the 67th Nebraska Infantry Brigade, said the force is now 96% completed.

He said there is still room for enlistees in units at Falls City and in the Hastings-Grand Island area.

The brigade was included in the new Army National Guard Reserve Select Force last fall. About 150,000 men are involved nationally.

Col. Stephenson said it will boost the brigade to its largest peacetime manpower level and is up 1,900 men from the old Nebraska force.

If a large increase of American regular army troops in Viet Nam should leave a void in the Army's Reserves at home, it has been speculated that the new select force could be ready for call-up.

But there has been no indication yet whether such a mobilization might become necessary.

60 Schools Face Possible Probation

The State Board of Education will decide Tuesday the fate of about 60 of Nebraska's smallest high schools, all located in rural areas.

It must determine whether the schools meet minimum operation standards.

The board adopted broader, stiffer rules and regulations for small secondary schools last year.

The State Education Department will recommend that those schools that have not met the higher standards be placed on probation.

Probation is normally the first step toward collapse of a school district.

State Education Commissioner Floyd A. Miller would not say how many schools the department will propose be placed on probation. But he did say there were quite a few.

There are presently 78 so-called approved high schools in the state. These are not accredited but still receive free tuition and other state benefits.

Brehm To Head Electronic Unit

Rodger Brehm was elected president of the Nebraska Electronic Service Association (NESA) at the group's annual meeting.

Other officers elected were John Sperry, vice president and Irving Feldman, secretary-treasurer. Named to the board of directors were Charles Enyeart, Robert Gormley, Ray Coons and Clark Trissel.

Spring Thaw Will Bring Axle Limits

State Engineer John Hossack said Wednesday axle load limits will be imposed on 690 miles of Nebraska highways when the spring thaw begins.

He said the weight limitations are necessary because subgrade soils under certain sections of state roads will become soft and unable to carry heavy loads.

Hossack said the date the restrictions become effective will be announced a few days prior to the erection of signs noting the limits.

"Haulers should plan to get their heavy moving done now before the spring thaw," he said.

State Maintenance Engineer John McMeekin recalled that 431 miles of roads were closed in the 1964 spring and 509 last year.

He said the gradual increase is due to the added mileage each year of low-cost road surfacing in Nebraska in efforts to eliminate gravel roads as soon as possible.

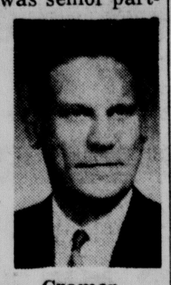

Disabled List Used

London—British companies that have 20 or more employes are required to fill 3 per cent of their vacancies from a registry of disabled persons.

Lincoln Engineer John W. Cramer, 51, Dies

John Wesley Cramer, 51, of 3401 So. 31st, Lincoln engineer, died Tuesday.

Mr. Cramer, a native of North Platte, was senior partner in the consulting engineering firm of Fulton and Cramer. He was active in many professional organizations, and had served as president of the Nebraska Engineering Society, the American Water Works Association, and the American Society of Civil Engineers' Nebraska section.

Cramer

The son of a contractor who built grain elevators, Mr. Cramer got his first taste of construction work at the age of 14 when he joined his father's crew. He became carpenter gang foreman three years later.

West Point Appointment

At Wentworth Military Academy he earned an appointment to West Point, but chose to go to work for the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District. It was there he met Robert Fulton, who was to become his friend and business partner.

In 1937, Mr. Cramer married, entered the University of Nebraska, and took a part-time job as Fulton's assistant—all in the same week.

Mr. Cramer was an active student, gaining top military and scholastic honors prior to his graduation in 1940.

Rose To Top

Following graduation, he went to work for Lockheed Aircraft in California, where he served as a designer. When he left Lockheed in 1944, at age 29, he had become the company's youngest full design engineer, maintaining fuselage design supervision on every model manufactured.

In 1945, Mr. Cramer returned to Lincoln to rejoin the consulting engineer firm as a full partner. A year later, Fulton became seriously ill, putting Mr. Cramer in charge of the company's transactions.

Mr. Cramer, who has long been in Who's Who, was a member of the Hillcrest Country Club and the Lincoln University Club.

Services Friday

Survivors include his widow, Henrietta; sons, John H. and James P., all of Lincoln; and a brother, David, of Kansas City, Mo.

Services are set for 3 p.m. Friday at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, 6001 A. The Rev. William Cross will officiate. The family requests memorials to Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.

'Swift, Armour May Build New Omaha Plants'

Onaha (AP) — Mayor A. V. Sorensen said Wednesday Swift and Armour, two of the nation's largest packing companies, are weighing decisions on whether to build new plants in Omaha.

The mayor was in Chicago Tuesday to confer with packing industry officials, and said he returned home convinced that Omaha will remain a meat packing center "for a long time to come."

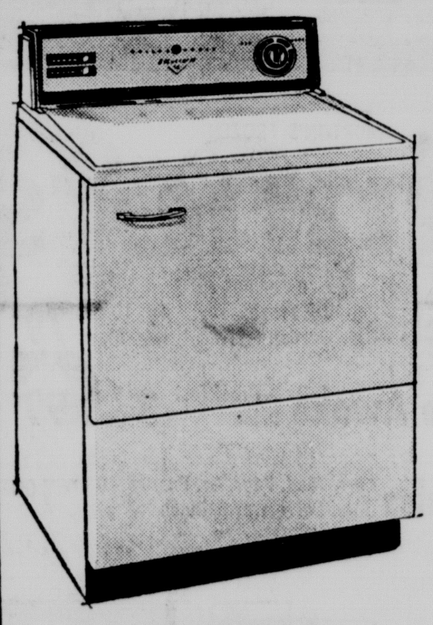

"I'm not discounting for one minute that Swift and Armour might build new plants in Omaha," he said, and added that it will depend in part on the problem of disposing of packinghouse wastes.

N.Y. Stock Market Rebounds Sharply

New York (AP) — The stock market rebounded sharply Wednesday after sinking to a support level where heavy buying drove prices up rapidly.

Because of its initial loss, the market did not recover all of the losses taken in Tuesday's steep drop, but the distance it traveled from its lowest to its highest point was great.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended with a net gain of 6.40 at 982.29.

Recovery was especially noticeable among some of the highed priced, some volatile issues which were battered Tuesday. Boeing rose 7½, more than erasing Tuesday's loss of 1⅝.

Well ahead were steels, motors, rubbers, mail order-retails, aerospace defense issues, electronics, electrical equipments, oils, airlines and tobaccos. Rails and utilities were slightly lower. Nonferrous metals were down irregularly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks recovered .8 of the previous sessions loss of 3.0, closing at 354.1. Industrials rose 3.2, rails lost .6 and utilities .8.

Of 1,414 issues traded, 671 rose and 524 fell. New highs for 1965-66 totaled 24 and new lows 53.

Volume was 8.14 million shares compared with 9.09 million Tuesday.

Fourteen of the 15 most active stocks rose, McKesson & Robbins losing 1⅛.

Speery Reed was the most active stock, up 1⅛ at 18¾ on 213,800 shares.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 2.78 million shares compared with 3.15 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Treasury bonds declined.

Reserve Nearing Completion

. . . SELECTIVE FORCE GROWING

A spokesman for the Nebraska Army National Guard said Wednesday the state's new Selective Reserve Force (SRF) should be at full 4,677-man strength by the end of this month.

Col. John R. Stephenson, executive officer of the 67th Nebraska Infantry Brigade, said the force is now 96% completed.

He said there is still room for enlistees in units at Falls City and in the Hastings-Grand Island area.

The brigade was included in the new Army National Guard Reserve Select Force last fall. About 150,000 men are involved nationally.

Col. Stephenson said it will boost the brigade to its largest peacetime manpower level and is up 1,900 men from the old Nebraska force.

If a large increase of American regular army troops in Viet Nam should leave a void in the Army's Reserves at home, it has been speculated that the new select force could be ready for call-up.

But there has been no indication yet whether such a mobilization might become necessary.

60 Schools Face Possible Probation

The State Board of Education will decide Tuesday the fate of about 60 of Nebraska's smallest high schools, all located in rural areas.

It must determine whether the schools meet minimum operation standards.

The board adopted broader, stiffer rules and regulations for small secondary schools last year.

The State Education Department will recommend that those schools that have not met the higher standards be placed on probation.

Probation is normally the first step toward collapse of a school district.

State Education Commissioner Floyd A. Miller would not say how many schools the department will propose be placed on probation. But he did say there were quite a few.

There are presently 78 so-called approved high schools in the state. These are not accredited but still receive free tuition and other state benefits.

Brehm To Head Electronic Unit

Rodger Brehm was elected president of the Nebraska Electronic Service Association (NESA) at the group's annual meeting.

Other officers elected were John Sperry, vice president and Irving Feldman, secretary-treasurer. Named to the board of directors were Charles Enyeart, Robert Gormley, Ray Coons and Clark Trissel.

Spring Thaw Will Bring Axle Limits

State Engineer John Hossack said Wednesday axle load limits will be imposed on 690 miles of Nebraska highways when the spring thaw begins.

He said the weight limitations are necessary because subgrade soils under certain sections of state roads will become soft and unable to carry heavy loads.

Hossack said the date the restrictions become effective will be announced a few days prior to the erection of signs noting the limits.

"Haulers should plan to get their heavy moving done now before the spring thaw," he said.

State Maintenance Engineer John McMeekin recalled that 431 miles of roads were closed in the 1964 spring and 509 last year.

He said the gradual increase is due to the added mileage each year of low-cost road surfacing in Nebraska in efforts to eliminate gravel roads as soon as possible.

London—British companies that have 20 or more employes are required to fill 3 per cent of their vacancies from a registry of disabled persons.

Lincoln Engineer John W. Cramer, 51, Dies

John Wesley Cramer, 51, of 3401 So. 31st, Lincoln engineer, died Tuesday.

Mr. Cramer, a native of North Platte, was senior partner in the consulting engineering firm of Fulton and Cramer. He was active in many professional organizations, and had served as president of the Nebraska Engineering Society, the American Water Works Association, and the American Society of Civil Engineers' Nebraska section.

Cramer

The son of a contractor who built grain elevators, Mr. Cramer got his first taste of construction work at the age of 14 when he joined his father's crew. He became carpenter gang foreman three years later.

West Point Appointment

At Wentworth Military Academy he earned an appointment to West Point, but chose to go to work for the Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District. It was there he met Robert Fulton, who was to become his friend and business partner.

In 1937, Mr. Cramer married, entered the University of Nebraska, and took a part-time job as Fulton's assistant—all in the same week.

Mr. Cramer was an active student, gaining top military and scholastic honors prior to his graduation in 1940.

Rose To Top

Following graduation, he went to work for Lockheed Aircraft in California, where he served as a designer. When he left Lockheed in 1944, at age 29, he had become the company's youngest full design engineer, maintaining fuselage design supervision on every model manufactured.

In 1945, Mr. Cramer returned to Lincoln to rejoin the consulting engineer firm as a full partner. A year later, Fulton became seriously ill, putting Mr. Cramer in charge of the company's transactions.

Mr. Cramer, who has long been in Who's Who, was a member of the Hillcrest Country Club and the Lincoln University Club.

Services Friday

Survivors include his widow, Henrietta; sons, John H. and James P., all of Lincoln; and a brother, David, of Kansas City, Mo.

Services are set for 3 p.m. Friday at Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, 6001 A. The Rev. William Cross will officiate. The family requests memorials to Holy Trinity Episcopal Church.

'Swift, Armour May Build New Omaha Plants'

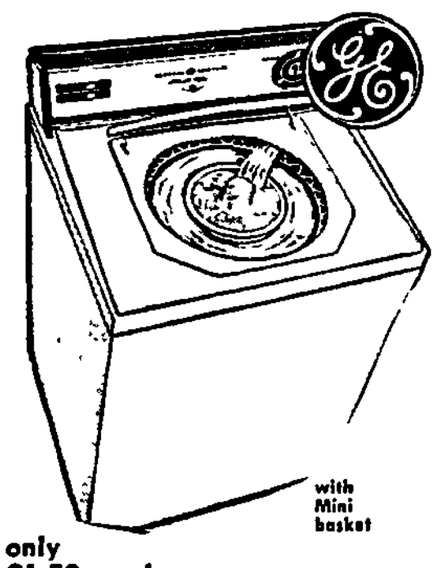

Onaha (AP) — Mayor A. V. Sorensen said Wednesday Swift and Armour, two of the nation's largest packing companies, are weighing decisions on whether to build new plants in Omaha.

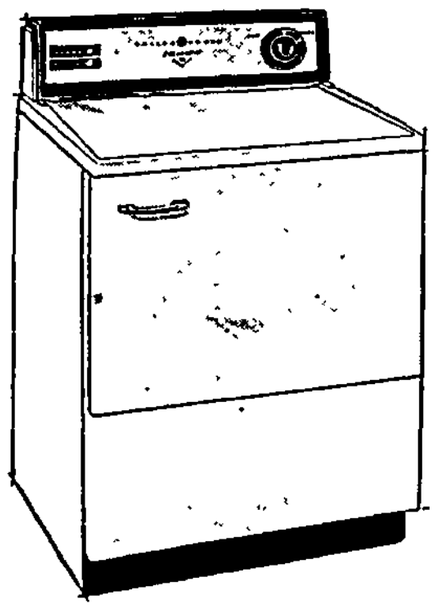

The mayor was in Chicago Tuesday to confer with packing industry officials, and said he returned home convinced that Omaha will remain a meat packing center "for a long time to come."

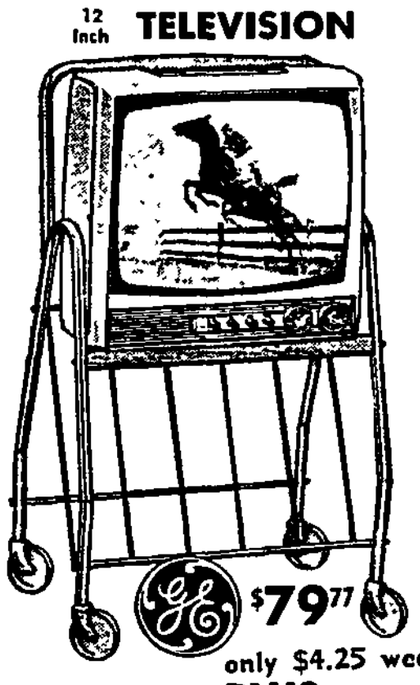

"I'm not discounting for one minute that Swift and Armour might build new plants in Omaha," he said, and added that it will depend in part on the problem of disposing of packinghouse wastes.

Fate Of Swine Dependent On Production Efficiency—Peo

Omaha — In a world governed by efficiency, the fate of swine as a meat animal depends to a large extent on the improvement of the efficiency of swine production.

This statement was made here Wednesday by a University of Nebraska professor of animal science, Dr. E. R. Peo, who addressed the 1966 Fertilizer, Machinery, and Chemical Exposition.

According to Dr. Peo, 65 to 70% of the cost of producing swine is feed. "Therefore, any improvement in the utilization of feed will have a marked effect on the efficiency of production," he said.

Since 90 to 95% of the feed ration is grain (energy) and protein, research involving energy and protein offers the greatest opportunity for improvement of efficiency of nutrient utilization. Peo said that swine nutrition research at NU is based on the premise that studying these two factors ultimately will result in the greatest improvement in efficiency of swine production.

Labels on the containers for chemicals that control weeds, insects, fungi, and other pests are extremely important, John Furrer, a NU Extension pesticide specialist said.

Furrer stressed three steps in the safe use of chemicals.

"Use them wisely," he said. "Read and study the labels—commercial companies have invested millions of dollars in the printing of label information. Most cases of pesticide ineffectiveness or damage can be attributed to two main causes—not following directions or faulty application equipment."

The next step, according to Furrer, is proper disposal. "Carefully rinse all metal, glass, or plastic containers after they have been emptied," he said. "Add rinse water to the container and pour the rinsings into the spray tank. This reduces the concentration of the small amount that remains in the 'empty' container and makes it less toxic."

"Unused quantities of mixed spray material should be buried where they won't contaminate water supplies or streams," he added. "Bury containers and break or puncture them so that they cannot be used for other purposes. Burn paper containers, making sure to stay out of the smoke."

Finally, Furrer stressed safe storage of chemicals. "Store all pesticides under lock and key and in their original containers," he said.

N.Y. Stock Market Rebounds Sharply

New York (AP) — The stock market rebounded sharply Wednesday after sinking to a support level where heavy buying drove prices up rapidly.

Because of its initial loss, the market did not recover all of the losses taken in Tuesday's steep drop, but the distance it traveled from its lowest to its highest point was great.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended with a net gain of 6.40 at 982.29.

Recovery was especially noticeable among some of the highed priced, some volatile issues which were battered Tuesday. Boeing rose 7½, more than erasing Tuesday's loss of 5⅜.

Well ahead were steels, motors, rubbers, mail order-retails, aerospace defense issues, electronics, electrical equipments, oils, airlines and tobaccos. Rails and utilities were slightly lower. Nonferrous metals were down irregularly.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks recovered .8 of the previous sessions loss of 3.0, closing at 334.1. Industrials rose 3.2, rails lost .6 and utilities .8.

Of 1,414 issues traded, 671 rose and 521 fell. New highs for 1965-66 totaled 21 and new lows 33.

Volume was 8.14 million shares compared with 9.09 million Tuesday.

Fourteen of the 15 most active stocks rose. McKesson & Robbins losing ⅛.

Speery Rand was the most active stock, up 1⅛ at 18¼ on 213,000 shares.

Prices were generally higher on the American Stock Exchange. Volume was 2.78 million shares compared with 3.15 million Tuesday.

Corporate bonds were mixed. U.S. Treasury bonds declined.

Grain Market Closes Mixed

Chicago (AP)—Grain futures prices closed with a mixture of small gains and losses on the Board of Trade Wednesday after speculators had worked both sides of the market in generally slow transactions.

Soybeans finished slightly firmer to slightly weaker on a flurry of lateelling.

Wheat closed easier, corn barely steady, oats and rye narrowly mixed.

Wheat was 1¼-½ cent a bushel lower at the close, March $1.67¼; corn ⅛-⅜ higher, March $1.23⅝-¾; oats ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, March 71¼ asked; rye ⅛ higher to ⅛ lower, March $1.32¼; soybeans ⅞ higher to ⅝ lower, March $2.87¾-¼.

Fate Of Swine Dependent On Production Efficiency—Peo

Omaha — In a world governed by efficiency, the fate of swine as a meat animal depends to a large extent on the improvement of the efficiency of swine production.

This statement was made here Wednesday by a University of Nebraska professor of animal science, Dr. E. R. Peo, who addressed the 1966 Fertilizer, Machinery, and Chemical Exposition.

According to Dr. Peo, 65 to 70% of the cost of producing swine is feed. "Therefore, any improvement in the utilization of feed will have a marked effect on the efficiency of production," he said.

Since 90 to 95% of the feed ration is grain (energy) and protein, research involving energy and protein offers the greatest opportunity for improvement of efficiency of nutrient utilization. Peo said that swine nutrition research at NU is based on the premise that studying these two factors ultimately will result in the greatest improvement in efficiency of swine production.

Labels on the containers for chemicals that control weeds, insects, fungi, and other pests are extremely important, John Furrer, a NU Extension pesticide specialist said.

Furrer stressed three steps in the safe use of chemicals.

"Use them wisely," he said. "Read and study the labels—commercial companies have invested millions of dollars in the printing of label information. Most cases of pesticide ineffectiveness or damage can be attributed to two main causes—not following directions or faulty application equipment."

The next step, according to Furrer, is proper disposal. "Carefully rinse all metal, glass, or plastic containers after they have been emptied," he said. "Add rinse water to the container and pour the rinsings into the spray tank. This reduces the concentration of the small amount that remains in the 'empty' container and makes it less toxic."

"Unused quantities of mixed spray material should be buried where they won't contaminate water supplies or streams," he added. "Bury containers and break or puncture them so that they cannot be used for other purposes. Burn paper containers, making sure to stay out of the smoke."

Finally, Furrer stressed safe storage of chemicals. "Store all pesticides under lock and key and in their original containers," he said.

Big Surprise About Universe Told

. . . QUASARS SHOW LOTS LESS MATTER THAN PRESUMED

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Discovery that the universe has far less matter than presumed — a major surprise which may profoundly alter scientific thinking about its age and structure — was announced Wednesday by the California Institute of Technology.

Studies of light from quasars — the most distant objects yet observed — show there is only one millionth of the amount of invisible gas and dust previously thought likely in the great spaces between clusters of galaxies, the institute said.

Theoretical "models" of the universe have assumed there was a great deal of matter in the form of dust and gas, spread thinly between galactic clusters. Some scientists have theorized that new stars are constantly being formed of such material as it is sucked into whirling galaxies and compressed.

Implications

The theory that very little material exists has not been assessed, but it could mean:

1. That the creational process may be running out of raw material and that the universe may therefore be much older than the generally accepted age of 12 billion years.

2. That the universe had no beginning such as the current creation theory would imply, but has always existed much as it is now.

"As a flashlight beam discloses dust, smoke or other material between the flashlight and the object it is shining upon, the light from quasars is being used to show us the dust and gases in space between the quasars and us," said Dr. John N. Bahcall, theoretical physicist.

Bahcall has extended the technique so that it may be used to determine not only the kind and quantity of matter between galaxies but also the matter between clusters of galaxies.

Far Out And Fast

Quasar is short for quasi-stellar (starlike) object. Eighty-five of these objects, the brightest known, have been detected as far out as 10 billion light years, traveling at almost the speed of light. A light year is the distance traveled by light — at 186,000 miles a second—in a year's time.

Light from these objects may travel across as many as five galactic clusters — which are up to 10 million light years across — in reaching earth.

Detailed analysis of the light shows what kind of gas or dust it passed through on the way. Preliminary studies show the presence of hydrogen, carbon, oxygen, magnesium, aluminum, iron and lithium, but only in very minute quantities.

Big Surprise About Universe Told

. . . QUASARS SHOW LOTS LESS MATTER THAN PRESUMED

Pasadena, Calif. (AP) — Discovery that the universe has far less matter than presumed — a major surprise which may profoundly alter scientific thinking about its age and structure — was announced Wednesday by the California Institute of Technology.

Studies of light from quasars — the most distant objects yet observed — show there is only one millionth of the amount of invisible gas and dust previously thought likely in the great spaces between clusters of galaxies, the Institute said.

Theoretical "models" of the universe have assumed there was a great deal of matter in the form of dust and gas, spread thinly between galactic clusters. Some scientists have theorized that new stars are constantly being formed of such material as it is sucked into whirling galaxies and compressed.

Implications

The theory that very little material exists has not been assessed, but it could mean:

1. That the creational process may be running out of raw material and that the universe may therefore be much older than the generally accepted age of 12 billion years.

2. That the universe had no beginning such as the current creation theory would imply, but has always existed much as it is now.

"As a flashlight beam discloses dust, smoke or other material between the flashlight and the object it is shining upon, the light from quasars is being used to show us the dust and gases in space between the quasars and us," said Dr. John N. Bahcall, theoretical physicist.

Bahcall has extended the technique so that it may be used to determine not only the kind and quantity of matter between galaxies but also the matter between clusters of galaxies.

Far Out And Fast

Quasar is short for quasi-stellar (starlike) object. Eighty-five of these objects, the brightest known, have been detected as far out as 10 billion light years, traveling at almost the speed of light. A light year is the distance traveled by light — at 186,000 miles a second—in a year's time.

Light from these objects may travel across as many as five galactic clusters — which are up to 10 million light years across — in reaching earth.

Detailed analysis of the light shows what kind of gas or dust it passed through on the way. Preliminary studies show the presence of hydrogen, carbon, oxygen, magnesium, aluminum, iron and lithium, but only in very minute quantities.
